MOORE MOTOR OFFICERS ORDERED TAKEN TO PRISON

ABOUT $1,600,000 LOST IN THEIR SCHEME

G. L. Moore to Serve Three Years, E. K. Gallagher Two, J. W. Patt Three, and A. C. Leonard Two.

Four officers of the Moore Motor Vehicle Co. of Danville, Ill., who were convicted in Federal Court at East St. Louis in 1921 of using the mails to defraud after disclosures were made of swindling operations costing investors approximately $1,600,000, today were formally committed by Federal Judge English to terms in the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth. They will start for Leavenworth tomorrow in the custody of Deputy United States Marshals.

Those committed and the penalties previously assessed against each were:

Edward K. Gallagher of Minneapolis, president in 1921, two years' imprisonment and $4500 fine.

J. W. Patt of Salt Lake City, stock salesman, three years' imprisonment and $2500 fine.

Albert C. Leonard of Denver, treasurer, two years' imprisonment and $2500 fine.

Probation for Men Denied.

Commitments were issued today by Judge English after he had refused yesterday to grant a motion for probation for the four men, filed and argued by their attorney, Bryan H. Tivnen of Matoon, Ill.

The motion for probation was based on a recent act of Congress which extends to Federal Judges the power to suspend the execution of sentences after convictions. The motion of Tivnen is said by Federal Court attaches in East St. Louis to be the first argued there since the act was passed by Congress.

Since their conviction the four men have been at liberty on bond while their attorneys resorted to every possible legal method to prevent execution of the sentences. The first step was an appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals at Chicago but last July this court affirmed the sentences of the District Court.

The case was then carried to the United States Supreme Court, which recently refused to review the evidence. Mandates ordering imprisonment of the defendants were issued early this month by the Circuit Court of Appeals.

Will Seek Pardon for Men.

After the refusal of Judge English to grant yesterday's motion, Tivnen announced that a petition for pardon for the four men will be presented to President Coolidge. This, however, will not be done for several months and does not prevent execution of today's order of the Court.

Tivnen argued for probation for the men because of their "excellent character." This will also be made the basis for the application for pardon.

The business of the company was to manufacture automobiles but it was brought out during the trial that but two or three automobiles were ever manufactured, the principal object of the company being to sell stock. Prospective investors were flooded with literature of the company, resulting in the charge of using the mails to defraud being placed against the officers after the company went into bankruptcy in 1920.

ROME CELEBRATES FOUNDING

By the Associated Press.

ROME, April 21.—Rome citizens today celebrated the legendary founding of the city 2672 years ago. The prevailing holiday spirit surpassed that shown upon any other occasion, even Christmas. All business was suspended and no newspapers were published. The day was devoted to merry-making, unveiling of monuments, speeches and general festivities, starting with a great celebration by the Fascist party at the Argentina Theater.

A huge monument by Zanelli, representing Rome, was unveiled with elaborate ceremonies. The new excavations at the forum of Augustus were exhibited for the first time and a new apartment house district on the outskirts of the city along the banks of the River Tiber was formally declared to be a part of the Eternal City, with ceremonies participated in by the King and other notables. Among other celebrations was the opening of a new electric railway from Rome to Ostia, which it is believed will carry great crowds to this seaside resort during the summer.

AIR BEACON, VISIBLE 500 MILES AWAY, LIGHTED IN FRANCE

PARIS, April 21.—A billion candlepower lighthouse, the most powerful in the world, was lighted yesterday for the first time. It is the first of a series intended to guide aviators on long-distance flights over Europe. Mounted 2000 feet above sea level, on Mount St. Afrique, near Dijon, its light will be visible from Brussels, Frankfort, Milan and other cities within a radius of 500 miles. It uses an electric current of 300 volts.

How much more powerful the giant aerial lighthouse is than the biggest coast lights may be judged by the fact that the famous ones at Cape Griz Nez and Ushant are only 50,000,000 candle-power. The only other air lighthouses in Europe, those on the Paris-Strasbourg and the Paris-Lorraine routes, are mere 6000 candle-power beacons, visible not more than 25 miles.

The Mount St. Afrique lighthouse is built at the point where the Paris-Algiers, Paris-Nice and Paris-Switzerland air routes separate. It was begun in 1918, intended for war purposes. The total cost was $78,000.

BOOK TO WEIGH 500 POUNDS

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, April 21.—A book said to be the largest in the world, is being built for exhibition purposes for the Southern Exposition, to be held in New York, May 11 to 23.

The book, entitled "The story of the South in the building of the Republic," was written by Mathew Page Andrews, historian. It will weigh more than 500 pounds, and leaves will be turned by electricity. After the Exposition closes, the book will be exhibited in other cities.

GENTLEMANLY LINES IN DRESS

Strictly Tailored Suits and Topcoats Are Worn by Women of Paris

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 21.—"Gentlemanly fashions" in the feminine dress for morning wear in town are seen everywhere in the Paris streets. The strict tailor-made, the slim topcoat with a neat stock of a colored "comforter" showing above, is much in evidence. Neckties of all kinds are worn with high-necked blouses.

The hats used with these ensembles are dome-shaped, with curled-back brims. They are of felt or straw, with trimmings of ribbons, feathers or a buckle or brooch.

PROMOTER CAREW ACCUSED OF USING MAILS TO DEFRAUD

CASE INVOLVES OIL PROMOTION SCHEME

C. F. Carew, he of the alluring printed word in matters of peddling "wild cat" securities, whose dulcet typewriter once charmed a small fortune out of investors in the defunct Mother Goose Candy Shop, is in bad here again.

With his arrest in Los Angeles, yesterday, it became known that he had been indicted by a Federal grand jury here on Feb. 13 for alleged use of the mails to defraud in the promotion of the high-sounding Cecca Consolidated Petroleum Co.

Carew's Career.

After a somewhat noisy career as a "silent" partner in the former brokerage firm of Schachner & Co., and, later, as an "exposer" of fake oil promoters through C. F. Carew & Co., Carew left St. Louis by request, in connection with the Mecca concern, which was organized as a common-law trust under Texas laws. He pleaded guilty here in the Court of Criminal Correction, on Feb. 5, 1923, to violation of the State "blue sky" law in the sale of Mecca shares. In consideration of this plea and his promise not to return to St. Louis, he was fined $100, but the fine was remitted. Also, he reimbursed the complaining witness for the $25 spent for shares.

Now, however, Carew is to return to St. Louis under pressure, being in custody of Postoffice Inspectors Ward and Uttley, who had been looking for him ever since his indictment. They wired their office here that they were successful yesterday, and then the fact that Carew had been indicted was made known.

Charges Against Him.

The indictment charges, in six counts, that Carew, in October, 1922, feloniously devised a scheme to defraud six persons, by asserting that the Mecca stock he was selling was based on a contract the concern had made for drilling wells on holdings of 2000 acres of land in Parker and Wise Counties, Texas, but that the "drilling" went no farther than the arrival of a drilling outfit on the land.

Carew sold a large quantity of the stock, the indictment alleges, and the money derived went to his personal benefit and that of his brokerage company, but Assistant District Attorney Harlan said he did not know accurately the extent of the stock sales. Carew's intent was to deceive and defraud, and to convert money to his own use without giving anything of value in return, it is charged.

"He made glowing, glittering, alluring, laudatory, attractive and specious predictions, representations and promises with a reckless disregard as to whether the same were true or false or possible of fulfillment," the indictment says of Carew.

"Initial offering price" of the shares was 50 cents each, the capital being $200,000. Profits? A sample "sucker" letter set forth in the indictment, alleged to have been sent out by Carew on Oct. 3, 1923, declared, "The figures would be so big they would seem exaggerated—figure it out for yourself."

Typewriter at Work Again.

This was Carew's justly celebrated tintinnabulating typewriter at work again, painting a glowing picture of what his securities held in store for the little investor. Moderate investment, colossal profits, in a short time; that was the keynote. Good management and a proper scheme of organization were held to be essential to a good oil company, and all hazards had been eliminated from Mecca. Was not the "plan of operation as instituted by this company safe, sound and simple?"

"I write every line of my own literature and endeavor to make it just as plain as possible," Carew's glowing epistle went on. "This is no stock selling proposition."

The property was declared to be especially well located in the oil field and here was the scheme for producing profits, which involved carefully eschewing the temptation of pumping, shipping, refining and marketing oil: "After a well is brought in, it will be sold with a

MILLER INAUGURATED AS MAYOR; PLEDGES ADMINISTRATION FREE OF FACTION OR CREED

THRONG ATTENDS CEREMONY IN CITY HALL ROTUNDA

Asserts Personal Appointees Will Be Chosen From His Campaign Supporters if Capable of Tasks.

"HONESTLY, FAIRLY ELECTED," HE SAYS

President Neun of Aldermen, Praising Kiel, Says 'Never Again Will Mayor Serve 12 Years.'

Victor J. Miller, inaugurated at noon today as the thirty-third Mayor of St. Louis, announced in his inaugural speech that he would appoint to the most important positions of his administration "those who supported me in my political fight."

This declaration brought the heartiest display of enthusiasm made by the audience of several thousand persons, which packed the city hall rotunda and surrounding balconies, and which included political backers of Miller and many city employes.

The new Mayor added that if in some instance he could not find among his supporters a person qualified for a particular position, then, "and only then," he added with great emphasis, "I shall look elsewhere." He said that in the rank and file of municipal employment, the charter provisions will govern appointments.

Neun Makes a Prediction.

Applause was bestowed liberally upon the retiring Mayor, Henry W. Kiel, whose part in the ceremony was second to that of Miller. President Neun of the Board of Aldermen, who presided, declared in referring to Kiel's three-term service as Mayor, "Never again will a Mayor serve this city for 12 years."

Kiel, in a brief farewell speech, began with a humorous appeal for sympathy as a man out of a job, then praised those who have served in municipal positions with and under him, and urged co-operation with Mayor Miller. Quoting a remark made about himself by Neun, Kiel said, "Let it be said of him four years hence, as it was just said of me, that he was the best Mayor St. Louis ever had."

Officially, the occasion was also the inauguration of the re-elected Comptroller, Louis Nolte, and of 14 members of the Board of Aldermen from the odd-numbered wards, the First to the Twenty-seventh inclusive. All were elected on the Republican ticket with Miller, two weeks ago today.

The new Mayor, who was the central figure of the occasion, wore a morning coat. Tall and robust, and with silvery hair, oddly contrasting with a face which looks no more than his 36 years, he rose above the square-set form of his predecessor and the compact figures of the Comptroller and the aldermanic president.

Mayor's Mother in Attendance.

Mrs. Miller, in a black suit and hat with some adornments of brighter color, and Mrs. Ida Miller, the Mayor's mother, with his young nephew, Fred Miller, were in seats of honor.

Now immediately someone looked out the window and saw nothing but the street where the car had been, everyone got excited. Someone told a neighbor and this neighbor told another neighbor, and soon all the neighbors knew about it. Then someone told the police. And neighbors and police and parents and acquaintances and people who weren't even acquaintances began to look for a touring car belonging to James Bray of 5580 Labadie avenue, with such-and-such a license and a little yellow-haired by.

It was 10 o'clock that some neighbors found a touring car with a little yellow-haired boy asleep under a robe, at about 5600 Roosevelt place, which is just three blocks away from where the car was taken by persons unknown. Jerome didn't know how it happened. It seems he still doesn't know it happened.

48 MEN LOST WHEN FREIGHT SHIP SINKS

Japanese Vessel Goes Down Off Nova Scotia Coast After Aid Is Sent.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 21.—Forty-eight men lost their lives today when the Japanese freighter Raifuku Maru sank off Nova Scotia, a wireless from the steamship Homeric informed White Star Line officials this afternoon.

"Regret unable to save life" was the brief report of Capt. John Roberts of the Homeric to the line.

Two steamships and two ocean-going tugs were speeding to the rescue of the crew but the freighter went down before any of them could reach the distressed vessel in time to effect a rescue.

For more than seven hours before going down the Raifuku Maru struggled in mountainous seas which stove in her lifeboats and caused dangerous list by a shift of the cargo. The freighter was listing 30 degrees when her captain sent his first urgent call for assistance.

Although the Homeric put on full speed in the direction of the distressed vessel, she failed to arrive in time to save the freighter's crew. Heavy seas made it impossible for the crew to survive in the water.

Capt. Roberts reported that the Homeric proceeded on her voyage to New York at 12:03 o'clock.

Previous S O S calls from the ship asked for quick assistance. The cargo of wheat shifted and the vessel at 6 a. m. listed 30 degrees. One report was that all lifeboats had been smashed. The Homeric was within 70 miles of the Japanese vessel at 8 a. m. and increased its speed to reach the scene. Other vessels answered the distress calls.

MAPLEWOOD CITY CLERK DISAPPEARS

George D. Komar, City Clerk and Collector of Maplewood, disappeared following his departure from the Maplewood City Hall Saturday night and has since been missing.

Chief Caldwell of the Maplewood police force today asked the St. Louis force to assist him in searching for Komar, who was 53 years old.

Komar's disappearance came on the eve of the annual audit of his books, but Mayor Eugene Burks said he did not believe there was anything irregular in the accounts. Komar in addition to being City Clerk was also Collector, and handled from $45,000 to $50,000 a year.

Mayor Burks said he reminded Komar Saturday that the audit was to be begun, and Komar said he was ready for it. Komar has been Clerk and Collector for nine years, and his books have been audited annually. He was last seen by city officials at 11 p. m. Saturday, when he left his office, where he had been working.

Chief Caldwell is concerned over the fact that Komar's razor is his only possession missing from the house at 1413 Hazel avenue, where he lives with his 82-year-old father, Anthony Komar. His mother died March 31, after an illness of four or five years during which the missing clerk was very attentive to her care. Caldwell has made a thorough canvass of Komar's associates but has found no one who saw him after Saturday evening.

ASSOCIATED PRESS FAVORS BROADCASTING NATIONAL NEWS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 21.—Action of members of the Associated Press favoring broadcasting of news of great national importance was laid before the regular annual meeting today for ratification. A resolution, prepared at the preliminary meeting yesterday for final action today, authorizes the board of directors to adopt necessary rules and regulations permitting broadcasting of presidential election results and news of equal importance, under adequate safeguards and with proper credit to the Associated Press.

A resolution approved yesterday provides that each state association shall, at an annual meeting prior to November of each year, choose a member for the advisory board of the division in which the state is.

At the silver jubilee meeting yesterday, a committee was appointed to present to Noyes a token of the gratitude of the Associated Press for his efforts in raising it to its present efficiency. A silver service was presented to Frederick Roy Martin, who retires as general manager tomorrow, and formal notice was given of the election of Kent Cooper as his successor.

LINEMAN KILLED BY WIRE WHEN AT WORK ON A POLE

Fellow Workmen of Ben Robbe Seriously Burned in Accident in Rear of 5660 Kingsbury Ave.

One lineman was killed and another seriously burned at 1:30 p. m. today when they came in contact with a high tension wire on a pole on which they were working in the rear of 5660 Kingsbury avenue. The workman killed was Ben Robbe, of 3207 Magazine avenue, and the injured lineman is E. J. Nance, who is said to live near Spring avenue and West Pine boulevard.

Both were employed by the Union Electric Co., where it was said a crew of five were working at the place where the accident occurred, repairing a 2300-volt transformer.

It was believed Robbe and Nance touched one of the wires carrying the high voltage before the current had been shut off. Robbe is believed to have been killed instantly, but a pulmotor, rushed from the city hospital, was employed to resuscitate Nance, who was taken to Josephine Hospital.

AUTO, WITH SLEEPING BOY, 3, IS STOLEN

Parents, Police and Neighbors Find Machine and Slumbering Lad After Search.

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Bray and their children, and James Bray's brother, wife and their children went riding in James Bray's car last night, and at about 9 o'clock they thought they'd had enough, so James Bray drove to his brother's house at 5553 St. Louis avenue.

When they got there, Jerome, one of James' children, who two months ago attained the age of 3 years, was asleep on the rear floor of the car, and almost completely covered by a robe. In fact, if there wasn't a street light handy, one wouldn't even have noticed a bunch of yellow hair emerging from one end of the robe.

So the grown persons let Jerome sleep where he was and the James Brays hustled their other two children into John Bray's house, into which John and his wife were hustling their own. And before they had all been in the house five minutes the automobile and the robe and Jerome were gone.

Now immediately someone looked out the window and saw nothing but the street where the car had been, everyone got excited. Someone told a neighbor and this neighbor told another neighbor, and soon all the neighbors knew about it. Then someone told the police. And neighbors and police and parents and acquaintances and people who weren't even acquaintances began to look for a touring car belonging to James Bray of 5580 Labadie avenue, with such-and-such a license and a little yellow-haired by.

SEVEN MEN ARE SLATED FOR JOBS BY NEW MAYOR

FRED GEHNER TO GET POST OF ASSESSOR

G. J. Dietz Supply Commissioner and C. C. Beck Police Judge — Formal Appointments Withheld.

Victor J. Miller became Mayor today with seven appointees for important posts reported to be agreed upon, but said that he would make no announcements of his appointments until later in the week. It is believed he will begin making his appointments tomorrow, however.

Seven men, three of them as members of the Board of Public Service, the Mayor's "Cabinet;" two Police Court Judges, the Assessor and Supply Commissioner agreed upon, it has been learned.

As told exclusively in the Post-Dispatch last week, R. B. Brooks, chief engineer of the Moreno-Burkham Construction Co., will be Director of Streets and Sewers; Alderman John H. Brod Jr., of the Twenty-eighth Ward, will be Director of Public Safety, and Harry P. Rosecan will be Judge of City Court No. 2.

Other Names on Slate.

Names added to the slate last night were the following:

Fred Gehner, a Deputy Assessor, to be appointed Assessor at a salary of approximately $10,000 annually.

George J. Deltz, now a Deputy Assessor, to be Supply Commissioner at $5000 annually.

Clyde C. Beck, an attorney, with offices in the Central National Bank Building, Judge of City Court No. 1, at $4000 annually.

Two of the most important posts of the administration, president of the Board of Public Service, now held by E. R. Kinsey, and City Counselor, now held by Oliver Senti, have not as yet been agreed upon and the incumbents will hold over for some time. The position of Director of Public Utilities has not been finally disposed of by appointment.

Salisbury a Personal Friend.

Salisbury is a close personal friend of Mayor Miller and was the agency through which Miller attempted to fight Collector Koeln two years ago. Salisbury was brought out by Miller to oppose Koeln for the Republican nomination for Collector, but was defeated by 15,000 votes. Miller believed at the time that Koeln had told Gov. Hyde to remove Miller from the presidency of the Police Board. Koeln's friends say this was without foundation.

As Director of Public Welfare Salisbury will have supervision of such institutions as the city hospital, sanitarium, workhouse and jail. He is directing head, through commissioners, of the Health Department, Park Department, Municipal Free Legal Aid Bureau, Municipal Nurses' Association and all eleemosynary institutions of the city.

Indicates Miller's Plan.

Salisbury's appointment will mean the first step in Miller's quiet campaign to surround himself with loyal friends who will assist in eliminating from positions of control those who have opposed his advance in the Republican party.

Gehner's post as Assessor is the most lucrative within the gift of the Mayor. Gehner has been a deputy assessor for several years. He was an unsuccessful candidate for the Republican nomination for Sheriff last August. His salary under the ordinance relating to the Assessor's office is only $5000, but because of the added duties in receiving income tax returns for the State he will receive fees which bring the emoluments of office to $10,000.

Switch As to Dietz.

George J. Dietz, who will become Supply Commissioner, was originally considered for Assessor, but was transferred to Supply Commissioner at a later conference. His wife is a leader in women's organizations and materially furthered Miller's candidacy among women voters. G. H. Oetting, present Supply Commissioner and City Councilman, supported Louis P. Aloe in the primary, but gave Miller a 600 majority in his ward, the Second, in the election.

Dietz will purchase the city's departmental supplies.

Clyde C. Beck, who will be Police Judge, has never held public office and was never a candidate for one. He is 44 years old and his only previous experience in public affair has been in connection with civic activities. His brother, Roy M. Beck, was one of Miller's original supporters and his

CITY EMPLOYES MUST WORK FOR PUBLIC, MAYOR DECLARES

Those Who Put Personal Desires and Advancement to Fore Will Be Removed, Miller Says in Inaugural Address.

In his brief inaugural address today Mayor Miller declared his purpose to bestow his most important appointments upon "those who supported me in my political fight."

He added that if, in any case, none of his supporters is qualified for a particular position, he will look elsewhere. In the rank and file of municipal employment, he said, the charter provisions will govern appointments.

The new Mayor's speech began with asserting the honesty and fairness of his election, which his Democratic opponent, William L. Igoe, is about to contest in the courts. He said:

"Having been lawfully, fairly and honestly elected Mayor of the city of St. Louis, and having been duly inaugurated in this office, I am now the chief executive of this great city of ours.

"Under our express form of municipal government the Mayor is a servant of the people who comprise our local citizenship. The people, therefore, of St. Louis are entitled to know what they may expect of municipal government under my administration. To enumerate all the plans and ideas I have for the coming four years might prove uninteresting and might possibly place me in a very embarrassing position.

"When I became a candidate for this office I set forth my ideas of what a Mayor should be and what he should do if elected. The ideas set forth in my platform shall be my guide during the entire four years of my administration. It may be that this platform does not cover all of the minor details of government, but it covers practically all of the major problems that will confront the administration.

"In the election, party lines were somewhat disregarded. Many other complications were present. It is evident, however, that 120,000 persons who voted for me must have in a great measure subscribed to the ideas enumerated in my platform.

Pledges Nonpartisan Regime.

"I shal use every ounce of my energy and ability to justify the expectations of those who voted for me. In addition, I shall use the same energy and ability in an effort to prove that the expectations of my foes were not justified.

"The problems of government that are to be solved are of so great importance to the community, so extensive and elaborate in their execution, that my individual activities must be supplemented by the activities of a great army subordinates. Government can not successfully fulfill its purposes if it attempts to comply with the wishes of individual cliques and factions. Government in its final analysis is the will of the people.

"It is my intention to use the power given me for the benefit of all persons, regardless of their race, creed, color, or political beliefs.

"Our local form of government provides for a strictly nonpartisan administration. In the past I have advocated and in the future I shall advocate law enforcement and law obedience. It is my intention to live up to and follow strictly the charter and ordinances in the administration of public affairs.

Employes Must Give Service.

"In the selection of my personal appointees, which are comparatively few, it is my intention to seek them from those who supported me in my political fight. If, however, I cannot find men and women among those supporters who measure up to the qualifications my platform stated they must have, then of necessity I shall look elsewhere. The other employes of city government, who by far comprise the majority of the municipal employes, will be chosen in the manner prescribed by our charter and ordinances.

"I shall demand of all employes a strict and universal devotion to their duties. Those who put their personal desires and personal advancement before the public good will be promptly removed.

"In any well-regulated and successful form of government there are three important parts: (1) the written theory, such as our charter and ordinances; (2) the public officials who are to administer the laws, and (3) the citizens who comprise the community.

"To accomplish the ends for which government was created, there must be co-ordination and co-operation by and between these three elements. I believe in our theory of government. Most of our citizens believe in it. For it to be put into practical operation and result in good depends, first, upon my desire and ability, and, secondly, upon the support, co-operation and faith of the citizenship. I, therefore, ask the citizens of St. Louis, regardless of their personal opinions of me and my efforts, to put their whole soul into the activities that will confront us. If they will do so, I have great hopes that the coming four years will be years of happiness, prosperity and contentment, and these things will bring both industrial and spiritual development. Government is what the people make it. You get no more out of it than you put in. No government can long exist unless it has the respect and co-operation of the citizens. I have always tried, hard and long, to secure the respect of the people and to make myself worthy of that respect. No man is worthy in public life who does not put the welfare of the people above his individual desires and prejudices.

"In conclusion, let me assure all that my sincere desire to serve will be the guiding spirit of my administration."

OATH OF OFFICE TO WHICH MAYOR MILLER SUBSCRIBED TODAY

"I, Victor J. Miller, 6100 Pershing avenue, having been elected by the qualified voters of the City of St. Louis to the office of Mayor of the City of St. Louis, do solemnly swear that I have all the qualifications and am not subject to any of the disqualifications named in the charter for the office or employment I am about to assume; that I will support the Constitution of the United States and of this State and the Charter and ordinances of the city; that I will be influenced only by the consideration of fitness in the appointment, promotion, demotion, suspension or discharge of officers or employes; that I will not expend nor authorize the expenditure of money otherwise than for adequate consideration and efficient service to the city, and will faithfully discharge the duties of my office or employment."

Dies From Tornado Injuries.

McLEANSBORO, Ill., April 21.—The tornado that swept Southern Illinois and Indiana, on March 18, claimed one more victim here today when Letha Brockett, 85 years old, a pioneer resident of Hamilton County, succumbed to injuries and shock. Her death brought the death toll in Hamilton County

MILLER PLEDGES ADMINISTRATION FREE OF FACTION OR CREED

mile chorus preceded the first ceremony, and the same chorus later led the large audience in the rotunda in the same patriotic air, the new Mayor joining heartily in the hymn.

Miller Reads Inaugural Address.

Mayor Miller read his inaugural speech, and varied from the typewritten text only when he interposed a few words to emphasize his statement that he would appoint his political supporters to the most important places. When he read his pledge to serve the people "regardless of race, creed, color or political beliefs," he gave especial emphasis to the word "or."

He began with asserting the honesty and fairness of his election, which is to be contested by his Democratic opponent, William L. Igoe. He made a brief but emphatic allusion to his campaign pledge of law enforcement as a prime policy of his administration.

The Rev. Robert H. Atchison, rector of St. George's Episcopal Church, Miller's pastor, in his invocation, prayed that St. Louis might be delivered from the selfishness of designing politicians, from the menace of the grafter and the terror of the gangster.

"Give him courage," the minister continued, "to combat the evil forces which would seek to embarrass his administration and bring confusion upon the city. O, God, in the power of Thy might, utterly confound the foes of righteous government."

Kiel Extends Good Wishes.

"The good will and good wishes of this occasion drives away all its sadness," Kiel said. "I can, say truly, as I have said so often, that I am glad to be here with you, see you and greet you.

"St. Louis is a wonderful city. It has people with red blood, who put their shoulders to the wheel. I am indebted to the city officials, to the Board of Aldermen, and, back of them, to the members of the House of Delegates and the City Council, which existed in the first part of my official career. They have never failed to do their duty, and there has never been the slightest suspicion of wrongdoing against them.

"The man who succeeds me is a man of courage, of youth, of persistent effort, untiring in good intent. What he needs is your co-operation. Give it to him. He is your Mayor and my Mayor."

As Kiel sat down, the band played "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

First Ward, Edward L. Kuhs; Third, William F. Niederluecke; Fifth, Edward W. Wiehe; Seventh, Henry Wander; Ninth, Andrew A. Koettker; Eleventh, John A. Fett; Thirteenth, John Neu Jr.; Fifteenth, Harry P. Riefling; Seventeenth, Thomas S. Watts; Nineteenth, A. H. Niederluecke; Twenty-first, William J. Studt; Twenty-third, Clinton E. Udell; Twenty-fifth, Sylvester A. Nangle; Twenty-seventh, S. L. Wimer.

Of these, Koettker of the Ninth Ward, Neu of the Thirteenth and Riefling of the Fifteenth are new members; the others were re-elected. The Aldermen serve four years, and those from the odd and even numbered wards are elected at alternate two-year periods. The Aldermen from even-numbered wards and the President of the Board of Aldermen will be elected in 1927.

The stairway, balconies, pillar and ceiling were decorated with flags and bunting. The scene was more ornate, but not more animated, than that witnessed in the same place the night of April 7, when precinct election returns were received and compiled, while supporters of both candidates figured feverishly, from incomplete data, on the probable result.

Neun Praises Kiel and Successor.

President Neun, in his introductory speech, divided the history of St. Louis into eight epochs, the last two being the World's Fair period, 1898-1904, and the "New St. Louis" period, from 1904 to the present.

Neun asked his hearers to picture the improvements to be made within the next few years—the Memorial Plaza, the $5,000,000 Municipal Auditorium, the Courthouse and other contemplated buildings. He spoke also of the Market street widening plan, which will make the old Courthouse on Broadway the head of another plaza. Of the new Mayor and the retiring Mayor, he said:

"We are fortunate, indeed, in having in our new Mayor, Victor J. Miller, a man of great perseverance. He went through three campaigns to get where he is, and he has had all sorts of obstacles to overcome, but believing in his principles, he left nothing undone, and nothing could stop him, and today he is our Mayor. He is a fearless and courageous man, and when he tells you that he will give you an administration of law enforcement, he means it. I have known him a long while. I know he is a man of the best intentions. I know he is honest and able, and I say to you that we are fortunate indeed that St. Louis has as its Mayor, a man who has sworn to do his full duty and who goes about so doing with energy and ability.

"It makes us sad to say goodbye to a man who has worked so hard and earnestly for the uplifting of St. Louis as Henry W. Kiel. He was the Mayor of this great city for 12 years, and we have seen remarkable improvements under his administration. He has been known as a good and kindly Mayor. He is loved by all the people in this city and he has always been ready, willing and able at all times to pitch into the thick of the fray when it came towards helping this city.

"I know how he feels. I know that he is going to work on with the sole thought in his mind of continuing to help St. Louis as he has done in the past.

"Henry W. Kiel is a man who is absolutely human. He knew people better than any Mayor we ever had in this city and I believe I can say without contradiction that never again will a Mayor serve this city for 12 years. I can also say that he has made the best Mayor the City of St. Louis has ever had.

"I know that I say with the approval of you, and all the rest of the people in this city, these words, 'Henry, although you have left us officially, we will always keep in our hearts a fond spot for you. We appreciate deeply the many years of service which you have given to this city and we wish you Godspeed in your new undertakings. In regard to your great service to St. Louis we know of no greater tribute than to say, 'Well done, thou good and faithful servant.'"

Flowers Fill Mayor's Office.

With the close of the second ceremony, the Mayor made his way, with much handshaking and cheering, to his office, which was elaborately bedecked with floral offerings.

There was a floral figure of St. Louis, from the assessment division of the Water Department; a figure of a stork bearing a card of congratulations from Joe Gonnella, better known as the unworrying "Belvedere Joe," and a ladder of flowers from the Miller-for-Mayor Committee.

In this setting the new Mayor took his stand, and with smiling face received a line of visitors.

'NO FRIENDS, NO MONEY,' STABS SELF FATALLY WITH ICE PICK

August Goebel, 49, Inmate of City Infirmary, Declared He Was "Tired of It All."

"I've no friends and no money, so what's the use?" remarked August Goebel, 49 years old, a widower, to a policeman after Goebel had stabbed himself six times in the abdomen with an ice pick at City Infirmary, where he was an inmate, yesterday. "I'm tired of it all," he concluded.

He had been found in the basement of the Infirmary with the ice pick beside him. Attendents said he had been ill and apparently despondent.

He gave the policeman the name of a woman on South Broadway. "You might tell her if I die," he said.

MAN CRITICALLY INJURED BY MISSOURI PACIFIC TRAIN

James Posey Struck When Standing on Tracks at 5300 Manchester—Unable to Give Address.

James Posey was struck and critically injured by a Missouri Pacific train as he stood on the tracks at 5300 Manchester avenue watching work on two automobiles which had collided nearby at 11:30 a. m. today. Posey, who was too badly injured to be able to give his address, did not see the oncoming train until it had struck him. He suffered fractured ribs, fractured skull and internal injuries. He is apparently about 55 years old.

CARTOONIST JAILED FOR 'DRAWING' CHECK

His Fiancee Also Held When They Call for Ring, but She Forgives Him.

The desire to impress his fiancee with his solvency and generosity landed Louis L. Silberkraus, a free-lance cartoonist, of Schenectady, N. Y., in the holdover last night.

Silberkraus told the police that he and Miss Hazel Heatherton, who is 21 years old, came to St. Louis from Decatur, Ill., four days ago. They were to be married next Sunday. In the interim, Miss Heatherton was staying with relatives in Maplewood. Last Saturday Silberkraus took her to the J. L. Freund jewlery store at 314 North Sixth street, where she chose her engagement ring. It cost $400. Something was wrong with the setting, so they left it to be fixed. Silberkraus also left a check for $400 drawn on the City National Bank of Decatur.

Miss Heatherton returned to the home of her relatives and told them of the ring. Her description so impressed her 16-year-old niece that she demanded to be taken to the store to see it. Silberkraus accompanied her there late yesterday afternoon. She saw the ring, praised it, and they left. But just as they stepped out of the door, detectives arrested Silberkraus. His check had been returned marked "no account."

Miss Heatherton is held at the matron's quarters at police headquarters. Silberkraus is in a cell. Last night he told detectives that he had given the check simply to impress his intended.

"I am a plain idiot. I'm not worrying so much about the check for my father will fix that, but I wish you would go and ask Miss Heatherton if she will still marry me—in spite of everything."

Miss Heatherton was seen, and the question popped.

"Tell him," she said, "tell him that I'll marry him—in spite of everything."

Address by the President.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—President Coolidge today accepted an invitation to deliver an address at the ceremonies here May 3 in connection with the laying of a corner stone for the new Jewish Community Center building.

PAINLEVE TAKES HOLD IN A STORM OVER CAILLAUX

"CALLED BEST MEN," PAINLEVE REPLIES

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 21.—Joseph Caillaux, ending in triumph his long journey from prison to power, today took his place on the Government bench during the reading of the Painleve ministerial declaration. But his triumph was not a peaceful one, for throughout the reading there was continual outbursts of criticism, hissing and booing whenever the new Finance Minister's name was mentioned.

When the statement was completed Deputy Charles Bertrand began a vitriolic attack upon Caillaux. France learned of Caillaux's presence in the Cabinet "with veritable stupor," declared Bertrand, interpolating the Government on the appointment of the present Finance Minister.

"France has not yet reached the point where she must choose between Caillaux and bankruptcy. There is something graver than financial bankruptcy. It is moral bankruptcy," declared Bertrand.

Cheers for "The Tiger."

A tumult broke out in the chamber when Bertrand referred to the dark days of 1917 and compared Caillaux's role with that of Clemenceau. At the mention of the latter's name the right rose and cheered lustily, while the left countered with equally violent manifestations. Caillaux's friends held their own during the demonstration but the Finance Minister himself did not speak a single word.

Bertrand reviewed the arrest, trial and sentence of Caillaux and read the text of the judgment.

"You might have asked for a review of your trial," said Bertrand. "If you were really innocent you would have been rehabilitated. But you preferred to re-enter here through the back door of amnesty.

"When it was time to obey, you tried to command. When it was time to hope, you doubted France. We consider your presence a challenge to our dead."

Other orators continued the attack upon Caillaux. Jean Goy, who does not belong to any party, but who always voted with Herriot, said, "It is a singular method to restore the confidence of the country by calling as Minister of Finance a man who lacked confidence in France. If Caillaux was right, our soldiers were wrong."

"I desired," he said, "to call to my post in my Cabinet the most able man. I thus called Caillaux to the finances, as during the war I called to the supreme command Foch and Petain."

Ministerial Declaration.

The ultimate imposition of drastic financial measures, maintenance of the embassy at the Vatican and pacification of internal tension, but above all real security for France, were the prime points in the ministerial declaration.

Finance has had a "bitter disillusionment," the statement declared, but was "determined to look the facts in the face."

The statement appealed to "the moral concord" with reference to finances as well as to the Ruhr question.

"Boos" for Caillaux.

A tumult in the Chamber of Deputies and absolute silence in the Senate greeted the ministerial declaration, when its reading began at 3 o'clock this afternoon after several hours of feverish consultation by the Cabinet and last minute changes in the document.

In the Chamber there was both booing and cheering. Finance Minister Caillaux was greeted with cries of "Bolo! Bolo!"—a reference to the executed war-time traitor, Bolo Pasha, with whom Caillaux at one time was accused of association. Order was finally restored when Premier Painleve began reading the declaration amidst impressive silence.

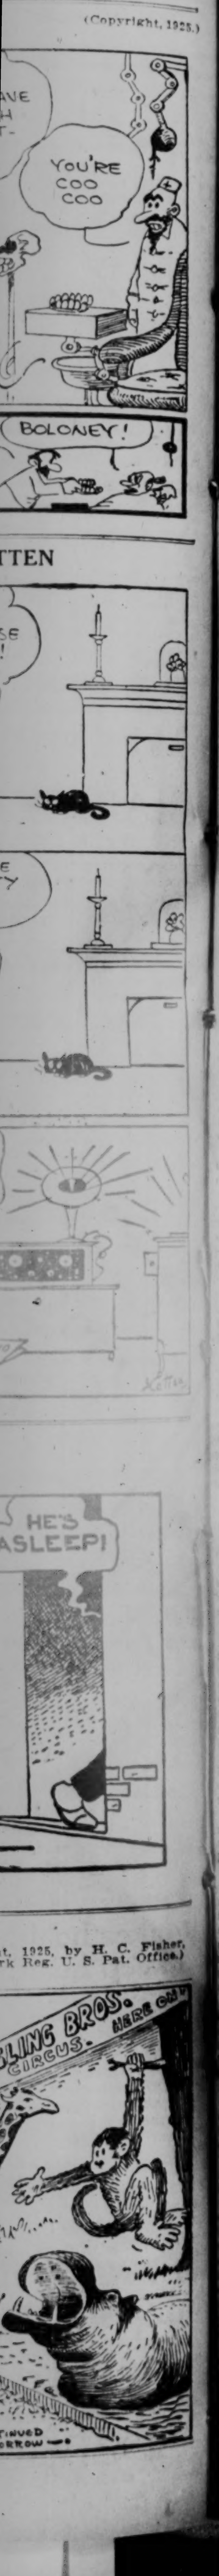

To Ask "Big Sacrifices."

Regarding the finances the ministerial statement declared:

"When we have succeeded finally and definitely in balancing the budget so it cannot be questioned, we will take the State out of the hands of banker, which it has been unable to fill. Then we will be obliged to ask big sacrifices of the nation. We shall appeal to all citizens in the atmosphere of national concord."

The statement said France would maintain all her present treaties and "pursue the execution of the Dawes plan at the same time as the settlement of the interallied war debts."

The Government pronounced in favor of the maintenance of a diplomatic representative at the Vatican, calling the official "a highly qualified representative," instead of an ambassador.

The declaration makes the reduction and reorganization of the army contingent upon success of the negotiations for the complete tranquilization of Europe and security of the Fernch frontiers.

Caution in Alsace.

The Government said it would go slowly and carefully in applying the French laws to Alsace and Lorraine.

"This," it added, "cannot be pursued except with the best of counsel, in full respect for acquired rights and the greatest care for general understanding and for national unity."

Applause Only Once.

During the reading of the declaration in the Senate there was applause only when Jules Steeg, the Minister of Justice, voiced the passage regarding the security of Europe.

There was ironical laughter at the phrase "no useless controversies."

After the reading the Senate adjourned until Thursday morning, awaiting the Chamber's decision on the new ministry and Premier Painleve's appearance in that chamber.

OUTWITTED ROBBER

MISS GRACE LAWSON.

WOMAN SAVES $367 WHEN HELD UP ON STREET

Determination of Miss Grace Lawson, cashier of the Y. W. C. A. cafeteria at 4295 Olive street, saved $367 in currency which she was taking to the bank for the establishment, in a holdup on a busy street at 2:30 p. m. yesterday.

Miss Lawson, 23 years old, who resides at 4340 Olive street, today told how she got the better of the two young men who tried to rob her.

"I started out for the Missouri National Bank, 4068 Olive street, following my daily custom," she said, "carrying the little money satchel. A short distance east of the cafeteria, at Boyle avenue, I noticed two well-dressed young men in a Chevrolet coupe, stopped there. One was complaining because the other wouldn't do something or other. I walked down Olive street another block, and almost at Whittier street I saw this same car turn out of Whittier and pull up to the curb next to me.

"One of the fellows jumped out and said, 'Give it here,' and tried to grab the satchel. I turned and faced the building wall and screamed, and clutched the satchel in my arms. He tried to snatch it from me, but I got in the corner and continued to scream.

"He kept trying to grab the satchel, but people who heard ...

TESTIMONY FOR DEFENSE BEGUN IN WHEELER CASE

Purpose of "Putting All Facts Before the Jury" Is Announced by Attorneys.

By the Associated Press.

GREAT FALLS, Mont., April 21.—Without asking for a directed verdict in favor of Senator Burton K. Wheeler, defense counsel in his trial here on charges of wrongfully using his influence with the Department of the Interior, went forward today with its announced purpose of "putting all the facts before the jury."

"We don't want a directed verdict," declared W. F. O'Leary, one of Wheeler's attorneys. "We want every opportunity for giving all the facts to the jury for determination of guilt or innocence."

George B. Hayes, the Government's star witness against the Montana Senator, was the first to be called to the stand.

Bolo!"—a reference to the executed war-time traffor, Bolo Pasha, with whom Caillaux at one time was accused of association. Order was finally restored and Premier Painleve began reading the declaration amidst impressive silence.

To Ask "Big Sacrifices."

Regarding the finances the ministerial statement declared:

"When we have succeeded finally and definitely in balancing the budget so it cannot be questioned, we will take the State out of the role of banker, which it has been made to fill. Then we will be obliged to ask big sacrifices of the nation. We shall appeal to all citizens in the atmosphere of national concord."

The statement said France would maintain all her present treaties and "pursue the execution of the Dawes plan at the same time as the settlement of the interallied war debts."

The Government pronounced in favor of the maintenance of a diplomatic representative at the Vatican, calling the official "a highly qualified representative," instead of an ambassador.

The declaration makes the reduction and reorganization of the army contingent upon success of the negotiations for the complete tranquilization of Europe and security of the French frontiers.

Caution in Alsace.

The Government said it would go slowly and carefully in applying the French laws to Alsace and Lorraine.

"This," it added, "cannot be pursued except with the best of counsel, in full respect for acquired rights and the greatest care for general understanding and for national unity."

Applause Only Once.

During the reading of the declaration in the Senate there was applause only when Jules Steeg, the Minister of Justice, voiced the passage regarding the security of Europe.

There was ironical laughter at the phrase "no useless controversies."

After the reading the Senate adjourned until Thursday morning, awaiting the Chamber's decision on the new ministry and Premier Painleve's appearance in the upper chamber.

Security the First Essential.

The declaration reaffirmed the Herriot Ministry's policy of security and reassured Poland as to France's position on this question.

"Faithful to all its allies, just and pacific toward all nations," says the statement, "France has the profound desire to give to the world the repose and stability of which it has such great need; but the first conditions of a stable peace is that France herself be secure."

"We shall work to prepare for the reconciliation of Europe, without which our civilization is in danger of foundering," said the declaration.

The declaration made a square appeal for a union of parties: "We invite co-operation by all the citizens of France who place national sentiment above party passion and private interests."

In proposing the maintenance of a Vatican representative, the declaration said, "All members of the Government, whatever may be their doctrinal conviction, are agreed on asking you in the name of general interests not to reopen a useless controversy which is harmful to the national credit."

Painleve concluded the declaration amid one of the greatest demonstrations that ever occurred in the chamber, with the applause and denunciation about evenly divided. The frequent interruption caused him to take 45 minutes to read a statement of 1500 words.

Caillaux appeared absolutely unmoved throughout the demonstration even when a group on the Right, at the mention of the word "Justice," kept shouting "High Court! High Court for Caillaux!"

The Painleve declaration promised hearty support for the League of Nations and advocated that all countries be made members, this referring to Germany.

Church and State.

The recommendation for the Vatican envoy was made because of the "necessity for taking into account the requirements of national concord and the delicate conditions of world politics. While we will respect all beliefs and are determined to avoid troubling consciences, the Government remains attached to the law separating the church and the state, and will apply it with equal quantities of tact and firmness."

The Government also asked the Chamber to avoid discussion of the financial question which would likely develop misunderstandings, because of the necessity of "maintaining financial stability, without which ruin would threaten our firesides."

Premier Painleve's reference to French debts in his ministerial statement today was taken as presaging early action by Finance Minister Caillaux toward funding negotiations.

IRISH MINISTER INJURED

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Timothy A. Smiddy, Irish Minister to Washington, is suffering from severe bruises inflicted when the horse he was riding collided with the automobile of Mrs. Alexander Louden, wife of the secretary of the Dutch Legation. Mrs. Louden is suffering from shock. The collision occurred late yesterday in Rock Creek Park. Prof. Smiddy's horse was so badly injured he had to be killed.

OUTWITTED ROBBER

WOMAN SAVES $367 WHEN HELD UP ON STREET

Determination of Miss Grace Lawson, cashier of the Y. W. C. A. cafeteria at 4295 Olive street, saved $367 in currency which she was taking to the bank for the establishment, in a holdup on a busy street at 2:30 p. m. yesterday.

Miss Lawson, 23 years old, who resides at 4340 Olive street, today told how she got the better of the two young men who tried to rob her.

"I started out for the Missouri National Bank, 4068 Olive street, following my daily custom," she said, "carrying the little money satchel. A short distance east of the cafeteria, at Boyle avenue, I noticed two well-dressed young men in a Chevrolet coupe, stopped there. One was complaining because the other wouldn't do something or other. I walked down Olive street another block, and almost at Whittier street I saw this same car turn out of Whittier and pull up to the curb next to me.

"One of the fellows jumped out and said, 'Give it here,' and tried to grab the satchel. I turned and faced the building wall and screamed, and clutched the satchel in my arms. He tried to snatch it from me, but I got in the corner and continued to scream.

"He kept trying to grab the satchel, but people, who heard my screams came near and frightened him away. He jumped on the running board of the car, which the other fellow was driving slowly, and hit so hard that he broke the glass in the door. They drove west in Olive street."

After this ordeal, Miss Lawson fainted and felt ill yesterday as a result, but was all right again today.

There are numerous shops on Olive street in the vicinity of Whittier and heavy traffic passes there.

MAY DEDUCT 'GAS' TAX IN FEDERAL INCOME RETURNS

Users of Fuel Whose Vehicles Are Employed in Business Benefit by Ruling.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Users of motor vehicle fuel upon which State taxes are levied may deduct these taxes in their Federal income returns provided the vehicle is employed for business purposes.

Solicitor Green, of the Internal Revenue Bureau, made the ruling today in an interpretation of the gasoline tax laws of Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia. The ruling applies to all states having such levies.

The opinion also held that gasoline dealers may deduct from their returns all of the amounts received from consumers as State taxes.

"The tax on motor vehicle fuel imposed by the States of Maryland and Virginia and by the District of Columbia," the opinion said, "is deductable only by the dealer or distributor against whom it is levied and by whom it is paid. If the tax is made a part of the expenses of the business of the distributor or dealer or a part of the cost of the fuel sold, it cannot be deducted separately as a tax item, but may be deducted as a part of the business expenses, or treated as a part of the cost of the fuel sold.

"Purchasers of the fuel for business purposes may include as a part of the cost of the fuel any addition to the price made by the dealer or distributor to cover the tax levied upon him."

40-acre tract and 80 per cent of the gross proceeds will be equitably prorated among the stockholders."

One of the buyers of Mecca shares, whose purchase is the basis of one count of the indictment was Ezra Watt of Lincoln, Ill. A letter from Carew to Watt, set out in the indictment, shows that Watt bought 25 shares and received this acknowledgment: "You will find this one of the most interesting investments you ever made. I believe you would be acting wisely to increase your holdings at this time while you still have the opportunity at 50 cents a share."

Other investors, whose purchases are the bases of other counts, were George W. Graves of Winchester, Mass.; Andrew Smith of Chicago, Dr. Nelle M. Watters of Chicago, William A. Dau of Philadelphia and Raymond E. Filia of Washington, Mo. The penalty for using the mails to defraud upon conviction may be as high as a $10,000 fine and 10 years in the penitentiary.

TESTIMONY FOR DEFENSE BEGUN IN WHEELER CASE

Purpose of "Putting All Facts Before the Jury" Is Announced by Attorneys.

By the Associated Press.

GREAT FALLS, Mont., April 21.—Without asking for a directed verdict in favor of Senator Burton K. Wheeler, defense counsel in his trial here on charges of wrongfully using his influence with the Department of the Interior, went forward today with its announced purpose of "putting all the facts before the jury."

"We don't want a directed verdict," declared W. F. O'Leary, one of Wheeler's attorneys. "We want every opportunity for giving all the facts to the jury for determination of guilt or innocence."

George B. Hayes, the Government's star witness against the Montana Senator, was the first to be called to the stand.

Questioned by Walsh.

Under questioning by Senator Thomas J. Walsh of defense counsel, Hayes said that he was called before the Brookhart committee investigating the Department of Justice in connection with the Hart-Goroni prohibition case in New York. Hart formerly was Federal prohibition director of New York.

Asked by Walsh whether he met Wheeler in Washington the first time he went before the Brookhart committee, Hayes declared he had not.

H. C. Glosser, former secretary to Gordon Campbell, Montana oil operator for whom Wheeler is alleged to have acted before the Interior Department in prosecuting oil prospecting claims, was recalled to the stand. He was a Government witness.

Glosser denied when questioned by Walsh that he told Fred Munrer in Lewistown, Mont., last January that Wheeler didn't have anything to do with Government permits," that he was "employed to protect Campbell from L. C. Stevenson." Stevenson is a rival operator in the Montana oil fields. He brought a receivership suit against Campbell in 1923.

Tom Stout, former Montana Congressman, who said he conducted the negotiations between Campbell and Wheeler, testified that Wheeler told him that he "would be unable to represent Campbell in any public land affairs." He was employed primarily to defend the receivership suit brought against Campbell by Stevenson, Stout said.

The Government late yesterday abruptly rested its case, after having called to the stand its surprise witness, George B. Hayes, New York attorney, who testified that the Montana Senator asked him to appear in his stead before the Interior Department in behalf of Wheeler's client, Gordon Campbell, Montana oil operator.

When called to the stand by the Government, Edward S. Booth, former Solicitor of the Interior Department testified he forwarded a copy of the status of Campbell's claims in the Interior Department to Hayes in New York with a view to his interest in a re-financing scheme. This, Booth testified, was done as a favor to Wheeler and Campbell, who had asked him to be on the lookout for an investor who might be interested.

Tells of Talk With Wheeler.

According to Hayes' testimony, the only connection he ever had with the Campbell concern was his conversation in New York with Senator Wheeler, who did not discuss the matter of re-financing, but rather asked him to represent the Campbell interests before the Interior Department. Wheeler promised to split his fee with him, Hayes testified, adding that the Montana Senator alluded to "millions" in referring to the size of his retainer.

Formation of "Wheeler Defense Committee" Announced.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Formation of a "Wheeler defense committee" to relieve Senator Burton K. Wheeler of the expense arising from his double indictment in Washington and Montana, was announced here today, with Norman Hapgood designated as chairman. A statement issued by the committee said the public should take a direct interest, "in the fundamental principles involved in the Wheeler case." Membership of the committee was announced as including William Allen White, Josephus Daniels, Samuel Untermeyer, Oswald Garrison Villard and a number of labor leaders and others.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 21.—After deciding upon awards for 1925 of the Pulitzer prizes in journalism and letters, the Advisory Board of the School of Journalism, Columbia University, has announced that the awards will be made public April 27. The prizes provided for under the will of Joseph Pulitzer, will be conferred at the commencement exercises June 3.

Those who attended the meeting yesterday were Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University; Solomon B Griffin of the Springfield Republican; Arthur M. Howe, Brooklyn Daily Eagle; Victor F. Lawson, Chicago Daily News; Rober Lincoln O'Brien, Boston Herald; Edward Mitchell, New York Herald-Tribune; Joseph Pulitzer, St. Louis Post-Dispatch; Ralph Pulitzer, The World; Melvin E. Stone, Associated Press; Ralph Ogden, New York Times; Alfred Holman of San Francisco, and Jerome Landfield, secretary of the Advisory Board.

W. L. STORDEVANT HEADS COMMISSION FOR BLIND

W. L. Sturdevant, an attorney, with offices in the Central National Bank Building, has been elected president of the Missouri Commission for the Blind, members of which were recently appointed by Gov. Baker. Other officers elected at a meeting held last Saturday in Sturdevant's office are Henry Guhleman of Jefferson City, vice president, and Arthur Baer of St. Louis, secretary-treasurer.

The other two members of the commission are Walter Over of Joplin and A. W. Klunder of Kansas City. Baer and Sturdevant are the only members who served on the commission during Gov. Hyde's administration. Plans for the work of the commission, which includes work for the conservation of vision and home teaching of the blind, were discussed at the meeting.

'SHAME TO CLOG U. S. COURTS WITH PETTY RUM CASES'

Mrs. Willebrandt, Assistant U. S. Attorney-General, Addresses 1200 Women at Luncheon.

"It's a shame that a community will allow a lot of petty liquor cases to congest the docket of its Federal Court," Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney-General of the United States, declared in a speech here yesterday.

The address was given at a luncheon at Hotel Chase of the Board of Religious Organizations, and 1200 women were present to hear the woman who has supervision of the Federal prohibition prosecutions for the entire country.

Mrs. Willebrandt, in her address, reiterated the statement published yesterday that prohibition will only be enforced when communities use their state and county courts and police forces to see that the law is obeyed.

Dockets Cluttered.

"Almost every Federal Court docket in the country is cluttered up with a lot of petty, unimportant liquor cases," Mrs. Willebrandt said. "Hip pocket cases, truck drivers caught with a case of whisky, saloon keepers who sold whisky over the bar—they're all on the docket when they ought to be prosecuted by the State. It's a shame that a community will allow its Federal Court to be busied with such petty cases when the Federal Court ought to be trying the big violators, the wholesale bootleggers, the men who conspire to violate the prohibition laws on a wholesale scale."

Mrs. Willebrandt pointed out that the eighteenth amendment gives the State concurrent power with the Federal Government in enforcing prohibition.

"So see that your State officials do not wink at the law," she urged. "Keep a watch on them. A good official likes to be watched and a dishonest official ought to be.

Grave Consequences.

"When the public comes to realize the grave consequences of violating the prohibition laws, which are already showing in a widespread disregard for all laws, it will come to the conclusion that prohibition must be enforced just like the other statutes.

"Even the fellow who doesn't like prohibition will see that it is obeyed. He will direct his efforts not at breaking the law but at having it repealed or modified if he doesn't like it."

Mrs. Willebrandt declared that honest citizens who wink at the operations of the bootlegger and look upon him as "an innocent criminal" will find that "they have hugged a wildcat to their civic bosom."

"The bootlegger can't flourish without tarnishing officialdom," she said. "He can't get along unless your police force, prosecuting officials and judges are at least winking at his operations. The consequence is a general breakdown of the machinery of justice."

LIQUOR VENTURE FAILS

SIR BRODERICK HARTWELL.

Jack Kotyak, 14, Wanted a Key Made, But Broken Receptacle Arouses Suspicions.

Because it was too much trouble to hammer open the coin boxes he took from pay telephones, 14-year-old Jack Kotyak ventured into the Mound City Key Co., 910 Pine street, yesterday to have a key made to speed up his operations.

A broken coin box brought along to be fitted aroused the suspicions of employes in the place and resulted in a call for detectives, to whom the boy explained just why he wanted the key.

Sunday night, he related, he got into the Benish Cafeteria, 710 Olive street, through an alley window, and after unlocking the outer box of a telephone, had to spend considerable time before he succeeded in forcing open the inner one to get the $2.40 it contained. The same thing occurred two weeks ago when he robbed a telephone box in Ninth street, between Pine and Chestnut, of $2.14, and again a little later when he had to pound one open in Lind Grocer Co., Seventh street and Lucas avenue, to get $2.70. He had been able to get a key made for the outside boxes, he explained, and all he needed now was another for the inner ones and he could save a lot of time and make a lot of money.

He was taken to the House of Detention to await action by the Juvenile Court. He already is a ward of the court as a result of previous delinquency, but resided with his mother, Mrs. Sophia Kotyak, 1213 North Thirteenth street.

SIFT OF HISTORIC RUINS

LONDON, April 21.—The Daily Mail understands that the late Marquis Curzon bequeathed to the nation two historic ruins on his estates, namely Tattershal Castle Lincolnshire, and Bodiam Castle, Sussex. The former was built about 1440 and the latter 1386.

It was from Tattershall that the famous fireplaces were taken in 1911, supposedly to be sent to the United States, causing an outcry among antiquarians. Lord Curzon saved and restored them to the castle which he bought when he acquired Bodiam.

DEFEAT OF BARONET PLEASES DRY AGENTS

More Surprises for Sir Broderick If He Attempts Another Liquor Shipment.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 21.—There is no record at the Customs House, Coast Guard or prohibition headquarters here of a seizure that can be traced directly to Sir Broderick Hartwell's smuggling syndicate. Authorities believe that his losses were suffered through the interception of several small lots en route from "rum row."

R. Q. Merrick, chief enforcement officer for this district and Assistant Solicitor Barnes of the Customs House, both expressed great pleasure at the Baronet's admission of defeat in London yesterday.

"Reports from my agents on Long Island and along the Jersey Coast convince me the rum-runners are having the hardest time they ever had to land their goods," declared Merrick. "I honestly believe those 2300 cases we seized at Montauk Point last week are all that have reached shore in a good many days."

"We have a few plans laid for Sir Broderick that will surprise him even more if he makes another attempt," commented Barnes. "Of course, they are secret."

Investigation of the Hartwell story also revealed that virtually the only "liquor" being run ashore now is a colored, flavored, 160 per cent alcoholic product manufactured in Belgium and Germany, and known to the Federal agents as "Scotch Malt." By adding water, they say, this extract is cut to half strength by the bootleggers, bottled and labeled, and the resulting product sold as "whisky."

'TRUE LIFE' STORY MAY CLEAR UP ROSE GALINSKY KILLING

Belleville States Attorney to See Robber in Oklahoma noted as Witness.

State's Attorney Lindauer of Belleville will depart for McAllister, Ok., tonight to investigate a story told by William Overstreet, a convicted bank robber, relative to the killing of Rose Galinsky. The woman was killed in a resort conducted by Dale Stamper near East St. Louis. Louis Bernero, a former bartender in the Stamper resort is held on a charge of murder.

The Post-Dispatch in its "True Life Stories" recently published Overstreet's statement that he witnessed the shooting in which the Galinsky woman was killed. Overstreet charged Bernero with the killing.

"I want to investigate the story as told to the Post-Dispatch and if Overstreet repeats the story to me I will have a strong case against Bernero whereas it was only a weak one before," the prosecutor said.

Rebec on Bond, Rearrested.

PARIS, Ill., April 21.—William Rebec, St. Louis member of the Egan gang, held for shooting Floyd Haverstic, was admitted to $5000 bail yesterday. He was rearrested on a warrant from Indiana. Gov. Small has honored a requisition for the prisoner. It is said his attorneys will resist surrender of prisoner to Indiana officers.

AIR TARGETS HIT IN 48 PER CENT OF TESTS

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—During the recent anti-aircraft practices of the United States fleet in the Pacific hits were scored upon 48 per cent of the sleeve targets towed by airplanes in simulation of attack of hostile flying craft against surface vessels, Secretary Wilbur has announced. The sleeve targets were shot down in two battleship practices and one light cruiser practice.

The sleeve targets were towed by bombing planes at an altitude of 4000 to 5000 feet. Vessels reporting anti-aircraft practice included 16 battleships and two light cruisers. Forty-two practices were reported, 26 by battleships and six by cruisers. Four anti-aircraft guns were fired in a salvo by the battleships and two by the cruisers.

In 20 practices the towed sleeve targets were about one-eleventh the size of the planes that towed them. Secretary Wilbur said he thought it would be conservative to say that if the targets were as large as the planes that would engage in bombing operations hits would be scored in 95 per cent of the attacks.

The navy has developed a more modern and powerful anti-aircraft gun than those used by the coast artillery at the recent practice at Fort Monroe, Va., when the army guns failed to score a single hit against targets towed by air service pilots.

Few Ex-Service Men Out of a Job.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Employment among rehabilitated former service men has improved considerably in the last year, the Veterans' Bureau announces, on the basis of reports from its 75 regional officers. Only 493 rehabilitated veterans were reported as out of employment during January, charged with 1424 in January, 1924, while the figure for February, this year, was 414, against 1312 for the same month last year.

Warns Middle-Aged Women to Check High Blood Pressure

Thousands of women at the changing time of life are in danger of high blood pressure. It is caused by poisonous waste matter accumulating in the system or the weakening of one or more organs. This forces the heart to do more work and raises blood pressure.

The symptoms are dizziness, shortness of breath, head pains, flushed face, nervousness or sleeplessness. High blood pressure must be treated and stopped, for everyone knows it brings on Bright's disease, apoplexy and often sudden death. It is too dangerous and quick acting to go without heeding its symptoms.

Norma is a doctor's prescription for high blood pressure that has been used with great success.

Being a purely vegetable medicine, it contains no habit-forming drugs, is harmless, and works in such a way that it drives out waste matter, lessens the duty of the over-taxed heart and reduces blood pressure swiftly and safely. Often one bottle brings great relief. Get a bottle of Norma today and free yourself of life shortening high blood pressure. Before the iron cools too much, the thermo-disc turns on the current and keeps the iron at perfect ironing temperature always.

THE first practical use to be made of John Spencer's epoch-making idea is in an electric iron. It gives to women what they have wanted for years—perfect ironing temperature. It is the greatest improvement in electric irons since the first iron was built.

Women always have wanted an iron that would never overheat, even if they forgot to turn off the current if called away suddenly.

The Spencer thermostat shuts off the current automatically when the iron begins to get too hot. And then, when the iron begins to cool, switches back the current.

Never too hot. Never too cool. Perfect even temperature always—automatically. No need, now, to ever pull an iron plug while ironing.

SENTENCED FOR THEFT FROM INSANE VETERAN

Former Guardian Gets Three Years on Pleading Guilty of Embezzlement.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PIEDMONT, Mo., April 21.—Grover C. Stephens, attorney, former member of the Republican State Committee and once a candidate for the State Senate from this district, has been sentenced to three years in the penitentiary on his plea of guilty to the charge of embezzling approximately $5000 from the estate of James Bearden, insane World War veteran, while acting as the guardian of Bearden.

Stephens was sentenced yesterday by Judge Frank Kelley of Cape Girardeau, who is presiding during the present special term of the Wayne County Circuit Court in the place of Judge E. M. Dearing, who is ill. Stephens recently was indicted by a Federal grand jury at Cape Girardeau for the embezzlement of funds from the Bearden estate. Bearden is a ward of the Federal Government and his estate consisted of compensation he received for injuries suffered in the World War. A Deputy United States Marshal arrived here Saturday to arrest Stephens on the Federal indictment, but was induced by the attorneys for the State and representatives of Stephens not to make the arrest, to give Stephens an opportunity to plead guilty to the State charge.

Stephens will be held by authorities for this county for several days to enable him to appear as a witness for the State in several criminal cases which will come up for trial this week. Stephens is expected to appear as a witness for the State in the cases of Albinn O. Daniel, attorney and former law partner of Stephens, who is charged in three separate counts with forgery, embezzlement and arson.

Capacity of Single Cable Doubled

By the Associated Press.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 21.—A new development by which a single telephone cable, scarcely more than two inches in diameter, will be able to carry nearly twice the present maximum of 1200 simultaneous conversations, was announced by the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. before the Rhode Island Utilities Commission today.

THESE are new Papers; a tremendous Range of selection of latest designs and effects. All first quality. Up-to-date in every way. Wall Papers that will give pleasure in their fine color tones and superior excellence.

Every facility for comfortable selection of the paper you desire. Dozens of extra sample books for personal inspection.

Roll, 15c

In this group a particularly large assembly of attractive papers for every room in the house. You will find surprising values here.

Roll, 20c

Very fine patterns. Stipple effects and the much desired mottles and polychrome papers. Also, in 30-inch widths, the favored crex-texture papers. Also in waxed tile effects for kitchen and bath. Many beautiful floral, small-figured and conventional designs, modern in every way.

Roll, 45c

In this group you will find papers that well justify their unusual beauty and art. Many of them are adaptations of very individual imports. In this sale you can secure these very preferential papers for the price you would regularly pay for ordinary wall paper. Beautiful brocade effects, self-tone and two-tone papers, that impart a rich atmosphere. Many distinctive designs, including French, floral and conventional.

PAPER HANGING

Your own paper hanger can hang these papers under your own arrangement. Delivery made as instructed. Or we will be glad to have our own large staff of experienced wall paper hangers do the work at prices we believe to be as low as, if not lower, than elsewhere, measured by first-class and satisfactory work.

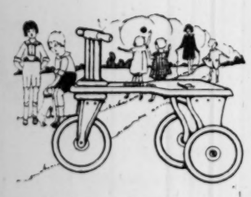

BORDERS IF DESIRED AT ½ REGULAR MARKED PRICE

Many people do not prefer borders, and we do not specify their purchase where desired. However, borders will be sold, not at their customary price, but at exactly one-half of the regular and originally marked retail price.

SOFIA POLICE KILL ALLEGED HEAD OF BOMBING PLOT

Capt. Yankoff Slain by Officers After He Fires at Them and Throws Bombs.

By the Associated Press.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, April 21.—Capt. Yankoff, who is alleged to have been the head of the conspiracy for the bombing of the Sveti Kral Cathedral Thursday, was killed by the police early this morning.

Capt. Yankoff, for nine hours, held off the besieging police, who were determined to capture him alive. After opening fire on the police and throwing the bombs he had with him, he barricaded himself in the cellar.

The police sent one of Yankoff's accomplices, Kodjelkoff, a former army officer, who was arrested a few days ago, to induce Yankoff to surrender. Kodjelkoff, however, joined his comrade for defensive purposes, the two renewing the firing which was kept up for several hours.

The siege was ended by bombs thrown into the house by the police finally wrecking it and setting it on fire. From the ruins the bodies of the two men were ultimately taken out.

Capt. Ninkoff, subchief of the Sofia Communist Central Executive Committee, who also was concerned in the cathedral plot, was shot and killed yesterday when he resisted arrest.

The Government is still using strong forces of military and police to prevent further development of the plot, which, it is alleged, aimed at overthrowing the present regime.

The police declare the bombing of the cathedral had long been planned and that it was carried out through bribery of a sacristan and a young student. The latter, they say, went to the roof of the cathedral shortly before the funeral for the assassinated General Georghieff, and lit the time fuse of the bomb.

Paying Jobs Promised.

Near the cathedral, the authorities say, other accomplices were waiting to carry out further assassinations and outrages. The communists are said to have promised lucrative positions in the new Government to numerous army officers. Many of these men have been arrested.

That the anti-communist elements are ready to form a kind of sacred union in the face of common danger seems to be evidenced by the words of the Socialist leader Pastoukoff, who in a message to the world democracy says:

"Last week's events were the forerunner of the creation of a soviet republic in Bulgaria. As a Socialist, I criticised the present Government and shall continue to do so, but it is an error to think that the present doings are an outgrowth of the Government's policy. They are based on an attempt to destroy the peace of Bulgaria and the Balkans, with the ultimate aim of destroying the peace of all civilized countries."

Bulgarian Refugees In Flight From Terroristic Courts

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

ROME, April 21.—Radio advices received from Belgrade report numerous statements from Bulgarian refugees fleeing from Tsankoff's white terror tribunals now busy meting out punishment to members of Macedonian parties.

Nineteen persons found carrying guns were sentenced yesterday to a total of 94 years hard labor, while 1000 more were arrested trying to cross the frontier into Serbia. Citizens are liable to arrest for carrying arms, for traveling without military permits, for telephone communication.

All cables are being censored. Domiciliary arrests are following searches of all suspected houses. Premier Tsankoff is determined to suppress the revolution with the mailed fist and is showing no mercy.

FALLS TO DEATH FROM LEDGE

Body of Newark (O.) Man Found Near Scenic Mountain Spot.

By the Associated Press.

GLOBE, Ariz., April 21.—F. L. Windle of Newark, O., fell to his death last Wednesday from a mountain ledge near the natural bridge, 90 miles from here, it was learned here last night. His body was found by visitors to the scenic spot. A Coroner's jury which investigated the case brought in a verdict declaring that Windle came to his death through accident.

Liner Crashes Into Vessel at Dock.

By the Associated Press.

LIVERPOOL, April 21.—The White Star liner Celtic, while backing up the Mersey today prior to landing her passengers, crashed into the steamer Hampshire Coast, buckling the latter's steel plates. The Hampshire Coast is a small steel coast steamer of 787 tons. Liverpool is her home port. The Celtic was slightly damaged, but was not delayed in docking and will sail on May 2, as scheduled.

DESCRIBES STEPS BEING TAKEN TO SUPPRESS FRAUDS

MANY OF DIFFERENT SCHEMES EXPLAINED

Scope of Work Includes Honesty in Advertising Campaign as Well as Advice on Investments.

How fraudulent stock promoters, bucket shops, suit and furniture clubs auction sales and other like enterprises operate to fleece the public, and steps that are being taken to suppress them, was described by H. W. Riehl, manager of the Better Business Bureau of St. Louis, before the St. Louis Dental Society, at Hotel Jefferson, last night.

His subject was "The Progress of Common Honesty," a theme which he said was fostered by the "Truth in Advertising" campaign, and was being supported by between 50 and 100 national and international organizations, such as Rotary clubs, by 300 advertising clubs, by merchants' organizations —in short, the business world generally. The machinery to promote this aim was to be found in the creation of Better Business Bureaus, which have been established in various cities, he said.

Accomplishments of Bureaus.

"Through the operations of these bureaus," the speaker continued, "old-established trade terms, misleading, to be sure, have become a thing of the past. Panama hats today mean just what the advertising says. The public can buy with the full assurance that the advertising is truthful, or they have a recourse, and a friendly one, to the Better Business Bureau of its city.

"Merchants, by the way, through the adoption of standards, are just as zealous as the bureau to see that advertising is specific and truthful, for here again common honesty is recognized as an important adjunct to the plan of building and conserving public confidence.

The advisability of trade associations adopting certain codes of ethics or standards of practices Riehl declared, had been approved by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, but complaint was made that "its vulnerable point lay in inherent lack of means of enforcement."

"This short terse sentence," he continued, "embodies the fundamental reason for the existence of the Better Business Bureau movement, or, as it is commonly known, the truth in advertising movement. The Better Business Bureaus of these various cities are specialized in the handling of specific trade evils and the anlysis of illegitimate trade practices in the fighting of misleading and deceptive advertising, unfair competition, and in the enforcing of existing laws against those who are inclined to be fraudulent. Trained in fraud work, specialized in the tactics of the unscrupulous, these organizations have prevented the activities of all these groups to a point where they are able to combat successfully the machinations of the illegitimate."

Investment Frauds Investigated.

In the field of investigation of investment frauds, the bureaus also have taken a lead in recent years, the speaker asserted. The need for it was made apparent, he pointed out, when the United States Treasury itself recently estimated that $1,000,000,000 annually was lost in such frauds.

"The story of sucker lists is a story in itself," he continued. "There are places in Chicago and New York where you can buy so many thousand 'suckers' for a certain price per hundred or per thousand. Regular businesses are established in these cities for the buying and selling of 'sucker' names. The old axiom, 'once a sucker always a sucker,' is played to the limit in this business. If you have ever answered one of the lurid prospectuses which are so familiar to all of us, having received them in copious quantities from those fertile States of Texas and Oklahoma, you are now and forever on some one's 'sucker' list. Your name is bought and sold like so much merchandise at so much per head."

STOP PAINS QUICK With CRIMSON HEAT

Try it—Time it

You'll say it's magic, the way this enemy of pain works its way through the pores of your skin, and draws the blood from the congested, painful joints and muscles to the surface removing the cause of pain immediately.

The pain stops right off—vanishes; the soreness of joints and muscles disappears. Imagine the joy of such relief—immediately.

All you need do to get relief with wonderful CRIMSON HEAT is to gently rub it into the skin over the affected part. You'll see the pores practically "eat it up," you see the reddening glow of the skin caused by the blood being drawn away from the congested part to the surface. A comforting feeling of warmth follows, a soothing feeling due to relief of the congestion, and with it the realization that the pain has gone, vanished, disappeared.

If you suffer you should know what a blessing this remarkable, penetrating, pain-killing ointment is. Remember, CRIMSON HEAT, made only by The Alpen Co., St. Louis, Mo., stops pain and soreness every time. See for yourself—get a 25c tube of CRIMSON HEAT at any good druggist, especially Judge & Dolph Drug Stores, Wolff-Wilson, Johnson Bros. and Enderle Drug Co.

PLEDGE BY COUNTY COURT TO CONFER WITH ROADS BODY

Members Agree to Accept Co-operation of Advisory Committee on Expenditures.

An agreement has been signed by the members of the St. Louis County Court, or administrative body, pledging themselves to confer and co-operate with the Good Roads Advisory Committee, which was appointed under the auspices of the St. Louis County Permanent Road and Bridge Association, in the expenditure of funds under the proposed $5,000,000 road bond issue.

The association, which is working for passage of the bond issue at a special election next Tuesday, regards this agreement as important in the safeguarding of the funds. While the Advisory Committee would have no direct authority, since the County Court cannot delegate its powers, and while the agreement does not bind the court to act as requested by the Advisory Committee, James M. Jensen, chairman of the association, believes there is no question but that the committee's recommendations would be followed.

Text of Agreement.

The text of the agreement, which bears the date of April 17, and is addressed to the St. Louis County Permanent Road and Bridge Association, at its University City headquarters, follows:

"We, the undersigned members of the County Court of St. Louis County, Missouri, hereby pledge ourselves to confer with and accept the hearty co-operation of the members of the Advisory Committee or their duly elected successors, in the expenditure of road bond funds on the public highways of St. Louis County during our entire incumbency."

This was signed by Presiding Judge Smiley, a Democrat, and Associate Judges Preiss and Bohring, Republicans. Their terms expire Dec. 31, 1926. The work contemplated under the bond issue may require three or four years. The agreement was made public after Judge Smiley affixed his signature yesterday.

Advisory Committeemen.

Members of the Advisory Committee are: Jensen, Dan Sheerin, Frank J. Boehm, Warren C. Flynn, Henry Schulz, Fred G. Zeibig, Frederick H. Semple, Jacob Studt, Dr. S. J. Will, Joseph Pondrom and Chris von Gruben. The first five named were selected by authorities of the five suburbs in which they reside, while the other six were chosen as representatives of the townships, at a meeting of the road association.

The following public meetings in behalf of the bond issue have been called for 8 p. m. tomorrow: Kirkwood, city hall; Valley Park, Sacred Heart Auditorium; Shrewsbury, Shrewsbury Park Hall; Gumbo, Snyder's Hall; Riverview Gardens, Walker's store; Luxemuburg, Engler's Hall.

On Tuesday the county voters also will act on a proposed $715,000 bond issue for a new courthouse, jail and garage for county equipment.

FOUR PERSONS KILLED IN MISSOURI CROSSING SMASH

Stock Raiser, His Two Sons and Another Youth, Fatally Hurt When Train Hits Auto.

By the Associated Press.

MOBERLY, Mo., April 21.—Four persons were killed yesterday afternoon at Dalton, 35 miles west of here, when Wabash passenger train No. 2, struck an automobile at a grade crossing.

Those killed were:

Carl Kuhlman, 60 years old.

Kuhlman's two sons, 17 and 22 years old.

Tony Vernol, 12.

Three of the party were killed outright. The 17-year-old Kuhlman boy was alive when the physicians started to bring him to Moberly, but he died at Salisbury.

Kuhlman was a prominent stock raiser living near Dalton, and he and his two sons and the Vernol boy had been loading stock at Dalton yesterday.

PLANS DRIVE FOR $150,000 FOR NEW CHRISTIAN HOSPITAL

Plans for the campaign to raise $150,000 for the new Christian Hospital, under construction at Carter and Newstead avenues, were outlined at a meeting of a campaign committee last night at the old Christian Hospital, Grand boulevard and Palm street.

Solicitation of industries in North St. Louis started today in advance of the regular campaign to be conducted from May 4 to May 15. Paul J. Wielandy, general chairman, stressed the fact last night that North St. Louis should be particularly interested in the hospital because of the scarcity of hospitals in that section of the city.

California Strike Bill Is Passed.

By the Associated Press.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 21.—The Senate has passed and sent to the Governor the Burns-Cornblower bill to provide where there is a strike or labor trouble, no employer or any other person shall solicit or secure persons to fill the places of employes without making known the fact that such labor trouble exists.

Fire Damages London Music Hall.

PARIS, April 21.—The Alhambra Music Hall this morning was damaged by fire believed to have been caused by a short circuit. The flames were discovered coming from a place behind the stage used for storing scenery. The ceiling above the stage fell half an hour later, but the iron curtain protected the auditorium, where the damage was limited to the first 10 rows of stalls. Built as the Prince Imperial Theater in 1866, the structure passed under various names until 1903, when it was christened the Alhambra. It is conducted along the lines of an English music hall, presenting English in the American style.

TURNER-HALLIDAY FEDERAL CHARGES ARE DISMISSED

District Attorney Curry Drops Case on Order From Department of Justice at Washington.

The Federal prosecution of Harry Turned and George V. Halliday, on the charge of counterfeiting the obligations of a foreign government, has been finally dropped. District Attorney Curry dismissed the case late yesterday on an order from the Department of Justice at Washington. The United States Supreme Court, Jan. 12, sustained the ruling of Judge Faris, who held that the case was one for the State courts, and that the Federal Court lacked jurisdiction.

Halliday, a former bond broker, was convicted of forgery in connection with the same case, in the State courts, and is under five years' sentence on that conviction, another three years on a conviction in an unrelated case. He has appealed from both convictions. He was an accomplice in marketing the bonds taken in the Egan gang's downtown mail robbery of two years ago, and he testified for the Government in the gangsters' recent trial.

Turner was tried in the State courts on a forgery charge and acquitted, so that the action of the Federal prosecutor means the end of the case for him.

Turner is editor of Much Ado, a monthly publication. The charge against him and Halliday was based on the engraving and printing of $1,500,000 of bogus interim certificates of J. P. Morgan & Co., for French Government bonds, on which Halliday obtained loans from two banks. Turner admitted having helped to get the engraving work done, but maintained that his part was an innocent one, and that he thought some stock certificates were being prepared.

German Revenue Above Estimates.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 21.—The revenue returns of the Federal Government for the year ending March 31 show an excess over the estimates of more than 2,000,000,000 marks. The income tax returns exceeded the estimates by 900,000,000 marks. The customs excise yielded 450,000,000 marks more than was anticipated, while the total revenue was 7,311,000,000 marks, against an estimates total of 5,023,000,000.

Constipation is a serious, insidious disease. Over forty dangerous diseases can be traced to it. And minor ills, such as unpleasant breath, headaches, blotchy complexion.

Don't let constipation send its poisons into your body, not even for one day. Get permanent relief with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. It has brought health to thousands—after people have suffered for years, and all else has failed.

It will bring sure relief to you! Kellogg's is ALL BRAN. That is why doctors recommend it. That is why it is guaranteed to be permanently effective, if eaten regularly, or the purchase price will be returned by your grocer. Nothing but ALL-BRAN brings sure relief in the most chronic cases.

Eat at least two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Delicious with fruits. Try it in muffins, and other recipes given on every package.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is nature's own way of cleaning the intestine. It is made in Battle Creek, Michigan, and served at leading restaurants everywhere. Your grocer sells it,

Johnson's Wax Electric Polisher

RENT this Johnson's Wax Electric Polisher from us and polish your floors yourself the new, easy, electric way. It saves time and money and does the work much better than it can possibly be done by hand, because the revolving brushes create a friction which burnishes the wax to a beautiful, hard, even gloss.

We rent the Johnson Wax Electric Polisher by the day or week for a nominal sum. Telephone and make an appointment for it. You can easily do all the floors and linoleum in your house in a day. We deliver the Electric Polisher and call for it.

The new Johnson method makes the waxing of floors mere child's play. It takes only a few minutes—requires no stooping or kneeling—and you don't need to touch your hands to the floor or the wax.

JOHNSON'S LIQUID WAX

All you do is pour Liquid Wax on a Lamb's-wool Mop and apply a thin, even coat to the floor. This cleans the floor and, at the same time, deposits a thin film of Wax which the Electric Polisher will quickly bring to a beautiful, artistic, durable polish. It takes only a few minutes and is as easy as running a carpet sweeper.

MILLER LISTS $2200 PERSONAL EXPENSES

Victor J. Miller's statement of personal expenses, in his campaign for the mayoralty, filed today with the Recorder of Deeds, lists expenditures of $2200. This statement does include expenditures in his behalf by the Republican City Committee or other organizations or intervidiuals.

The new Mayor listed three items, as follows: Jan. 19, $1000, Miller-for-Mayor Club, for printing, stamps and office; Jan. 26, $200, filing fee, to Republican City Central Committee; March 26, $1000, to same committee, as contribution. His was one of a large number of such statements filed today by candidates at the recent municipal election, both defeated and successful.

Nolte Spent $1193.

Comptroller Nolte spent $1193 in his re-election, of which $1000 was a contribution to the Republican committee, $160 for filing fee and $33 for printing and advertising.

Fred L. Denby, treasurer of the Citizens' School Board Campaign Committee, filed a statement of the expenses in behalf of its slate, showing receipts of $2408.70 and disbursements, chiefly for clerical hire and printing, of $2386.52. Among the larger subscribers were: Aaron S. Rauh, $150; Edward Mallinckrodt and Clarence H. Howard, $100; and $50 each: Harry B. Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. N. H. McMillan, Festus J. Wade, Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney Dry Goods Co., Lansing F. Smith, American Educational Society, Mrs. Elias Michael, Ernest W. Stix, W. H. Danforth, trustee; H. H. Langenberg, M. J. May, et al.; L. R. Carter, H. F. Knight, N. S. Magruder, Ernest A Green and Irving Bettman.

Grimm's Expenses.

Former Circuit Judge Grimm expended $457 in his unsuccessful campaign for the Republican nomination for the mayoralty. Of this amount, $100 was for filing fee, $37 for cards and the balance for other forms of advertising.

The Republican Aldermen were required to expend $36 as filing fee in the primary and $50 in the general election. Samuel L. Wimer, Twenty-seventh Ward Alderman, listed only these two items for the two elections. Above the filing fee, expenditures were consumed in printing and advertising, all the aldermanic statements showed. The amounts were:

Edward L. Kuhs, First Ward, $321.50; Andrew Koettker, Ninth Ward, $645; A. H. Niederluecke, Nineteenth Ward, $336; William F. Niederluecke, Third Ward, $543.50; Clinton E. Udell, Twenty-third Ward, $524; William J. Studt, Twenty-first Ward, $409; Edward W. Wiehe, Fifth Ward, $516; Harry P. Riefling, Fifteenth Ward, $424.74; Henry Wander, Seventh Ward, $324.50; Thomas S. Watts, Seventeenth Ward, $480, Sylvester A. Nangle, Twenty-fifth Ward, $386, and John A. Fett, Eleventh Ward, $351.50.

Wander's Statement.

Exception was noted in the statement of Alderman Wander of the Seventh Ward, who gave the City Committee, which failed to support him in the primary, only $150, instead of $250, as his filing fee.

Henry Felberbaum expended $513 in his unsuccessful campaign for Alderman from the Twenty-third Ward in the Republican primary; Otto W. Vossmeyer, similarly, in the Twenty-first expended $69; Felix Herschman in the Nineteenth, $44; and Herman Krah, in the Thirteenth, $136.

PETITION FILED FOR SALE OF YACHT SEIZED NEAR CAHOKIA

Action is Directed Against Owners, Six of Whom Were Fined for Transporting Liquor.

A petition was filed in the Belleville County Court late yesterday afternoon by Assistant State's Attorney Lindauer, asking Judge Weber to enter an order on the docket for the sale of the yacht "Asp," which was seized in the Mississippi River near Cahokia, Dec. 13 last year, with a cargo of $12,000 worth of liquor.

The petition is directed against Henry Miller, William Durrett, Stoyan Evanoff, Peter Staoule, Sam S. Tolanoiv, August Torrilleaux and John K. Johnoff. The first six pleaded guilty to charges of transporting liquor on March 30 last and were each fined $500 and costs. Johnoff is made a defendant in the petition with the other six on the grounds that he owns the vessel together with the other six men. On March 30 Judge Weber also entered an order to destroy the liquor.

The hearing on the petition to sell the yacht will be held on June 5 before Judge Weber.

Opium Worth $41,000 on Ship.

By the Associated Press.

VANCOUVER, B. C., April 20.—Opium, the wholesale value of which was placed at $41,000, has been turned over to American and Canadian authorities by officers of the Blue Funnel Liner Achilles, who discovered it in two lots aboard their ship during the past few days. The first lot, consisting of 290 tins, was discovered just before the ship left Seattle for Vancouver and was placed in the custody of the United States customs authorities. The second cache, 300 tins, was found after the vessel had cleared for this port, where it was turned over to the Canadian customs officers. The shipment is one of the largest ever discovered aboard a deep-sea vessel between the two ports.

DAWES DECLARES SENATE SUBVERTS CONSTITUTION

Says Rules Permit One Member to Block Purpose of Majority to Legislate.

URGES 'SQUARE DEAL' FOR THE PEOPLE

Purpose of Cloture Not to Prevent Debate — Defense of Rules Like Monarchical Argument.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 21.—Vice-President Dawes, speaking today at the annual luncheon of the Associated Press, gave his views on reform of the rules of United States Senate.

Frank B. Noyes, president of the Associated Press, introduced Dawes as a man with a "wonderful record of achievement," "a radiant personality," and one who "has now cut out for himself a man-sized job."

Speaking at the twenty-fifth anniversary luncheon at the Waldorf-Astoria, the Vice President said that the movement for limitation of debate in the Senate was non-partisan, non-sectional and patriotic.

"The issue," he said, "is this: Shall the Senate continue unchanged its existing rules which admittedly make possible at times the exercise by a minority or even one Senator of power to block the purpose of a majority of the Senate to legislate?"

"It is apparent," he continued, "that the rules give every Senator a square deal, but it is imperative that they give the American people a square deal."

Subversive of Constitution.

The extra-constitutional powers of Senators in this connection, Dawes said, were subversive of the principles of representative constitutional government.

Answering several arguments against cloture rule, the Vice President said:

"The purpose is not to prevent Senators from fully debating a question, but to make impossible the prolonging of debate to prevent a majority from settling a question."

Dawes appealed to citizens to make known to their individual Senators their attitude on the question.

Old Monarchical Argument.

"No argument is sound to the effect that, to protect a majority of the Senate and of the American people from themselves, it is necessary to put them at the end of a session at the mercy of either a Senate minority or of any one United States Senator.

"It is in effect and in changed form the old argument upholding the principles of monarchical and despotic government—the argument that minorities or individuals know better what is good for the people than the majority of the people themselves.

"All the lawful restraints the people have imposed on themselves should be and are found in the limitations of the Constitution and not in the rules of the Senate. Any restraint upon the people imposed by a Senate rule is a usurped governmental power not found in the Constitution.

"Perhaps there was a time when the discussion of incidental phases of this question might have created oratorical fog banks and smoke screens around the real issue, hiding it from the mind and conscience of the American people, but for years the average citizen has had the operations of the United States Senate under his eye, and he understands what is involved.

"He knows there is at question the possession, in certain circumstances, of power by minorities and individual members of the Senate, which is greater, at times, than the veto power exercised by the President of the United States."

PRESIDENT OF "A P" SAYS IT AIMS AT ACCURACY IN NEWS AND NON-PARTISANSHIP

Frank B. Noyes, at Annual Dinner of Association, Tells Two Stories to Illustrate Adherence to Facts by Its Reporters.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 21.—In addressing the members of the Associated Press at their annual luncheon and introducing Vice-President Dawes as the speaker of the event, Frank B. Noyes, president of the association, said:

"By a series of subtle executive encroachments I have succeeded in establishing, in practice at least, the right of exhorting you briefly on the ideals of the Associated Press on these annual occasions, and on this, the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Associated Press in its present form, I have no intention of waiving any of my prerogatives — even usurped ones.

"I find that even within our membership are those who only dimly realize our purposes.

"I begin, therefore, at the beginning. You who are gathered here today are the Associated Press. There is no entity with a separate interest. The Associated Press is merely the instrumentality through which 1200 member newspapers exchange news, one with the other, and also collect original news through a staff employed by these same 1200 newspapers.

"Your organization is purely democratic, non-profitmaking.

"For purposes of administration you select 15 newspaper men connected with member newspapers who act as your trustees.

Nonpartisan News.

"The news service which you require and receive must be nonpartisan in the broadest sense, it must be without bias of any sort, and it must be as accurate as is humanly possible.

"These principles were laid down by Victor F. Lawson and Melville E. Stone and their assistants more than 30 years ago and are the very foundation of the organization as it exists today.

"I do not, of course, claim that there have not been the failings to which any human institution is subjected—but these have been individual errors and not an intentional departure from the principles laid down.

"With the Associated Press the case is entirely different and designedly so.

"The members of this organization have no thought of delegating to the officers or the board of directors of the Associated Press the duty or the privilege of doing their thinking for them, of determining what is the right of any public question, or either advocating or opposing any cause or individual.

Capacity of People.

"Years ago Mr. Stone in publicly discussing this question said: 'There is an underlying belief that the American people are capable of self-government. If so, they must be able to form a judgment, and we conceive it to be of the greatest importance that the people be given the facts free from the slightest bias, leaving to them the business of forming their own judgment.'

"Only recently we had two cases that clearly illustrated the different angles of approach to occurrences of the Associated Press and its proprietary contemporaries.

"In the first instance the Associated Press carried a dispatch from London stating that according to a Lisbon dispatch to the Sunday Express, Port Alexander, a small island in the Portuguese colony of Angola, West Africa, had been suddenly submerged in the sea and had completely disappeared. No details had been received but a considerable loss of life was feared as the islet, which was 4000 square yards in area, was inhabited by Portuguese and native settlers.

"Following its much criticised drab and unimaginative custom the Associated Press proceeded to check up on this story, but was outpaced in this endeavor by a competitor who came through with this thriller:

"'Lisbon, Jan. 27.—Reports from Africa reveal that the little island of Port Alexander has disappeared as if by magic under the sea. Scores of dead bodies and floating debris are all that remain of the once populous and prosperous port. The cause of the disaster is unknown but it is presumed that a subterranean earthquake caused a tidal wave. Details are meager and confusing. A few gibbering madmen were picked up by vessels standing by near the spot where the port once was, and from these survivors it was gathered that the sea suddenly heaved mountain high, then dropped in a swirling maelstrom, engulfing the island.'

What Actually Happened.

"One day only after this harrowing dispatch appeared came the result of our 'check up' in this form: 'Lisbon, Portugal, Jan. 28.—Recent reports that Port Alexander, a small island in the Portuguese colony of Angolia, West Africa, had recently sunk in the sea were denied today by the Minister of Colonies. An official statement declared that only a sand bank, 100 meters long, on Port Alexander, had been submerged. It was added that there were no casualties as the submerged portion was not inhabited.'

"No scores of dead bodies, no sea heaving mountains high engulfing a once prosperous and populous port, no gibbering madmen picked up by nearby vessels—only a simple little sand pit 100 meters long submerged with no loss of life.

"One sentence in the barrage of horror of our competitor seems to have had a basis of fact. It says, 'Details are meager and confusing.' The statement that it was from the 'gibbering madmen' that these details were gathered adds artistic verisimilitude, even though these particular madmen proved to be nonexistent.

Interpretive Embroidery.

"The second case was one of interpretive embroidery with which our correspondents and desk men are not permitted to daily.

"'Old woman' is the curious name of a hamlet consisting of a roadhouse and a few cabins, and is approximately the half-way point on an Alaskan 90-mile trail from Unalakilk to Kaltag. This settlement has figured in recent stories about the diphtheria scourge at Nome. One such story was brough from Anchorage on Jan. 31 by the Associated Press, which told of the race of Seppala and his dog team to deliver a second supply of antitoxin. It contained the following sentence: 'The last report received placed Seppala at Old Woman, near Norton Sound, which is an arm of the Bering Sea' with his dogs in full run.'

"The other news service also distributed a story about Seppala and his dog team some hours after we carried the foregoing. Here is the way it covered the same incident: "'Last word of Seppala received today by radio told of an aged Eskimo woman who had seen Seppala on the trail near Unalakleet. 'It was Seppala the Finn,' she said, 'I knew him but he did not stop. He was going like the wind.'

"Thus are our modern miracles performed and the huts of an Alaskan hamlet are tranferred into an aged though vocal testifier to the news enterprise of an esteemed competitor, affording a pleasant variance from the gibbering madmen of another day.

"And so by easy steps I have reached the time for the exercise of a second cherished prerogative and that of the offering of the only toast in which it is our custom to indulge on these annual occasions.

"Last year you will remember we had the pleasure of drinking (and for the benefit of those who hear but do not see, I add that our beverage is entirely lawful) the health of the President, who had come into his office through a tragedy.

"Today I toast the same office and the same man, but today holding that office in his own right, the choice by an unexampled vote of the American people.

"On one point the eager partisanship of the individual members of the Associated Press vanished. We all delight to honor this great and affection for the great and typical American who fills it.

"I am sure that I express the heartfelt wishes of all within the range of my voice when I invite you to drink the health of the President of the United States, Calvin Coolidge, and the charming and gracious lady of the White House.

"I have already mentioned today that portion of the creed of the Associated Press that forbids on its part any partisanship, any bias, any tendency to be pro this or anti that to anything.

"We report a program, but express no views to the propriety or efficacy of pogroms. We report a murder trial, but do not ourselves find the accused either guilty or guiltless. We report a seizure of the Ruhr without in any way expressing an opinion as to whether or not the facts justify the seizure.

"In all cases we aim to give the facts and the facts only.

"We are to have the pleasure of listening today to a man who has a wonderful record of achievement.

"When this country entered the world war he was a successful business man, his work in France as the American purchasing agent and in the co-ordination of the supply service of the allies and ourselves was of extraordinary efficiency, his formulation of and putting into effect the budget system in the period following the war was a most notable achievement, he headed the international commission which evolved the plan for dealing with the German reparations which bears his name, an accomplishment that in itself would have been glory enough for one man.

"He has now cut out for himself a man-sized job.

"You will, most of you, remember the story of the man who prayed for assistance in a fist fight upon which he was about to engage: 'But, he said, 'if you feel, oh Lord, that you can't take sides in this scrimmage, I advise you, if you have nothing particular to do, to stick around for a little while and you will see the gol-darndest pret-

PLAN NATION-WIDE INVESTIGATION OF FARM PROBLEMS

Agricultural Experiment Station Directors Adopt Program at Convention Here.

TO FOLLOW OUT SIX LINES OF RESEARCH

Will Give Special Attention to Study of Vitamine Content of Agricultural Products for Food.

The two-day conference of Agricultural Experiment Station Directors, held here to discuss phases of research to be undertaken under the Purnell Act, which provides all stations with an appropriation of $20,000 for the next fiscal year, closed shortly after noon today with the adoption of a nation-wide program for investigating the problems of the farmer.

Six specific lines of research, under the heads of agricultural economics, home economics, sociology and production were decided upon.

Under the first, distribution and marketing of farm products and the problem of surpluses of farm products will receive primary attention. Vitamine content of foods in relation to human nutrition, and rural home management problems will be the subjects of special research under the home economics heading, and in the sociological field, research will turn to special study of rural social organizations and agencies essential to a permanent and efficient agriculture. Study of facts influencing the production and quality of meat will be the course given most attention under the production heading.

Inspect Vesper Farm.

This afternoon the visitors, who include Secretary of Agriculture Jardine, 20 college presidents and representatives from experiment stations in all parts of the country, visited points of especial interest to station directors. One group will inspect the dairy farm of F. W. A. Vesper on the Telegraph road in St. Louis County, and another will visit the Missouri Botanical (Shaw's) Garden. A third party will be conducted through the mills of the Ralston Purina Co.

The chief event on yesterday's program was the paper read at a luncheon at Hotel Statler by Secretary Jardine, explaining the purpose and scope of the Purnell Act and reminding station directors of the responsibilities entailed by expenditure of an appropriation three times as large as any previously received. Under the act, $20,000 will be paid to each station next year and the amount will be increased by $10,000 yearly until the $60,000 maximum is reached in 1930. The appropriations will then aggregate $2,880,000 a year.

"Will Mark a New Epoch."

"The primary purpose of the Purnell Act," the Secretary said, "is to develop further investigation and experiment. It is designed to give aid to a growing concern. It recognizes that each State already has an experiment station with its organization, its administrative machinery and other basic facilities for research and it attempts to build on top of what already exists. It is the strongest testimony of confidence in the power of organized agricultural research this Government has ever expressed and will mark a new epoch in the history of experiment stations.

"Every effort should be made," he pointed out, "to avoid a type of superficial investigation which now has been outgrown. Problems of fundamental importance should be attacked with full knowledge of other investigations in order to avoid wasteful duplication. Since the beginning of the farm depression, the demand for help has been insistent and the experiment stations have been doing their utmost to serve while hampered by stationary revenues against mounting operating costs. The Purnell Act is the Government's answer to this appeal for help."

Vast Field for Investigation.

Following the Secretary's address, papers were read by Dr. Louise Stanley, Chief of the U. S. Bureau of Home Economics, and Director Abby L. Mariatt of the home economics department of the University of Wisconsin. Both offered suggestions for further research in the home economics field, pointing out that such phases of study as child clothing, the farmer's heat and fuel problem, housing and household equipment and the farm wife's budget had been scarcely touched upon. Aside from these problems, they declared, there is also an immense field for further investigation in the fields of food and nutrition. This study might best be carried out, Director Mariatt said, by close co-operation of research workers with phy-

COOLIDGE POINTS WAY TO AVOID LAW INTRUSIONS

Government Impositions Will Be Unnecessary if Individuals Act Correctly, President Says.

EXECUTIVE TALKS AT D. A. R. CONVENTION

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Speaking at the annual convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution at Memorial Continental Hall, President Coolidge commended the restrictive immigration law and declared that the people could avoid the interposition of organized Government in their private affairs by adopting "a thorough system of individual self-government."

The President last night said the Daughters of the American Revolution could not have attained their present influence and large enrollment of members—145,000—if the society had not possessed "a genius for useful accomplishment."

"It seems always to have been part of your creed," he continued, "that if people were expected to love their country, that country must be worthy of their affection. So you have sought by your example and works, as well as by your precepts, to make this country deserving of the loyalty, the devotion and the love of all its people. Herein you have performed the highest work of civic usefulness."

Checking Immigration.

One of the worthy enterprises of the society, the President said, was that of welcoming immigrants on arrival at Ellis Island and helping them to become adjusted to their new environments. The President's praise of this activity gave him the cue for his remarks on the new immigration law.

"In the last few years," he said, "we have entered on a new policy toward immigration. It is still rather experimental, but with every appearance of being likely to secure permanent acceptance.

"Restriction of immigration is nothing less than a revolutionary change from the older days when we boasted that this country offered refuge and opportunity, liberty and security to all who desired them. The policy of restriction seemed necessary in view of the certainty that unprecedented numbers would flow to us from Europe following the war, more than we could be sure of assimilating, more than European countries could well spare.

Problem of Assimilation.

"Had there been no limitations, the number of newcomers among us in the last four years would probably have been several millions greater. If we had been called upon to receive and place such a number, it may well be doubted whether they would have found their condition here much better than it was in Europe. Certainly our problem of helping them adjust themselves to the new conditions and the hard competition of such a situation would have been far more difficult.

"It is manifestly impossible to know how many immigrants would have come in the last four years if no restrictions had been imposed. But competent official authorities have estimated that 2,000,000 more would have come in each of these four years, or over three times as many as did actually come. We may well doubt whether that would have been to the advantage of either them or the country."

Benefits of Foreign Culture.

Such work as that being done by the Daughters of the American Revolution was described by the President as contributing to the "spiritual unification" of the people of the United States. America, he said, could gain much from its immigrants. "In the diversification of our culture, the broadening of our interests, the development of our literature and arts, the formation of a rounded, symmetrical national character, they can help us vastly," he said. "We shall best serve both them and ourselves if we shall fully recognize this mutuality of interest."

In telling of the educational work of the Daughters among the native population, the President especially mentioned the "torch of educational opportunity," which they lighted in the Southern Appalachians—a neglected region which had been "curiously isolated from the march of westward progress."

Ideals of the Past.

Coming to the second main theme of his address, the President

Karolyi's Suppressed Story

Tells How Fund Raised In United States Was Spent

Urges That $16,300 Remaining Be Invested and Used Later to Carry on Propaganda Against Horthy Administration.

THE Post-Dispatch prints today the seventh of a series of articles written by Count Karolyi of Hungary, telling the story he could not reveal in speeches in this country because of a pledge exacted from him by the State Department in Washington before the Hungarian exile was permitted to land in the United States. The publication is already familiar with this "gagging" of Karolyi. Now that he has left the country, he has written for the Post-Dispatch the things he wanted to say to the American people.

By COUNT MICHAEL KAROLYI.

MONTREAL, Que., April 21.

THE question of the money I raised in America and what became of it has been raised frequently and I want to meet it squarely and fully.

I feel that I am under a moral obligation to tell the Hungarians of America what I have done with the money and what I intend to do with it in the future. But I must emphasize that I feel only a moral obligation toward those who still adhere to those principles for which the money was given. Men likes Berko and others who have abandoned democracy, and who no longer fight for universal suffrage, land and social reforms, but who are fighting against them, have no right to interfere with my affairs and give me advice as to how the money should be used. The supporters of the Horthy dictatorship, which is in vivid contrast with all those ideas for which the money was given at that time, have no right to instructions about it as they have become traitors to the cause. The claim which Berko and others filed with the Allien Property Custodian to get the money cannot be regarded as serious, as my sole ownership of the money is indisputable.

The Balkan War Issue.

Early in the year 1914, I was eagerly preparing for the general elections which were to be held in 1915. Through the Balkan wars, foreign policy was one of the foremost issues and in this question the parties were forced to take the side of the Balkan Alliance, or the side of the Turks. Taking the side of the Turks meant reinforcing the German Alliance. Those who were for the Balkan Alliance against Turkish oppression were backing up the allied policy. I was sure as soon as the Balkan war had begun that the clash between the Central Powers and the Allies was inevitable, but I did not think it would come so soon. We tried to explain to the masses what was going on, and what the meaning of the Balkan war was.

The second great issue was universal suffrage. I wanted to have a tryout in favor of universal suffrage for I was pretty sure that if the large masses of the people had the possibility of expressing themselves, they would be easily persuaded to back up the Balkan Alliance and so indirectly get out of the German sphere and into closer relationship with the entente.

For winning the campaign we had to find funds to counterbalance the corruption which was going on at the elections. The only way was to take up vigorous propaganda. It was at this time, at a dinner party, that I met for the first time, Mr. Alexander Konta, an American business man of Hungarian origin, in the company of Count Albert Apponyi.

Decided to Come to U. S.

Konta was explaining to Apponyi how good it would be if he would go over to America and that surely it would be possible to raise money for the party purposes. Apponyi didn't take the bait. Konta couldn't persuade him. The chief reason for this was that Apponyi didn't want to take a decisive part on this delicate issue of being for or against the Balkan alliance. In fact, it was difficult for a person like Apponyi who was officially the leader of the Independence party of Hungary, which wanted the separation of Hungary from Austria, to campaign for the German alliance which was the greatest support of that very policy which helped Austria to deny Hungary its independence.

Konta could not persuade Apponyi, but he did fascinate me and I decided then and there, to the amazement of Apponyi, to go to America. In the party committee the voyage to America was discussed. Apponyi made all sorts of objections and tried to prevent it. He was backed up by the majority of the party and when I saw that he had set his mind on my not going, I withdrew the proposition and said I didn't need the official support of the party.

As I was trying to have the support of all the Hungarians living in America, I invited the Social Democratic party to join me and to send out one of their leaders. The thing that Apponyi kept repeating, over and over again, was that this journey would be a failure. He said that he knew America, and that I did not know the insurmountable difficulties with which one had to deal. For example, he pointed out that of the 700,000 Hungarians living in America a great portion are non-Magyars, and that these Slavs and Rumanians would break up my meetings.

At these objections I had to smile. What was true in Apponyi's case was not true in mine. Apponyi, one of the champions of those who wanted to oppress the non-Magyar nationalities in Hungary, would certainly encounter difficulties and his meetings, as it had already happened in other years, would have been disturbed by the Slavs and the Rumanians in the Middle West of America. But I know that these very nationalities, knowing that I was against their oppression would not attack me. And so it happened.

Press Supported Him.

The Slavs and Rumanians of America took a very friendly attitude toward me. I made an agreement with the Socialists that I would give them 15 per cent of the money that we raised together during the campaign. The Hungarian daily papers were competing with each other as to which should back me most. Each of them tried in a way to monopolize me to gain publicity for themselves. The newspaper which came out stronger than all the rest was that belonging to Mr. Berko, called "Amerikai Magyar Nepszava," the very paper which is now attacking me in a most unfair manner.

I carried on the campaign under this slogan: "Right, bread and land for the people"; we were agitating for the independence of Hungary, for democracy, universal suffrage and for land reform. Mr. Berko in the questions which he put to me asked whether I agreed that the campaign in 1914 was made solely for the independence of Hungary; and that since this independence had actually been accomplished, the fund raised should be given for some charitable purpose. Well, certainly it should not. If Mr. Berko has a bad memory, I can suggest to him that he read one of the American-Hungarian papers on this subject.

In 1914 I made two trips to America. The first one I made alone in the beginning of March. The second time I was accompanied by five members of my party and one of the Socialist leaders. On every occasion, beside indicating the aims of the campaign in all the newspapers, it was explicitly stated that the money was to be given to me, to be used at my own discretion without any obligation of accounting for it. Mr. Alexander Konta made the same statement again during my recent stay in America. But if there is any doubt as to the purpose of this campaign, the papers of that time will give all the necessary information.

The campaign was conducted in such a manner that wherever a meeting was held the local organizers deducted from the amount of the collection all the expenses of the meeting and turned the remainder over to me.

Raised Total of $37,000.

This campaign started on July 5, 1914, and we were in action for only three weeks. Dduring this time we had collected so much money that, with accrued interest, it amounted to $37,000. In the midst of the campaign we were forced to discontinue when the news of the ultimatum of the Austro-Hungarian Government to Serbia reached us.

I left New York on July 29, leaving behind me four of my companions, Bela Barabas, Lehel Hedervari, Barna Buza and the Socialist, Sigismund Kunfi. Kunfi succeeded in going back to Hungary within a very short time, but the three others stayed a month longer, chiefly to liquidate the campaign. Although I warned them that it was dangerous to return, they did so and were captured, as I had foreseen. They stayed about two years in a prison camp in Brest.

In the first years of the war, until America joined the allies, we succeeded in transferring a certain amount of the money. This money was spent for the following three purposes:

1. We paid the 15 per cent, upon which we had originally agreed, to the Social Democratic party. What they did with this money is none of my affair. If they gave part of it to the New York newspaper Elore, I do not know. But one must not forget that the Elore was at that time a Socialist paper and that in these days the word "bolshevist" was still unknown.

2. The bulk of the Hungarian money went to the support of the Hungarian daily paper called Magyarorszag, which was the official organ of the party fighting for the independence of Hungary. This paper was a pacifist daily

SYMPHONY BODY MAKES PLANS FOR COMING SEASON

Women's Committee Reports on Seat Sale at Annual Meeting — Deficit Last Year $5000.

POPULAR CONCERTS TOOK IN $10,082

Despite Opposition of the Movies, Receipts for Afternoon Programs Were Satisfactory.

The St. Louis Symphony Society, at its annual meeting at Jefferson Memorial last night, elected officers, heard a financial report for the 1924-1925 season showing a net deficit of a little more than $5000, met the organization's new manager, listened to an enthusiastic account of the recent Southern tour by Conductor Rudolph Ganz, and finally, applauded a report of the activities of the Women's Committee in its 1925-26 seat sale campaign.

Altogether it was a busy business meeting, evoking an enthusiasm which, in the opinion of officers, augurs well for the future. The financial report, as presented by George D. Markham, vice president, who presided, laid stress on the evenness of budget and income. Receipts from all sources was $92,158, the guarantee fund was $107,400; total expenses were $201,192; leaving a net deficit, therefore, of $5074.

Subscription Sales $54,407.

Under receipts the report noted that subscription sales were $54,407; door sales, $17,600, and popular concert sales, $10,082, a falling off of $1305 from the year previous, "in spite of the strenuous competition from the movie shows, free organ recitals and free this and that which compete with us on Sunday afternoon."

The recent tour cost $34,567 and receipts were $31,486, thus making up $3080 of the net deficit. "These tours are taken for two reasons," the report commented: "First, because we have always believed that the touring of this orchestra through the trade territory of St. Louis was of great benefit to both the city and merchants of St. Louis on account of its advertising value; secondly, in order to have the proper personnel in the orchestra, as it has been necessary to give some of the men contracts longer than our 20 weeks, and this additional time has been taken up on the tour."

"Our tour was highly successful," reported Conductor Ganz, "but that in itself doesn't mean anything. The thing that is important is our mission to perform, as in our school children concerts and our aim in teaching good music. Everywhere in the South we received favorable editorial mention. The people pleaded with us, 'We need you to fight bad music.' We have created standards; they notice them."

Season Tickets Sold.

Mrs. Max Goldstein of the Women's Committee of which Mrs. Thomas Ratcliffe is chairman, reported that in the six weeks' campaign to date there have been sold 452 season subscriptions—this being all new business. Team captains and workers had met in the afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles M. Rice and reviewed plans for a continuance of their announced drive to "sell" the Symphony to all St. Louis.

The new business manager, G. B. Baldini, was introduced by Markham as a recent importation from the New York Symphony Orchestra, where he has been an assistant business manager for the past four years. At Markham's request, he sketched his life and training. Born in Florence, Italy, and educated in England, his connection with the theater began as call boy at Covent Garden, he related. Later he received a dramatic and operatic schooling in Milan, and then came to Boston, and became associated with Henry Russell. After a connection in Buenos Aires he returned to New York and has been with the New York Symphony since.

Fowler's Name Retained.

The name of the late John Fowler, who two years ago subscribed $10,000 a year for three years to the guaranty fund, was retained as president. Other officers elected were: Vice presidents, Mrs. John T. Davis Jr., Mrs. Charles M. Rice, J. Lionberger Davis, Benjamin Gratz, E. A. Faust, George D. Markham and Oliver F. Richards; business manager and secretary, G. D. Baldini, and treasurer, Hugo A. Kuehler.

The Board of Directors are, Mrs. F. G. Eaton, Mrs. M. A. Goldstein, Mrs. Oscar Johnson, Mrs. Joseph

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Brick vs. Concrete for Roads.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN the St. Louis Post-Dispatch of April 14, 1925, there appeared in your columns a letter from Mr. C. L. Crette regarding the award of a nine-foot brick road in Randolph County.

The mileage given by Mr. Crette was correct, but the difference in cost of the pavement is an error, due to Mr. Crette not having full information on this subject. Bids were received for concrete pavement and brick pavement on concrete base, and the difference in price as published in your paper, was the actual difference of the contractor's bids on the different types of pavement. On both types of pavement the State agreed to furnish the cement and gravel necessary for the concrete work, which in the concrete pavement was far more than in the concrete base for the brick pavement.

Figuring the material furnished in each type of surface, the brick road was approximately $50,000 more costly than the concrete. The brick road is slightly heavier construction than the concrete road, and this construction accounts for the difference in cost of the two roads.

Sound argument can be advanced for the construction of the brick road as an economic proposition when maintenance and the life of the road is considered. In view of the fact stated above, and the desire of the commission to study the economic value of this type of road on Missouri soil, a contract was let for brick pavement on this stretch of road in preference to a concrete pavement.

Firemen and Salvage Men.

JUST a few words to answer the letter signed "Kum A. Krost."

First of all, it is not a fact that the salvage corps men work harder than the firemen. All they do is run in and throw covers on a few things and go back to their house before the fire really gets a start. But the firemen have got to stay and see it put completely out, it may be one hour and again it may be 10 or 15 hours, and it might be zero weather, too. The salvage men do not have to drag any big hose up three or four stories either. If you are a salvage corps man don't be a crab about the raise the firemen got, for they worked hard to get it. Go to your insurance companies and ask for a raise as the firemen went to the people of the city (thanks to them). As far as paying high rent, that's your hard luck. Don't go above your means just to be in style.

I'm a fireman's wife and don't pay high rent, because I know I cannot afford it, so Mr. "Kum A. Krost," don't be a knocker.

A FIREMAN'S WIFE.

Dangerous Movie Overcrowding.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE dangerous practice of over-crowding the moving picture houses in their evening performances is a menace to human life. The writer was a party of four who attended a performance Thursday night at about 10 minutes to nine. After being told to wait five minutes, which was about 20 minutes before we were permitted to enter, we were then crowded gradually back from the lower floor down to the side aisles, where we stood exactly one hour, crowding the exits, which in case of fire or any other scare might have resulted in loss of human life. It is the duty of the police department to prevent such conditions which might lead to the results mentioned.

There is no earthly reason except for the greed for additional revenue to permit tickets to be sold to their patrons when they know they have no idea of seating them. HENRY FRIEDMAN.

Rejection of Ballots.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IF the erasure of one candidate's name and the writing in of another is unlawful, why reject the claim of one candidate to these "unlawful" ballots and count them for another.

B. FUDDLED.

"Realtors" and Rents.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

"MONTH'S Rent Free," "Moving Expenses Paid," are getting to be common in the advertisemen's of the flat owners for tenant beguilers. Just a few years ago the Sunday or week day Post-Dispatch had few, often no advertisement for flats for rent; today (April 19) it carries more than a dozen columns of these small domicile advertisements. A "realtor" friend gave me an estimate of 11,000 to 12,000 vacant flats and apartments in St. Louis. "There's a reason." The rentals, under flat of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, have been patiently and insidiously advanced until today rentals are, approximately, more than double what they were less than eight years ago, and the result has been this plethora of vacant houses and flats, the former tenants having been driven from our city, never to return. The end is not yet, week after week the vacancies grow and your advertising in small advs. grows with it. Oh, boy! the crash is imminent when there will be weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth of "realtors." P. J. HAYNE.

CAN LAW BE SO DEGRADED?

Victor J. Miller will enter upon his duties as Mayor today. Whether he was elected to the office may be fairly questioned. His plurality, according to the count, was 3129. Were the ballots honestly counted not legally but honestly? Secretary W. H. Hughes of the Democratic Contest Committee says that election officials in 370 of the city's 624 precincts report that, approximately, 2750 ballots where Igoe's name was written in and Miller's name scratched out were counted for Miller. If that estimate is correct, Miller was not elected; he was counted in by election officials.

Ah, but there's the law. The law, we are solemnly assured, has prescribed just how a ballot shall be marked. But what does the law say as to how a ballot shall be counted which is not marked as prescribed? The lawyers do not agree as to that point. Mr. Miller's chief legal spokesman, ex-Attorney-General Barrett, insists that the law takes no account of the voter's obvious intention but is concerned solely with seeing that the instructions as to marking the ballot are rigidly observed.

Granting his construction of the law to be correct, how can Barrett justify the counting of ballots for Miller which were not properly marked and where it was the obvious purpose of the voters to vote against Miller? Republicans cast the ballots under discussion. They supported their party ticket by putting a cross in the circle at the top. They voted for every Republican candidate except Miller. But instead of putting a cross in the circle opposite Igoe's name they crossed out Miller's name and wrote in Igoe's. And for this technical deviation from the rules the law, as construed by Barrett, not only disfranchises them but makes them vote for a man they repudiated. The election officials, acting on the opinion of Barrett, have counted those ballots for Miller.

Is it possible that any law could be so inherently asinine and practically crooked as our ex-Attorney-General says this law is? We can see how a law might void a ballot improperly marked, but we cannot conceive of a law authorizing election officials to count a ballot for a candidate whom the voter has unmistakably and emphatically voted against. Nor can we conceive of a court so flouting common sense, common decency and common justice as to validate such a manifest miscount.

"Honest elections" came in for the customary tribute during the recent mayoralty campaign. The right of the citizen to go to the polls and have his ballot counted as cast inspired Mr. Miller to words of righteous eloquence and evoked sad memories of far-off days when the wicked Democrats, by violence and intimidation, denied citizens that right. Well, are we now to understand that the Republicans, with subtle strategy and finesse, have raised the defrauding of citizens to an art? Have the Republicans perfected a polished system for stealing elections—a system delightfully free from rough stuff or coarse work of any kind—a system, forsooth, that operates with the sanction and respectability of law?

Can anyone be brazen enough or partisan enough to ask the people of St. Louis to believe that the law can be degraded so as to promote and protect felony?

AS TO SCRUGGS-VANDERVOORT-BARNEY.

It is a notable fact that Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney, as an institution, is half as old as this nation itself. While the ride of Paul Revere, the shot that was heard around the world and the battle of Lexington are being memorialized on their 150th anniversary, a St. Louis department store is dressed up in gala fashion for its Diamond Jubilee. On the one hand is being celebrated the earliest military achievements of American colonists; on the other, a commercial institution is harking back to that long-distant day when it first became identified with the life of one of America's greatest cities.

Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney represents a commercial dynasty of unbroken lines. More, it has not only survived the financial panics, the depressed periods and all the commercial vicissitudes of 75 years, but it has expanded and prospered. Now it has reached a peak of prosperity and usefulness. It is a true index to the soundness and continuous growth of American business life.

On its counters and in its display rooms these two weeks is a dazzling array—silks from Samarcand, rugs from Persia, Damascan steel, Scotch cloth—indeed, all the treasures of the world. In its festive habiliments, Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney just now is a thing of wonder, a bazaar more glittering than ever troubled the dream of the ancients. It is a splendid example of honest and progressive merchandising.

THE "A. P.'S" SILVER ANNIVERSARY.

The silver anniversary of the Associated Press partakes of the quality of a public event. It marks the end of a quarter of a century of nonpartisan news gathering, and during that time a steady growth in volume and excellence based on experience.

A claim of perfection, though sincere, is not necessary to the appreciation of a fine endeavor. Human institutions are relative, and the Associated Press, as a human institution, is an evolution. Its service is written and directed by human beings, of whom we can expect infallibility no more than from our courts. It is fair to compare the Associated Press not with perfection but with the best there is in the field, and in that field none can successfully challenge its supremacy.

It has been said that at the birth of the "A. P." the definition of news was accepted as "sensation." The definition of news today is truth. Many times of recent years the Associated Press has proved its preference for truth over sensation by refusing to give news of anticipated events until they had occurred, while its rivals, feeling assurance that the thing would happen, announced its occurrence. Sometimes its competitors have guessed wrong, as in the instance of the demotion of former Gen. Mitchell from the head of the air service. At least one agency was forced to announce a fortnight or so after it had given alleged news of the event that he really had been displaced.

It is a far cry from the partisan news service of 25 years ago to the nonpartisan reports of the "A. P." today. By publicly striving for an ideal of uncolored report of fact the Associated Press has been gradually "selling" that ideal to individual newspapers as applied to their local fields, and in that respect has contributed liberally to the national standard of truth, as against sensation, in journalism.

WHEN "BEST MINDS" CAN SERVE BEST.

If ever there is a time in the term of a Mayor when the counsel of "best minds" is of special value, it is in the selection of the heads of the municipal departments and of officials for important places in the city government.

The integrity and efficiency of the administration depend largely, almost wholly, upon the character and capacity of the important officials who will handle the city's business. Decisions touching the planning of work, specifications, inspection and details will fall under the supervision of these officials. They will have the duty and responsibility of handling the big job of running the city honestly and efficiently every day in the year. The whole supervision of the work done under the bond issue, and expenditure of the money, will be in their hands.

There is no evidence that Mayor Miller is consulting his Citizens' Cabinet with reference to the appointment of officials upon whose shoulders will fall all the important work of the administration. Certainly there is no evidence of advice and consent of disinterested leading citizens in the reported list of men slated for the big jobs. The list reads like a roster of political supporters and personal friends. Whatever other qualifications these men may possess, the prime qualification seems to be that they are Miller men.

So far, however, the slate is based solely upon report. Judgment must be reserved until the actual appointments are made. But the making of the appointments is the critical time for good counsel.

"A TIRED, UNSMILING OLD MAN."

That was a vivid picture of Marshal von Hindenburg which Samuel Spewack drew yesterday in the Post-Dispatch. "A tired, unsmiling old man, whose barking voice was all he retained of his martial vigor" got up to read a speech. It was not a good speech. Von Hindenburg is a great soldier who is contemptuous of words. His life has been one of staccato orders, of decisive action. Now this militarist is a candidate for President, and the only modern republican statement they can force from his stubborn lips is that he will uphold the Constitution, that he will not "forcibly" change the government.

There are old men and old men. Von Hindenburg is of the kind who cannot forget the false glories or the reckless policies of yesteryear. At Doorn, in ignominious exile, is another old man of the same stripe. These two are bound by a thousand memories, by a whole lifetime of common traditions. The one is the other's loving and devoted servant. What can the German Nationalists be thinking of to select Von Hindenburg as the bearer of modern Germany's banner?

Here is a nation which has definitely foresworn an imperial dynasty which has brought it to its present low state. Its problems are economic, financial, industrial, commercial. What does Von Hindenburg care about these things? What can he add to modern Germany but the sores and bruises and contentiousness of a lost cause? Von Hindenburg is the personification of the spiked helmets, the goosesteps, the bloody battlefields of the past. What is needed is a man who looks forward to the smoking chimneys and the well-filled larders of the future.

THE BACK YARD ON PARADE.

There passed through the city's streets last Saturday afternoon a very fine parade, though not a dog in line had a pedigree, or his young owner a velvet suit. Soiled cats were clutched against soiled dresses. Off-color ponies carried riders of no renown. Goldfish, tame rats, a turtle and several rabbits, all without fame of breed or distinction of performance, went by, held in the arms of children who know the back yard and alley for a playground. Yet, it was a very fine parade.

Childhood's loves were on the march. To each tattered ear or mongrel nose a boyish heart had pledged devotion. Not a renegade kitten was lacking an affectionate mistress. They had come from the ash-pit and the garbage dump, these pets, to find adoring care. In the warm light of youthful fancy their shortcomings vanished, or took on marvelous transformations. Did we who stood on the curbstone see only a one-eyed cur? A mangy cat? A lop-eared rabbit? Then we missed the splendor of the parade. That cur was an heroic animal who no doubt lost his eye defending his master from an attack by wolves one night at the back-yard gate. That cat a creature of surpassing agility, who can walk a telephone wire for a mile. That rabbit a fighter who whipped the fiercest dog in the block.

Preposterous? Not when the back yard is on parade. We must accept these things or else turn unseeing eyes from children and their pets.

BALLAD OF HUMAN ENDEAVOR.

(TO W. J. B.)

I read a book the other day
Which told me I could reach my goal;
It seems that if at work I stay
Success at last will soothe my soul;
No doubt remains within my breast,
I swear I'll do my bag of tricks,
And get some medals on my chest,
But Bill has run since ninety-six.

I see the banks now have a plan
To make me rich—a dollar down,
Another dollar when I can,
And pretty soon I'll own the town;
Oh save your cash, young man, they cry,
And soon you'll be in Gary's fix
You'll leave a fortune when you die,
But Bill has run since ninety-six.

If you would win a lady's heart,
Then swear your love with might and main,
True love requires the gallant's part,
Nor fear to be an ardent swain;
'Tis well to be a Launcelot,
Since Love and faintness do not mix,
'Tis thus I'll win her, like as not,
But Bill has run since ninety-six.

L'ENVOI.

Prince, perseverance is the bunk,
'Tis fate that deals the hardest licks;
You may declare my logic's lunk,
But Bill had run since ninety-six.

He puts on de draf an' he shuts de door
Ol' Nebuchadnezzar, he smole a smile,
Then Shadrach, Meshach, Abednego
Walk on de hot coals to an' fro,
Gulp dem hot cinders like chicken meat

Ol' Nebuchadnezzar gives up de fight;
He open dat door an' he bow polite.
An' say to Abednego, "step out, Colonel."
An' he say, "Massa Shadrach, I hopes you all Won't be huffy at me all."

Then Shadrach, Meshach, Abednego,
Hay foot, straw foot, three in a row,
Stepped right smart from dat oven door,
Jes' as good as they wuz before,
An' far as Nebuchadnezzar cud find,

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

AN ORIGINAL GUEST.

From the New York World.

DEAN INGE faced on Saturday the largest contingent of ship news reporters and special writers that has gone down the bay in 1925 and replied to a long list of questions, with answers which are not to be found in the manual for incoming passengers. Prohibition, he should have known, is the work of a divine providence; liberalism in the churches is something which is all right when it is not all wrong, and all wrong when it is not all right; America's place in world affairs is manifestly one of leading mankind to heights which only we have happily attained. So our guests from foreign ports have assured us times without number. But Dean Inge spoke, on Saturday, from a different point of view.

Of prohibition he said that it gave him no concern: "I shall be here only three weeks."

Of liberalism in the church: "I don't care to discuss liberalism in the church. Most get into trouble in New York for doing it. I see that one was suspended yesterday for being liberal. I suspect that I shall be in sorrow."

Of America's place in world affairs: "That there will be no more war in his lifetime—he is 65—because all the nations are bankrupt; but America can afford a war if she wants one."

In the rush of disembarkation and bustle of a catch-as-catch-can interview, this British churchman revealed an unwillingness to speak in platitude and to start his answers from uncriticised assumptions. Asked whether his point of view was "scientific" or "religious," he said: "I hope the time will come when the man of science will be religious and the man of religion will be scientific." Asked if flappers of today are any worse than their grandmothers, he replied, with a shrug: "I don't know their grandmothers."

Asked whether civilization is dying out at the top, he said: "I'm not so sure that it has been achieved yet." Of the results of a Tennessee law to prohibit the teaching of evolution, he thought that "the most serious effect will be upon the legislators."

Dean Inge, shortly before sailing from England, said of himself: "I do not represent the mind of the Church of England. Heaven forbid that I should try! I have no ax to grind; bootlicking is not to my taste, as what I would have a woman knows; and I don't think there is a superstitious article in [illegible]."

WHY THE GIRLS DON'T LIKE US.

Ed. Howe in His Kansas Monthly.

IT is not surprising that a woman hates the men. From the time she is a little girl the subject is discussed before her; not only by women, but men themselves are always issuing warnings against each other. Likewise she hears nothing but compliments for women—how they are imposed on by men; how they are patient; and have ideals the men never fulfill; how men eat like pigs, smoke too much, run around too much, sleep too late, idle too much, and are stingy with their money. The wonder is that a girl, after reaching 17 or 18, will associate with men. If she ever learns that women, too, have faults she must learn it for herself; from the meanness of other women—the men never say anything about it.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

By the oracular tongue of Mrs. Malaprop, arbitration is the sincerest form of flattery. So it may be remarked that last night's production of "The Rivals," at the American, was a progeny of entertainment, a very pineapple of pastime. Odds cackles and cachinnations, how the large and graceless audience was analyzed by Mrs. Malaprop's nice derangement of epithets, by the building and cooing of the lovers, and by Bob Acres' soltroonery, as headstrong as any allegory on the banks of the Nile! This concordance of Richard Brinsley Sheridan's comedy, by a cast bearing the compilation of "all-star," will not soon be illiterated from the memory.

Comparisons are odious, so to speak, so we shall not have the impudence to anticipate the past by recalling the great company assembled for this work in 1896. Besides, we could not extirpate ourselves from the charge of having never seen that cast, though there is proof controvertible that it depicted of Joseph Jefferson, William H. Crane, Nat Goodwin, Francis Wilson, Robert Taber, Mrs. John Drew, Julia Marlowe, Joseph and J. M. Holland and Fanny Rice. To say more would be superstitious.

Such Contusions of Language!

On the other hand, moreover, if there breathes a wretch so orthodox as to defy that the 1925 cast isn't supercilious, he will forfeit our malevolence forever, though one must remit that in some perpendiculars it is not altogether illegible to the title of stellar. But there is Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske, as Mrs. Malaprop—odds chuckles and chortles!—with such contusions of language, a physiognomy so grammatical, and gestures so laconic, that only a total misanthropy can fail to go into absolute hydrostatics.

Discourse on Female Education.

A centurion and a half has collapsed since "The Rivals" was first reduced at Covent Garden, in London, in 1775; and its affluence exists with pristine freshness and profusion. Only yesterday might Mrs. Malaprop have uttered her disrespected aphorism upon female education:

"Observe me, Sir Anthony—I would be no means wish a daughter of mine to be a progeny of learning. I don't think so much learning becomes a young woman; for instance—I would never let her meddle with Greek or Hebrew, or algebra, or simony, or fluxions, or paradoxes, or such inflammatory branches of learning—neither would it be necessary for her to handle any of your mathematical, astronomical, diabolical instruments—but, Sir Anthony, I would have sent her, at nine years old, to a boarding school, in order to learn a little ingenuity and artifice. Then, sir, she would have a superficial knowledge in accounts; and a little she grew up, I would have her instructed in geometry, that she might know something of the contagious countries;—but above all, Sir Anthony, she should be mistress of orthodoxy, that she might not—shepsell and mispronounce words so shamefully as girls usually do, and likewise that she might comprehend the true meaning of what she is saying. This, Sir Anthony, is what I would have a woman know; and I don't think there is a superstitious article in Woodward Players Undertake Revival of "Tarnish" at Empress.

NEW dramas of the year have the poignant appeal and the genuine significance of Gilbert Emery's "Tarnish," which is essayed by the Woodward Players at the Empress this week. The story has been too recently discussed in the columns to need recital. But certainly such a play deserves a presentation of authority and spirit. The methods of old-time drama are keyed too high for the subdued grays of Mr. Emery. The good people are not all good, nor those bad folks are not all bad, but who finds in humanity shades between.

Whitmore and Selmer have shrill the emotion of their Francesca. Rotoli's Nettie is hard-boiled beyond belief. Rogers' whine and Raymond Brown's doddering as Mrs. and Mr. Tevis become all but burlesque. Sylvia Farnese has the courage of restraint, and makes the role of Aggie an outstanding feature of the performance.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Anderson and the latter's sister, Miss Louise Bemis, who went East with them a fortnight ago, arrived in Hot Springs, Va., this morning for a visit, and will be home in two weeks.

Mrs. Charles Henry Adams of New Orleans and her five children will arrive in St. Louis later in the spring to spend the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. M. Bain of 3801 Flora place.

The sixth and last "Assembly" dance of the season will be held at Algonquin Country Club on Friday evening, April 24. Dinner will be served at 7:30 p. m.

A number of prominent women are acting as patronesses for the initial performance of "The Masques," the new dramatic club lately organized under the leadership of Mrs. Robb Bentley Leonard of 4352 Maryland avenue. "Icebound" will be presented by them at the Artists' Guild Little Theater on Wednesday evening of this week.

The entertainment committee of the Midland Valley Country Club announces a series of bridge parties and dinner dances to be held alternately every Saturday evening during the summer and fall months. The first dinner dance is scheduled for Saturday, April 25.

GATES HEIRESS SELLS HOME

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 21.—Mrs. Dellora Angell Norris, heiress to the millions of John W. Gates, who resides with her husband, an artist, in modest circumstances, and their two children in a cottage at St. Charles, Ill., has disposed of her palatial Lake Forest, Ill., mansion.

The purchaser is Frank Hixon, Chicago and La Crosse, Wis., lumberman, and the price is reported to have been $300,000. At the time of her marriage, about three years ago, to Lester Norris, the heiress announced her intention of living modestly at her girlhood home at St. Charles.

FUNERAL FOR J. C. CAMPBELL TO BE HELD HERE THURSDAY

Former St. Louis Real Estate Man Lived in Los Angeles for Year Prior to His Death.

Funeral services for James C. Campbell, 42 years old, who died last Wednesday in Los Angeles, where he had resided since he suffered a nervous breakdown a year ago, will be held at 3 p. m. Thursday from the home of a cousin, James Campbell, 5543 Enright avenue, to Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Campbell was educated in the University of Virginia and began his career as a law partner of O'Neill Ryan and Guy A. Thompson. Later he entered the real estate business with Le Grand Jones. He is survived by his widow, three children, a brother and a sister.

WILL RAISE PHYSICAL EDUCATION FUND

Superintendent at Knobnoster, Mo., Suggests Plan to Keep Work Going.

Typical of sentiment being expressed throughout Missouri concerning the future work of physical education in the schools under the State Department of Public Schools, since the Legislature failed to provide funds for this work, is a letter from R. W. McDaniel, superintendent of the Knobnoster schools, to Dr. H. S. Curtis of Jefferson City, director of the work, telling how funds for it will be raised privately.

It is hoped that enough Missourians will contribute a sufficient sum to keep the physical education plans for school of Missouri from being dropped. Supt. McDaniel wrote:

"This was my first year as a director of physical education work, and naturally I didn't put across all I wanted to, but at that I find that the work has benefited our school. The values of organized work in physical education are too great to be longer neglected. And now that we have it started it would be a backward step indeed if we have to drop the work. We hope to do our bit May 1 toward educating our people to the needs of the work. Have already started plans for that day.

"I have talked to the public here, have discussed the probable situation which would exist if the department at Jefferson City could not 'carry on' because of a lack of funds, and we decided that we would 'tithe' the physical education department and have proposed the plan of giving 10 per cent of our athletic fund earnings to the cause. What do you think of this plan? Couldn't the coaches and physical education instructors get behind the department and help put it across? We hope to do our part, and will regret any failure upon the part of the people of Missouri to support the program you and Supt. Lee are promoting."

Howard Braucher, secretary of the Playground and Recreation Association of America, New York, has written to Dr. Curtis: "I feel it would be a loss to the entire nation if the work that you have so splendidly begun should at this time to be cut off or so reduced as to give you little chance for achievement."

Women Accept Passport Ruling.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The State Department's position that the name of a woman's husband must appear on a passport issued to her, even though she ordinarily uses her maiden name, has been conditionally accepted by the Woman's Party in its effort to have the rule changed. Counsel for that organization, and incidentally for Ruby A. Black, wife of Herbert B. Little, announced yesterday that Miss Black would accept a passport for "Ruby A. Black, wife of Herbert B. Little," provided acceptance would not preclude placing the question before President Coolidge.

MUSEUM REJECTS $3,000,000 GIFT

Metropolitan Trustees Unwilling to Accept Clark Collection on Conditions.

NEW YORK, April 21.—The $3,000,000 art collection bequeathed by William A. Clark to the Metropolitan Museum of Art on condition it be accepted as a whole and exhibited as an entity, has been declined by the trustees of the museum.

The one-sentence resolution adopted unanimously yesterday by the 14 trustees present states that the museum is constrained to decline the gift under the conditions, but will gladly accept many of the objects included in the gift if these conditions can be changed.

Apparently the heterogenous collection, as a whole, would not be accepted under any circumstances.

Clark's will set forth that, in the event of a refusal by the Metropolitan Museum to accept his collection, it be offered to the Corcoran Gallery of Art, Washington, D. C. Announcement was made recently in Washington that the Corcoran Gallery would accept.

In turning down the Clark collection, which is now in his house at Fifth avenue and Seventy-seventh street, the trustees of the Metropolitan established a precedent. It is the first gift of magnitude that has been refused, although it is the first bequest so tied up without a conference between the trustees and the donor.

Heretofore persons who contemplated a bequest to the museum have talked over the matter with the trustees and reached some kind of agreement.

sicians in rural districts, granting that the workers themselves are first equipped with a thorough knowledge of physics and biological chemistry.

Heavy Taxes on Farmer.

Declaring that the farmer in strictly rural counties is "taxed to death" and that the boy and girl in such districts have little chance in education, and opportunities against their neighbors in industrial communities, Dr. H. A. Morgan, president of the University of Tennessee, produced several charts to prove his point. These compared assessed valuations, tax rates and revenue totals of the 15 poorest counties of Tennessee with those of the 15 richest. Although the 15 rich counties produced 52 per cent of the revenue of the State, he said, the tax rate averaged about 80 cents on the $100 valuation where in the poor sections it averaged $1.27. The total revenue in the poorest county in 1920 was $12,968; in the richest it was $2,567,610.

Other charts were exhibited to show that similar conditions prevailed in other states and in the nation at large.

Advocates Road Building.

Asserting that "I never yet have seen a legislator who understood his function," Dr. Morgan declared the greatest need for more conferences, more study of actual conditions and less legislation, especially legislation for the benefit of private interests. He also urged that road-building programs should not be confined to areas of greatest population and greatest travel. "Build roads to the remote rural sections," he urged, "and industries will follow. Then these poor sections, too, will become thickly populated and rich."

Following the formal session yesterday, Dean F. B. Mumford of the Missouri College of Agriculture and author of the Purnell bill, spoke briefly and a message of appreciation was sent to Congressman Purnell, who pushed the measure in the House.

Stop Wasting Tea USE TAO TEA BALLS

OLD WAY

NEW WAY

It is no longer necessary to make tea wastefully in the old haphazard way. It is no longer necessary to use a pound of tea weekly to make three or four cups of tea a day.

Tao Tea Balls, besides taking the guess out of tea making, are giving a better, a uniform and more delicious tea.

TAO TEA is not ordinary tea. It is blended from specially selected tiny leaves—bud leaves, plucked from the tops of rare tea plants grown on hilltop gardens. Tea experts call it Flowery Orange Pekoe. Few except tea experts have had an opportunity to enjoy such tea heretofore. No coarse, fibrous, metallic-tasting leaves are used. Tao never becomes bitter, no matter how long it brews. TAO is a pure Flowery Orange Pekoe Blend.

Yet because of the new and better way of packing and serving—the TAO TEA BALL way—TAO can be had at even less cost than an ordinary good tea.

TAO TEA, packed in handy gauze bags—machine-packed—offers all the advantages of supremely high-grade tea at low cost. It is the modern, safe way of packing tea. It insures this fine blend getting to your table exactly as we have blended and packed it for you.

One Tao Tea Ball will make four to five cups full of this delicious Tea—and it costs less than a half cent a cup.

QUALITY—ECONOMY—CONVENIENCE

Remember TAO TEA is a tea of more than superior quality—it is quality supreme—Tao means supreme. Its flavor and fragrance truly surpass ordinary good tea. Its economy is made possible purely because of the new and better way of packing and serving. To each Tao Tea Ball is attached our trade-mark Tao Tag which is your safeguard against substitution.

SACCHARIN CASE, TRIED TWICE HERE, DISMISSED BY U. S.

Suit, Charging Misbranding, Entailed Great Cost to Both Sides—Two Juries Disagreed.

The suit of the Government against the Monsanto Chemical Co., charging misbranding of saccharine in violation of the pure food laws, was dismissed late yesterday by United States District Attorney Curry on orders from Washington.

Twice tried, once in 1920 and again in 1924, and each time resulting in failure of the jury to agree, the saccharine case has become a burden to both the Government and the chemical company.

Each trial of the case entailed great cost to both sides and experts in chemistry and medicine were used as witnesses to testify for the Government that saccharine was harmful when used as a food, and for the defendant company that it is not harmful but in many instances has a beneficial effect.

Had the Government obtained a verdict from the juries that heard the case it probably would have meant more years of litigation in higher courts and the penalties that might have been inflicted on the corporation would have been nominal.

During the trials of the case it was said some of the witnesses appearing for the company were paid as high as $500 a day and expenses and some of these were in attendance at the trial more than a week.

declared that the society, by its works, was "putting the ideals of the revolutionary period into practical effect. He stressed the fact that the society was acting on its own initiative rather than calling on the Government to assume new powers.

"In adopting this course of action, you are in the best sense of the term ministering to the ideal of self-government," he said. "We have heard in the past, and are likely to hear in the future, very much discussion about the instrusion of the Government through legislation into the business and private affairs of the people.

"In so far as this is a reflection of an ideal, requiring and demanding a higher standard of conduct, we ought to rejoice at it and support it. But when we see that it is not wholly successful, we ought to remember that it is at best but a temporary makeshift, an effort to make things better, and that we cannot expect through these methods to attain perfection.

"There is only one way in modern civilization with its broad privilege of the franchise, with its representative legislative bodies, to avoid the constant interposition of the Government into practically all the affairs of the people, and that is for the people to adopt a correct coures of action, to provide the proper standards of conduct by their own motion. If they do not want government through public action, they must provide it through private action.

"That is the true ideal of self-government. The attainment of that ideal lies some distance in the future, but it is an ideal, toward which we should constantly strive. If the people wish to be in the full enjoyment of their liberties, if they wish to be unhampered by Government restrictions, they can secure that privilege. But they cannot secure it by abolishing government. They can only secure it by adopting a thorough system of individual self-government.

"Government is an absolute necessity to human progress and human happiness. If we do not wish to have it imposed from without, we must ourselves impose it from within."

which demanded universal suffrage and fought for land reform. In every respect, it represented those aims for which the money was raised.

3. A small portion of the money—about 8000 gold francs, was spent for the liberation of those of my followers who, as I said, had been imprisoned in Brest.

Wants to Invest Money.

A detailed accounting for the whole sum was procured by Louis Beck, who must have all the vouchers in his possession. I have repeatedly written him to deliver them to me but he has always given me an evasive answer. As the original documents are not in my possession, I have only a general idea of the money spent. Beck, who is a member of Parliament, and who at that time was the treasurer of the Independence party could not tell at what rate the money was exchanged. If I am not mistaken, the dollars were exchanged on an average of eight kronen to the dollar.

The reason I want to get the money from the Alien Property Custodian is that I would like to invest the capital in some good American stocks or bonds which would yield a higher rate of interest. As for spending it, I could decide only after having carried on a kind of campaign among the American Hungarians. After getting in touch with the broad strata of the Hungarian population in America, and after having had an opportunity of sounding public opinion, I could make up my mind as to how to dispose of the fund. The remaining $16,300 is relatively such a small amount that it would be best to let it accumulate for awhile and then spend it for the purposes for which it was given, namely, the democratization of Hugary; yes, for the overthrow of the most reactionary regime in Hungary. In brief, it must be used to carry on propaganda against the Horthy administration.

"I have the honor of introducing to you the Vice President of the United States, Gen. Charles G. Dawes."

Melville E. tSone, counselor and former general manager of the Associated Press, delivered to the members what he regarded as a possible valedictory address.

"I am an old man," said Stone. "It is not at all unlikely that this is the last time I shall have an opportunity to talk with you. I regard the Associated Press as a great public duty, and every public duty is a privilege. If it were not so, I should never have been of you.

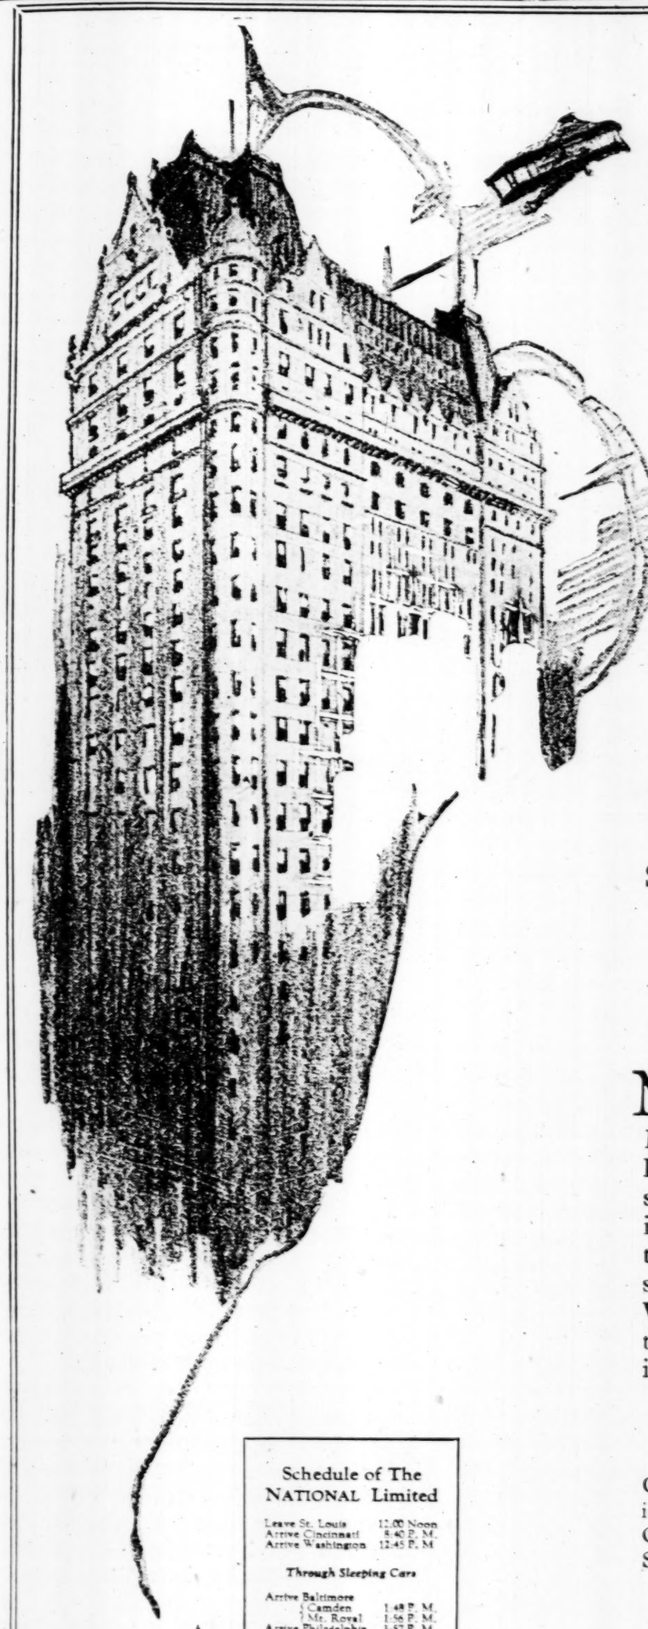

"Incidentally, the A. P. is an opportunity for you to make money. But if money getting and public service may be joined hand in hand, as I think they have been in this institution, then you have been doubly blest."

"Against great odds and by the exercise of infinite patience," he concluded, "we have builded a great and most useful institution—one of incalculable value, in my belief, to the American theory of government, and I hope to [illegible] will challenge my firm conviction that our American theory of government is far and away the best ever devised by the sons of men. AROUND THE WORLD TWICE AT AGE OF 3

C. W. JOHNSON JR.

BOY TRAVELER TELLS OF 'CATCHING WHALES'

But He Doesn't Know His Parents Tied Them to His Line at a Porthole.

Christopher W. Johnson Jr. yawned slightly as he posed at the door of his home, 3409 Longfellow place, upon his return from his second trip around the world in less than three years. It was not an obvious yawn. Rather it was the well-bred, pleasant suggestion of a yawn that goes with no longer finding anything exciting in the ways of news photographers.

"The whale-fishing was most interesting," he remarked, with an air somewhere between insouciance and boredom. "Catching them with a line from the deck was rather amusing, although it was quite easy."

The photographer started. He looked suspiciously at his camera. "Excuse me," he said, "I'll have to try another plate." The young man will be four years old next October.

His mother was laughing. "Mr. Johnson and I used to get fish from the steward," she quietly explained. "When Junior let down his line from the deck we would tie on a 'whale' at a porthole."

Traveled 30,000 Miles.

Since Dec. 1 last, the boy has traveled a little more than 30,000 miles. Almost 23,000 was on the S. S. Belgenland, called the largest steamer to circumnavigate the globe. The lad, who, rounding out 60,000 miles of travel since his first birthday, was the smallest person on this "largest" globe circler, naturally became its mascot, and superstitious seamen gave him a lot of credit for the 130 sunny days of 132 on the cruise.

His first voyage, which began a month after his first birthday, was not so smooth. It even encountered one storm, in which the huge ship was dwarfed among monstrous seas. But the child took his first steps with "sea-legs," for he learned to walk on that voyage.

A day or two on the bridge this last trip fired him with the ambition to be a captain. A few days later the ship's carpenter made him a sand-box and took a leading hand in nailing some trunks up shipshape. Christopher thereupon decided he'd have to be a ship's carpenter.

Weighs 45 Pounds.

The sandbox became a studio for the modeling of ships, and the toys which caught his eye in port were steamers, which he brought on board and launched in the deck swimming tanks, christening them "Empress of Scotland" and other names of steamers he sighted at sea or in harbor. A barrel which went on board with special foods for the youngster came back packed with toy ships.

Did the sea agree with his health? He weighs 45 pounds and wears 7-year-old sizes. "But I don't know about taking him abroad again, as Mr. Johnson wishes," Mrs. Johnson said. "He was too young for all the attention he received to go to his head, but I'm afraid he will be old enough next fall to be self-conscious."

Just now, ships are a thing of the past for him. All this talk about them came near boring him. "Mamma," he asked, "where's my football?"

NOVICE AT WHEEL, WIFE KILLED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., April 21—Mrs. W. B. Whiffin, 56 years old, of Rombauer, was killed, and her husband, W. B. Whiffin, 61, and G. P. Dennis, 43, farmer, were seriously injured when a truck, driven by Whiffin, plunged into a ditch two miles east of Rombauer late yesterday.

Whiffin had just purchased the machine and Dennis was teaching him to drive, when the driver lost control and drove the car into the ditch.

VON HINDENBURG'S SPEECH SATIRIZED IN LIBERAL PRESS

His Reference to "My Chancellor and My Ministers" Recalls Speeches of Former Kaiser.

CANDIDATE GIVES VIEW ON DAWES PLAN

Declares Germany Cannot Fulfill Conditions Unless Other Powers "Evince Economic Loyalty."

By SAMUEL SPEWACK,

Copyright, 1925, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (New York World and Post-Dispatch).

BERLIN, April 21.—Field Marshal Von Hindenburg found the role of dove o fpeace, foisted upon him, such a strenuous task that he retired to his bed to rest. Hours of parade reviewing and oratory Sunday had sapped the strength of the unsmiling warrior. Reports arose in Hanover yesterday that he was seriously ill, but the truth is that he was tired.

The complexity of the task to preserve his natural pose as the Man from Mars for the benefit of the naturalists at home and yet blow daintily on pipes of peace to soothe the savage breat of Germany's former enemies would crush a younger man. Not the least of his troubles was his apparent crossing of wires with the Crown Prince.

From authentic sources it was learned that the royal country gentleman of Oels planned to visit his faithful war chief in Hanover today. Unfortunately the news leaked out and immediately denials poured forth. The Crown Prince will stay home. Above all things men who put Hindenburg forward as the apostle of reaction—Hindenburg, the most faithful servitor of the Kaiser—want to convince the outside world that Hindenburg had nothing to do with the monarchy or the monarchists.

This effort to conciliate the entente and especially America, has resulted in a confusion of simple issues comparable only with the Russian communists who welcome capitalists. For Hindenburg and everyone of his supporters not only are convinced he is a monarchist, but they have remained loyal to the Hohenzollerns.

The only sincerity of the Nationalists is their cry that they won't establish a monarchy immediately. They can afford to wait. On the whole, Hindenburg's speech, despite the expansive treatment by the Nationalist press, didn't show up particularly well.

His avoidance of the word republic; his ambiguity in discussing the question of monarchy and especially his reference to "My Chancellor and my Ministers when I am elected"—a strong reminder of Wilhelm—have been seized upon by the Left press to satiric advantage.

"Policies of Nations Not Determined by Common Sense."

By the Associated Press.

HANOVER, Germany, April 21.—Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, nominee for the German presidency, discussed his candidacy in an exclusive interview with the Associated Press correspondent.

He made special reference to the Dawes' reparations plan, which, he declared, would be impossible of fulfillment unless Germany's former enemies evinced "political and economic loyalty."

"Whether the obligations under the Dawes report are capable of fulfillment," he said yesterday, "will become evident only after a certain period of time, since, as you know, the burdens imposed will steadily increase for years. We, of course, will not be able to fulfill the conditions unless the foreign Powers participating in the pact evince political and economic loyalty."

When asked regarding his speech Sunday, in which he spoke of Germany's desire to co-operate peacefully in promoting the world's progress, as to what he considered a basis for an ideal security pact, Von Hindenburg replied:

"I consider it very difficult to find measures of a guarantee nature which would really compel all nations to adopt a moral policy in state affairs. I should certainly be very happy if it should come to pass in my old age that the policies of nations were determined by sound common sense. But we are not that far as yet."

His Candidacy "Not Partisan."

The Field Marshal contends that his election would have no effect on Germany's international financial position, as the following question and answer indicates:

Question—"Would the fact that that the Reich bloc is mainly under the leadership of Conservative-Nationalistic circles endanger Germany's international finance interests in the event of the Reichs' bloc's victory at the polls?"

Answer—"To begin with, it is not true that my candidacy has a partisan political character. As for the rest, I am convinced and have positive data for my opinion, that financial world problems as they relate to Germany have nothing whatever to do with the election of the nation's head."

Von Hindenburg expressed the opinion that these nationalistic circles would not be able to exert a menacing influence upon his administration when he was reminded that such a danger was feared in many quarters.

"I am enough of a man," he observed, "to shoulder responsibility myself and make my own decisions. That is what I used to do as a soldier."

To the question as to whether he believed complete separation of the church and state desirable, he replied:

"I am a believing Christian, and I desire that Germany's affairs shall be conducted in a Christian spirit."

Form of Government Immaterial.

The final question was:

"Is a monarchical state more conducive than a republican to advance personal discipline, law and order and stable conditions?"

To this the Field Marshal replied:

"It does not depend upon the form of state, but, rather, on there being personalities at th head whom one respects and who, through their authority, insure order."

At the conclusion of the formal interview Von Hindenburg's attention was directed to a statement in a Berlin newspaper that the former Crown Prince intended to call on him and that an impressive reception had been planned. Von Hindenburg burst into a hearty laugh and said he considered it the best joke of the season, and flatly denied the truth of the story.

Lieutenant-Colonel Von Feldmann remarked that the Field Marshal had not seen the Hohenzollerns in a long time.

FRENCH REPUBLIC NOT AT WAR WITH CATHOLIC OR ANY OTHER FAITH, CAILLAUX SAYS

Flurry Is Over Application of Scholastic System Prevailing in U. S., Restored Statesman Asserts.

By Joseph Caillaux,
French Minister of Finance and Former Premier.

Joseph Caillaux, restored to the full rights of French citizenship, has become a powerful figure in French politics again with his taking over of the Ministry of Finance in the new Painleve Cabinet.

PARIS, April 21.—The French Republic is at war with religion." This phrase is being methodically repeated here, and is being echoed beyond the frontiers. There is some danger of American opinion becoming roused, and of Americans passing harsh judgment upon a country blind enough to reopen the wars of religion.

It should be stated at once and repeated with unabated energy, that the French Republic attacks no religion, Catholicism or other faith. Only by a bold abuse of language can the epithet "persecution" be applied to laws which are not new and which in the minds of the legislators of the past as in those of all republicans today, have no other object than the definitive establishment and protection of the liberty of conscience of all French people.

It is desirable that Americans should know exactly what this French lay school so violently attacked represents. It is nothing but the application, in an inadequate and incomplete form, of the scholastic system prevailing in the United States.

Neutrality Intent of Laws.

You have long since instituted elementary and secondary schools in which the strictest neutrality is observed in regard to religious questions, and it has not come to our knowledge in Europe that one of the churches that counts millions of followers in the United States has ever denounced this system as contrary to morality or to the rights of human conscience. Religious instruction is given outside the schools by the ministers of different denominations. This neutrality of education within the schools, and full liberty of religious instruction without, is precisely what our laws have instituted in France.

France, indeed, is less advanced in this matter than America. You have very happily completed your scholastic system by establishing absolutely free elementary and secondary education. We are still at the stage of vague projects in view of a unified school or other method of attaining a school system free for all, although all such methods are met by the hostility of the clerical party in France.

In regard to the scholastic problem in Alsace-Lorraine, the attitude of the republican Government is even more moderate. The Alsatian clergy oppose the creation by the state and by the municipalities of national schools in which Catholic, Protestant and Jewish children would sit on the same benches. Because the Municipal Councils of Strasbourg and Colmar planned the opening of a school realizing such a union, the Bishop of Strasbourg dared to write that "Germany must be prevented from recording the felony of France," and placed himself in open revolt against the law by organizing a strike of school children.

View of the Contest.

In reality it is not so much a matter of defending a religion which enjoys the most complete liberty, as of fighting a Government that is displeasing to the political and social groups which have linked their fortunes with those of the church, to the detriment of the latter. It is an indisputable fact that the participation of the church, or rather of the clergy, in the life of the collectivity, despite all the declarations of political neutrality, has an inevitable tendency to exert itself in parallel lines with the action of partisans of past regimes and the narrowest form of social conservatism.

The recent declaration by the Bishops of France, the importance of which some are now trying to diminish, demonstrates by its very clumsiness the reactionary tendencies of the French clergy.

When they treat as "idols" the principles of liberty, justice and progress which are the foundation of the entire white civilization, and which have inspired all that is great in the Western democracies, including America, is it not true that the Bishops of France are really attacking the very idea of republic and democracy common to the peoples of France and America?

Marriage Laws Condemned.

When they condemn the marriage laws as they are observed in every country save Spain and Italy, do they not show that their conceptions are in opposition to the general trend in all countries? Of course divorce has its inconveniences and abuses, and produces social dangers which are already worrying America, and which we shall have to study soon in France, but it is none the less true that the evolution of customs (sovereign in the matter of marriage) makes it impossible to admit, as the Bishops would wish, a return to the indissolubility of civil marriage.

The import of our Episcopate's manifesto should not be minimized. It is a declaration of war against modern thought. It is, within the frame of France, and on a political and social plan, a Syllabus of reaction as intractable as that published by Pope Pius IX in the last century.

Manifestation of Opposition.

In so far as the State is concerned, it is a manifestation of the undying opposition that pits the church against it. The republic is not the only political power which has had to suffer from the encroachments of the church. Ten centuries ago the Kings of France were obliged continually to defend their sovereign civil rights against the theocratic assaults of Rome.

Today the defenders of fallen regimes range themselves under the banner of the church against the republic, and attempt to utilize the agitation for their own profit. The maneuver appears in its true light when it be remembered that it began the day the Government announced its intention to suppress the embassy to the Vatican.

One may consider this decision to be a not altogether happy one. The creation or suppression of an embassy to the Holy See or to any other Power is a problem of foreign policy. The problem should only be solved after proper consideration of the foreign interests of the state, and in conformity with its European and world policy. It is admissible to believe that the maintenance of the embassy was necesary and desirable.

Situation Not Alarming.

But whether the embassy be maintained or suppressed there is nothing in the question either to satisfy or alarm the religious sentiments of the French people. France's diplomatic relations with the Holy See have not always been of the best. We have had Kings who made war on the Pope. In those times, the French clergy contributed financially to the upkeep of the Frenchtarmies.

The republic does not ask so much as that. It is content to maintain high and firm the principle of liberty, for its adversaries would have difficulty in proving that it has interfered in the smallest degree with the free practice of all religions. All the clamors against the Government's alleged antireligious policy are in reality the expression of the clerical party's ill-humor. That party today, as formerly, while pretending to ask for liberty, aims at domination.

Wilbur to Turn Over Airship Photographs to Coast Guard.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—A series of photographs of rum row taken from the dirigible Los Angeles on her trial flight last week, were received today by Secretary Wilbur from Lakehurst, N. J. Because of the height from which they were taken the pictures were of small value for identification purposes, but the Secretary announced they would be placed at the disposal of the Coast Guard.

They were made he added, solely as an experiment to determine what value the dirigible might have in making a pictorial record of the area she was traversing.

RETRACTS CHARGES OF WRANGEL ISLAND TRIP

NEW YORK, April 21.—Charges of mutilation and suppression of documents of the dead by Harold Noice, who headed the relief expedition in 1923 to rescue four men and a woman marooned for two years on Wrangel Island, are contained in "The Adventure of Wrangel Island," by Viljalmar Stefansson, Arctic explorer, just published by the MacMillan Co.

Noice, once a companion of Stefansson on Arctic trips, is quoted in the book in a declaration signed by him as retracting many of the charges he made in a series of newspaper articles in which he reconstructed the island just off the coast of Siberia. He admits "misjudgments" in his articles, apologizes for his mistakes and lays them to his physical condition which later became a complete nervous collapse.

When Noice reached the island he found that only the woman, a seamstress named Ada Blackjack, survived. Of the four white men, Lorne Knight lay dead of scurvy; while Milton Gallo, Fred Maurer and Alan Crawford had started across the ice to Siberia, 100 miles away, and were never heard from. Noice, using Knight's diary, fragments of Gallo's and that of the women, pictured the four men as blunderers who died through their inefficiency and incompetency to meet conditions of the North. He described the three as attempting an "almost hopeless" dash to Siberia when weakened from starvation and nearing death.

He first made of Ada Blackjack a heroine and then in interviews said she apparently let Knight die while she "grew fat" on food that would have saved him. His articles were widely published in good faith by newspapers in England, Canada and the United States.

Stefansson, in his book, in which John I. Knight, father of Lorne, is listed as collaborator, cites Noice's retraction as proof that tricks of fate and not incompetency caused the tragedy.

Noice said last night the contents of the book were a "complete surprise" to him. He said he had not seen nor heard of the charges made in the book until he read of them.

Since the publication last year of an interview with Noice, in which he charged the Eskimo woman, Ada Blackjack, with "getting fat" on the food which would have saved Knight from starvation, Mrs. Noice has separated from him.

Mrs. Noice is said to be in Reno, Nev., awaiting the expiration of the time which must elapse before she can begin a suit for divorce. Noice married Frances Allison, wealthy divorcee and daughter of the late William O. Allison, millionaire banker of Englewood, N. J. Their marriage took place while Noice was in the midst of preparations to leave Seattle with the relief ship Donaldson on the voyage to Wrangel Island. The story of the gluttony of Ada Blackjack was published in papers throughout the country.

Signs Retraction of Story.

Yesterday, before two reporters, Noice signed a retraction of this story. He said he was suffering from a nervous breakdown at his wife's home in Englewood when he gave the interview. Shortly afterward the couple went on a trip to Brazil. When Noice returned to New York last September he was alone. Mrs. Noice, it was said at the time, had gone to Europe direct from Brazil. Within a few weeks, said Noice last night, he called twice at the offices of the North American Newspaper Alliance, the syndicate which distributed his stories of the Wrangel Island adventure, in an effort to induce publication of his retraction of his story about Ada Blackjack. He said they refused to publish the retraction on the grounds that the public had by that time forgotten the incident and that there was no use in bringing the story back into the limelight.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Noice returned from Europe, but Noice continued to live in his present home at 56 West Sixty-fifth street, while she returned to Englewood.

Noice says he is prearing a book dealing solely with the subject of why he mutilated the diary and letters of Knight, which he found at the camp on Wrangel Island. He insisted he did not mutilate them to make more glamorous his part in the affair. He stad he tore out pages and erased only sentences which referred to matters which he did not believe should be made public.

Thinks Teapot Lease Will Stand.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 21.—The Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation confidently expects "an affirmation of the Teapot Dome lease and the acquittance of the false charges that have been so loosely made" in connection with the Government's investigation of it, Chairman Harry F. Sinclair says in his annual report to stockholders. Net earnings of the Corporation in 1924 totaled $16,426,930, an increase of about $3,000,000 over 1923. Gross earnings of $123,894,048 were approximately $14,000,000 larger.

'GASOLINE' IN SPRINGS ENCOURAGES DRILLERS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FREDERICKTOWN, Mo., April 21.—Interest in the oil situation here, which was created six weeks ago by the discovery of gasoline flowing from a crevice in Joe Shrum's well, one block from the Courthouse square, has been fanned to fever heat by the discovery that two springs near Fredericktown are also running the same product. This latest find has not been analyzed, but is apparently of a grade similar to that of Shrum's. Recent heavy rains have so increased the volume of water coming from the springs that the amount of oil issuing from them cannot be gauged.

The quantity is relatively unimportant, oil men here declare, the significant point being that the breaking out of the flow at another place than Schrum's, indicate that a pool is located somewhere in this section.

This fact becomes more apparent, according to these men, when it is considered that instead of diminishing, as might have been expected, the Shrum well, notwithstanding the new outlet, continues to increase its daily average at the rate of nearly one gallon each day.

From a daily production of a few gallons a month ago, the well is now averaging more than 30 gallons, and it is conservatively estimated that it has produced a total of nearly 800 gallons. The owner is selling the product for motor fuel as fast as it is taken from the well, but even with a supply of 30 gallons a day he cannot supply the demand, motorists claiming that they get more power from it than from regular filling station gas.

Three companies, each of which has been investigated and found to be entirely reliable, have entered the field and have declared their intentions of beginning operations as soon as possible.

The first well to be sunk will in all probability be undertaken by the Home Drilling Co. of Ste. Genevieve, a local concern which has been prospecting for oil in Ste. Genevieve County. According to Judge Peter H. Huck, one of the principal stockholders of the company, the drilling rig will be moved at once to this county, where leases totaling 2000 acres have been secured along Little River and Village Creek.

The other companies to secure leases are the Ethel Oil and Gas Co. of Drumright, Ok., with 3000 acres to the immediate northeast of Fredericktown, and the Reserve Oil Co. of St. Louis, with 3500 acres on St. Francis River.

WOMAN SEVERELY BEATEN IN CEMETERY

Assailant Forced to Flee After She Resisted Attempted Attack.

Miss Lillian Kliemann, 18 years old, of 1504 Branch street, was severely beaten by an armed man, who attempted to attack her in St. Marcus Cemetery, on Gravois road, at 10 a. m. yesterday.

She had cut through the cemetery on her way to the settlement of Lakewood, where she was to visit her mother, Mrs. Emma Kliemann.

"As I came to the bridge over the River des Peres in the cemetery, a man accosted me," Miss Kliemann told a Post-Dispatch reporter oday. "He had a revolver in his hand. He asked me if there was another bridge over the river anywhere in the neighborhood, and when I said I didn't know, he seized me and tried to drag me down the river bank into the ravine.

"I screamed and struggled and he hit me over the head with his revolver. He told me to keep quiet or he'd kill me. When I kept on screaming he threw me on the ground and tried to stuff his handkerchief into my mouth to gag me.

"All the time he was cuffing me with his fist or hitting me with his revolver. Finally he looked up at the bank as though he had heard someone and after threatening me again, ran away."

The girl climbed up the river bank to find another man seated beneath a tree within earshot. Fearing that he was a companion of her assailant she fled from the cemetery to Gravois road. She was treated by a physician for scalp wounds and lacerations of the scalp.

Miss Kliemann lives at the Branch street address with a sister, Mrs. Sterling Newman, and works at a downtown shoe factory. There was no work for her yesterday and she decided to visit her mother, who lives with Mrs. Herr Neumann, another daughter. She described the man who accosted her as about 35 years old and well dressed.

MILITARY FUNERAL FOR COL. MACDONALD

Burial Services of St. Joseph Veteran Attended By Many Officers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ST. JOSEPH, April 21.—A military funeral was accorded Col. Clay C. Macdonald, veteran soldier and attorney, who died Saturday after a year's illness. The service was conducted at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon at Christ Episcopal Church.

Active army officers and militia officers and former officers who served in the World War were active and honorary pallbearers. Military men from all over the State and a number of others from other states came for the funeral. Five hundred uniformed men accompanied the body from the church to the cemetery.

Of Pioneer Stock.

Macdonald was a Missourian of Scotch descent. He was the son of pioneers, Mr. and Mrs. D. M. McDonald, who came to northwest Missouri nearly a century ago, and he was proud of his ancestry. Although other members of the family adopted the spelling of McDonald, he used the old Scotch spelling with a small d.

When the Civil War broke out Macdonald was a youth, and the events of the war stamped themselves vividly upon his mind. His father at that time conducted a store at Stewartsville, Mo., and he gave up his business to enter the Confederate army.

After the war the family removed to St. Joseph. During his young manhood Clay Macdonald studied stenography, then a new art, and he was the first stenographer in St. Joseph. Later he read law and was admitted to the bar. For 10 years he was in the office of Judson & Motter, at the time the leading commercial lawyers of St. Joseph. When Dr. Thomas H. Doyle was elected Mayor in 1886, he appointed Thomas F. Ryan city counselor. Ryan needed a partner, and he took in young Macdonald. They remained together six years.

When Grover Cleveland was elected President the second time, in 1892, he appointed Macdonald, Collector of Customs at St. Joseph, and he held the office four years. Later he entered the law office of R. A. Brown, where he remained several years. For a short time he served as Public Administrator, to fill an unexpired term.

Served as Police Chief.

Following his discharge from the army after the World War, Col. Macdonald lived quietly in St. Joseph, except for his spectacular and stormy career as Chief of Police. He was appointed in February, 1921, and left the position in October, 1922.

When Arthur M. Hyde became governor, in 1921, the St. Joseph Police Board, comprising Walter P. Fulkerson, A. E. Ueberroth and Harry E. Wyatt, all Republicans "drafted" Col. Macdonald, a stunch Democrat and son of a Confederate soldier, for Chief of Police.

"I'll take it, but I want you to know beforehand I'm a Jim Reed Democrat," Col. Macdonald told the Commissioners when tendered the position.

From the very beginning the grizzled veteran was a storm petrel.

The Police Department became at once a military organization. Inspections were frequent and rigid. There was no slouching. Policemen walked erect, eyes ahead and coats buttoned. If buttons were missing the eagle eye of the Chief found the open buttonholes and there was a reprimand.

As the older men resigned or failed of reappointment, Chief Macdonald filled the department with younger men and whenever possible soldiers of the World War.

WARRANTS FOR ARRESTED SLOT MACHINE MEN REFUSED

Prosecuting Attorney Says Law Does Not Cover Mere Possession of Devices.

Warrants were refused yesterday against Albert Miller, 6733 Delivery avenue, and Edward Damm, 617 Fillmore street, arrested last Saturday by police, who seized 63 slot machines, of the mint-vending type, in a raid on the offices of the United Vending Machine Co., 5714 McPherson avenue.

Miller, who said he was agent for the Chicago concern which makes the machines, and Damm were charged by police as "suspected of setting up a gambling device." The warrants were refused Prosecuting Attorney Schweitzer explained, because there was no evidence covering operation of the machines. The statute covers only the operation of such machines or their "setting up for gambling purposes," while the machines seized by the police were apparently in storage. It is expected Miller will take immediate action to recover his concern's property.

"One hundred per cent improved in every way, that's how I feel since taking your medicine," said Mr. Joe Onions of 1147 Estalla av., St. Louis, when he called to see the Herb Juice man a few days ago.

MR. JOE ONIONS.

Mr. Onions, who is employed by the City Railways Co., is well-known to thousands in St. Louis, having lived in the city his entire life, and his statement, which is printed below, should be of special interest to those who are unfortunate enough to be suffering with stomach trouble and a general run-down condition. Mr. Onions says: "Before I used Herb Juice my stomach was in a terrible condition. I would have severe attacks of indigestion, gas would form and press up around my heart, and at times I could hardly get my breath. If I ate any vegetables they seemed to poison my stomach, and for days I would suffer with dysentery. I was very billious and would have attacks of weak, dizzy spells. In addition to this, my kidneys were very irregular and kept me getting up all hours of the night. Of course, like everyone else, I was always taking something for this trouble, but I never found a thing to help me until I began using Herb Juice, which, as I said before, has improved my health one hundred per cent. My stomach is in fine shape, eat anything I want, and never have any trouble from gas or indigestion and pains around my heart. Bowels act regular, also kidneys, and I am not bothered getting up at nights after going to bed. I was also bothered at times with my feet swelling. This medicine has also relieved me of this trouble. In short, I have found Herb Juice to be satisfactory in every way, and feel as though I should give this statement that others may know about it."

The Herb Juice man has established headquarters at Judge & Dolph Drug Co., 514 Washington av., where he will meet the local public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.

Beer Scandal Defendant

RAYMOND B. GRIESEDIECK. Photographed in Federal Court yesterday when the case against him, Heber Nations and Charles S. Prather was called.

'PROTECTED' BEER CASE SET FOR TRIAL MAY 25

Judge Faris Denies Heber Nations, One of Three Indicted, a Change of Venue.

The trial of Heber Nations, former State Labor Commissioner, in which Charles S. Prather, former State Food and Drug Commissioner, and Raymond B. Griesedieck, vice president and manager of Griesedieck Bros. Brewery Co., are co-defendants, on felony and misdemeanor charges growing out of the beer protection scandal, is now set to begin May 25, in Federal Court.

Griesedieck's confession, made to the Federal authorities more than a year ago, which was the basis of the indictments, has now been supplemented, as was told exclusively in Sunday's Post-Dispatch, by a confession of Prather. The details of Prather's confession have not been made known, but Prather intends to plead guilty, to throw himself on the mercy of the court, and to testify against Nations if the Government so desires.

Griesedieck is ready to testify that he paid about $15,000 to Prather, at the rate of $1 a case of beer made and marketed, for protection in his illegal traffic, in 1923 and early in 1924. How far Griesedieck's testimony involves Nations has not been made known, but it is believed that Prather's confession will strengthen the Government's case.

The time for the trial was set by Judge Faris yesterday, after he denied a motion of Nations counsel for a change of venue on charges of prejudice. The motion was filed after the time fixed by law, so that it was not obligatory on the court to grant it. As it appeared that the hearing would take three or four days, Judge Faris decided to defer it until after an operation for removal of a tumor, which he intends to have performed this week.

COMMUNISTS HOLD SECRET CONFERENCE IN LONDON

Russian Agents Are Said to Have Met With British, French and Belgian Reds.

Copyright, 1925, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, April 21.—A secret meeting was held Sunday in London, of British, French and Belgian communists, in which Russian agents are understood to have taken part. This conference was unknown to Scotland Yard until yesterday, when the French and Belgian delegates already had left the country.

What the conference was about cannot be learned, but in view of the general nervousness caused by the outbreak of communists in Bulgaria, demands probably will be made for more anti-bolshevik measures here. The correspondent learns that one of the principal officials of the soviet embassy in Vienna is in London and presumably took part in the conference.

Indian Confesses Killing Man.

By the Associated Press.

KINGMAN, Ariz., April 21.—George Suyjnamie, alias George Dixon, a Wallapai Indian, confessed last night, according to authorities, that he slew J. M. Cavell, 65 years old, a taxicab driver whose body was found near Prescott, Ariz., Sunday night. Cavell's skull had been crushed, and a heavy iron bolt, the weapon used by the slayer, was found beside the body. Dickson is the grandson of a noted Arizona Indian chief, Leveleve.

Illinoisan, 75, Burned to Death.

By the Associated Press.

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., April 21.—Ottawa McAlister, 75 years old, was found dead with his clothes ablaze at his home here last night by neighbors. Long whiskers are thought to have been responsible for his death, since it is thought that in attempting to light a lamp the whiskers were set on fire. He resided alone.

YOUTH HELD TO GRAND JURY FOR DEATH OF WOMAN

Dead.

Mrs. Lena Hornberger, 65, wife of John Hornberger, 4597A Evans avenue.

Injured.

A verdict of criminal carelessness was returned today by a Coroner's jury against Samuel Barack, 18, of 5866 Garfield avenue, for the death of Mrs. Lena Hornberger, 65 years old, wife of John Hornberger, 4597A Evans avenue, who was run down and fatally injured yesterday by Barack's automobile at Deer street and Easton avenue. The death of Mrs. Hornberger yesterday at city hospital brought the automobile fatalities in St. Louis this year to 51, as compared to 40 for the same period last year.

Mrs. Hornberger was crossing Easton avenue shortly after noon. A street car was approaching from the east, and as she crossed in front of the street car, was knocked down by Barack's automobile, suffering a fractured skull and internal injuries.

Testimony of Motorman.

John P. Hayes, 5210 Cote Brilliante avenue, motorman of the street car, testified at the inquest today that he saw Mrs. Hornberger when she was about 75 feet in front of him and stopped his car to allow her to cross the tracks. Barack, who had been driving alongside the street car, Hayes testified, was going about 30 miles an hour and passed the street car, after it had come to a stop, striking Mrs. Hornberger.

Other witnesses differed as to the speed of Barack's automobile, some testifying he was not going so fast, but all agreed that he had run past the street car.

Barack did not take the witness stand. He had told police the accident was unavoidable. His bond was fixed at $5000, which was furnished by his father.

Two Girls Among Injured.

Helen LaBlanche, 15, of 2125 Benton street, suffered a fractured left leg and body lacerations when she was struck by an automobile operated by Harold Weiss, 18, of 1610½ Elliott avenue, at Benton and Montgomery streets.

Dorothy, 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Cromer, 7623 Ivory avenue, suffered lacerations of the scalp and body bruises when she was struck in front of her home by an automobile operated by George Votruba, 6301 South Broadway.

Ray Kinniff, 19, 1321A Merchant street, lost control of his motor cycle and plunged through the plate-glass window of a shop at 1336 Merchant street. The shattered glass severed an artery in his right arm and he was taken to city hospital in a serious condition.

ST. LOUISANS ON LIQUOR LIST

Prisoner at Des Moines Said to Be New York Bootlegger's Agent.

By the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Ia., April 21.—Roy Fox, who has confessed, police say, that he has solicited liquor orders from the elite at half a dozen Midwestern cities, was arraigned before a United States Commissioner yesterday, pleaded not guilty to a charge of violating the prohibition law and was held in $300 bond. Lists of prominent persons in Cleveland, St. Louis, Chicago, Indianapolis and other cities were found in Fox's possession.

Fox is said to represent a New York bootlegger, who obtains his supply from "rum row," and ships the liquor in trunks, the keys to which have been mailed to the customer. Fox is said to claim immunity because he does not complete the deal, explaining that payment is made at New York after the liquor has been received.

Missing Man Found in Jail.

SPARTANSBURG, S. C., April 21.—Herman Hemmen, wealthy real estate man of Boston, reported missing from his home, was found in jail here yesterday. Hemmen has been in Spartansburg jail for five days, being held on a charge of disorderly conduct and as a suspicious character, police reported. He is believed to be suffering from a temporary mental derangement.

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands. It cannot irritate. Famous beauties use it to bring that peaches-and-cream complexion, youthful skin and rosy-white hands; also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It cannot be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.

SUPREME COURT INDICATES AVERSION TO LIQUOR CASES

Intimation Is That Many Requests for Reviews Will Be Turned Down.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The Supreme Court has indicated that it is tired of considering all sorts of liquor cases and will refuse to review some of those brought up.

It was pointed out yesterday by officers of the court that almost every phase of prohibition enforcement has been passed upon. Federal courts throughout the nation have been overrun with prohibition litigation. The intimation here is that the Supreme Court is going to protect its own documents.

The Keystone Brewing Co. of Pennsylvania was turned down in its request for a review, in its efforts to overthrow the decision of a lower court which ruled that persons charged with violating injunctions under the national prohibition act are not entitled to jury trial.

A petition presented by six persons convicted at Gary, Ind., in a liquor conspiracy suit, asking for a review, was denied. Among those involved at Roswell C. Johnson, Mayor of Gary; Lewis E. Barnes, president of the Board of Public Works at Gary, and Dwight M. Kinder, Prosecuting Attorney of Lake County, Indiana. The petitioners charged that "inflammatory newspaper articles and prejudiced interviews of prosecuting officials widely published on the day before and during the trial" hurt their case. Fifty-five were convicted in the Gary case.

BROWNS, IN LOSING FIVE GAMES OUT OF SIX, HAVE MADE 76 HITS

Pitchers Have Faltered In 4 Contests; Danforth And Wingard Are Needed

Southpaws Suffering From Influenza Will Depart With Squad on Western Trip Tonight—Sisler's Men Make 18 Safeties but Lose Another to White Sox.

By J. Roy Stockton.

When a baseball club makes 76 hits in six games and wins only one of the six, it is plain that there must be something radically wrong with the team's defense. If the Browns do not tighten their defense and improve their pitching they will not go anywhere, despite all their punch.

Sisler's men have averaged more than 12 hits a game and have scored 41 runs in the six games and yet only once has victory been their lot. On the opening day of the season they made 20 hits and 14 runs and lost. Yesterday they collected the impressive total of 18 safeties and yet they lost by one run in a game in which there were 21 tallies.

With reasonable pitching the Browns would have a record today of four victories and two defeats instead of being deep in the cellar with one victory out of six games. Two of the games lost were earned victories for the enemy. The Indians deserved to win when the Browns were held to five hits and one run and four hits and no runs. But in the three other defeats the Browns made a total of 48 hits, which about clinches the case against the Browns' pitching staff and defense.

The Punch Is There.

It does not seem reasonable to believe that a team with such attacking power can stay long at the bottom of the pile. Yesterday the Brownie pitching was woefully weak. The Browns twice tied the score, finally evening the count at 7—7 in the sixth inning. But the White Sox climbed on George Grant for two runs and George Blaeholder for two more. Even then the Browns would not admit defeat. In the ninth inning they hammered out five hits, drew within one run of the enemy and when Gene Robertson finally flied to Falk for the final out the tying and winning runs were on the bases.

Those are the encouraging things about the Browns, the team batting power and the fine morale which has enabled the club to carry on in the face of many disasters.

The pitching staff will be stronger in a few days. Dave Danforth and Ernie Wingard, the two southpaws counted as regular starters, have suffered from influenza since the team returned from the South, and have been unable to carry their share of the pitching burden. As a result, Sisler has been forced to call on his reserves, when a regular might have stopped a hostile attack. Danforth and Wingard were at the park yesterday, but not in uniform. They will accompany the team when it departs tonight for a trip to the Western cities, and will be fit for duty before the club returns. Joe Evans, outfielder, also was a spectator at yesterday's game, and will make the trip starting tonight.

Elam Vangilder, who pitched such a brilliant game against the Cleveland club, was helpless against Chicago yesterday. Eddie Collins' men slammed Elam for four hits and four runs in the first inning. Mostil, first batter, tripled, Davis popped out. Eddie Collins pasted a single to left. Sheely slammed out to right and Bib Falk hoisted a fast one into the right-field seats for a home run.

The Browns tied the score with two in the first and two in the second, and when Vangilder walked Lyons, after Schalk singled in the fourth, Sisler waved Vangilder to the showers and called in Grant. The young right-hander's control was poor, and he was continually in trouble. Twice he walked the first batter in an inning, and each time the White Sox drove the runner over the plate. Blaeholder was just as bad, the Sox collecting three hits, good for two runs, in the ninth inning.

The Browns went down fighting. Williams opened the ninth with a single and scored on McManus' double to left. Bennett grounded out and Lamotte flied out. Dixon singled to center, scoring McManus, and took second on the throw-in. Chester Falk batted for Blaeholder and looped a single to left. Tobin crashed a single to center, scoring Dixon. The Browns were only one run away, but Robertson flied to Bib Falk.

SPORTSMAN'S PARK NOTES

Today's game will be called at 3 o'clock to enable the Browns to catch an early train for Cleveland, where they open their campaign on the road tomorrow.

Johnnie Tobin and Marty McManus are punishing the pitchers. Tobin grounded out on his first trip to the plate yesterday, Kamm making a brilliant stop. Tobin then made five hits in a row, a double and four singles.

McManus got three out of four Sunday and three out of five yesterday. There was nothing soft about the base hits, all solid wallops.

Chester Falk, signed as a great left-handed pitching prospect, was awakened and rushed into yesterday's game as a pinch hitter. He swung awkwardly at the first pitch, but he connected on his second attempt and singled to left. The boy has the nerve.

Severeid is still weak from an attack of influenza. He caught a fine game Sunday, but yesterday his arm could not stop the base stealers and he retired in favor of Tony Rego.

Bennett came within a step of catching two high flies which fell just back of the infield. There certainly have been many cheap hits for the enemy here this season.

Gene Robertson nearly got away with a good play. With a runner on second, he took a grounder, looked at the runner hesitating on his way from second and threw to first. The runner on second could have been trapped, but Robertson thought his arm and Sisler's could turn the situation into a double play. He had to think fast. It was not a stupid play. He was just a little overconfident. It paved the way for a squeeze play and another Chicago run.

Milton Gaston, who pitched a fine game against Cleveland, will make his second start this afternoon and he may draw the veteran Faber as his opponent.

Joe Bush was used as a pinch hitter in the eighth, but he was fooled by a curve which was a called third strike.

As long as Tobin has the punch he has shown this season you won't see John laying down many bunts. He deserved six hits yesterday, as his first wallop, to Kamm, was soundly crashed.

Grant made the Browns' one error and it was a costly one. With runners on first and second he took a bunt from Davis and threw over Robertson's head, a run scoring, a runner reaching third and Davis second.

The Browns went hitless in only one inning. They have hit safely in 17 of the last 18 innings played.

Sisler boosted his average with two hits in five chances. He has hit safely in every game thus far.

Mostil was the batting hero of the day. He got a triple, three singles and two walks, batting 1000 for the day.

Quatrain to Be Rested; Will Run In Derby if Fit

Louisiana Derby Winner Withdrawn From Preakness, Owner Announces.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 21.—Frederick Johnson, owner of the Derby star, Quatrain, announced today, after his return from Lexington, where he spent Sunday, that his colt would not be shipped to Pimlico to start in the Preakness Stakes, which is to be run May 8.

Mr. Johnson said: "Quatrain will be rested up and given just enough exercise to keep him in condition to be fitted for the Derby, and IF HIS CONDITION WARRANTS IT, he will start in that event."

Charles Ector, a colored caretaker of thoroughbreds in the Johnson stable for a number of years, will look after the conditioning of Quatrain for his races.

Boon Companion Works a Half Mile.

Boon Companion, S. A. Cowan's Derby candidate, showed the best effort he has shown since arriving here from Miami, when he stepped a half mile over the Downs track in :50 3-5; he covered the quarter in :25 3-5. Al Woodman, his trainer, was much pleased with the colt's work, as he is not a work horse.

Russell Cave, D. Borgman's candidate for the classic, was caught in the fractional time of :24 3-5, :50 1-5 for a half mile.

Annihilator and Abstract, the Anderson and Kendle colts, worked together for Trainer C. C. Vanmeter, and covered the first quarter in :25, half in :51, breezing.

Sprints for Derby Stars.

Lee O. Cotner was given an opening up spin for a half mile in :24 4-5, :50 2-5. Captain Hal turned three-eighths in :35.

Cream Puff showed three-eighths in :38 and Air Castle breezed a half mile in :52.

Balbec was sent a quarter in :25 2-5. Mark Master, the International Stable's representative for the Derby, was sent a mile and performed his task easily, with Jockey Walter Lilley up. His time by fractions was :25, :50 2-5, 1:17, 1:44 2-5.

Bankrupt, the Croissant Stable's Derby colt, worked a mile in 1:45 1-5. Swope covered a mile in 1:48, and the first part of his journey was turned in :53 2-5 for the half mile and the six furlongs was turned in 1:21 3-5. This will be the last time for Swope to work here as he accompanies the other horses in the Fisher Stable to Belmont Park Tuesday.

ZBYSZKO TO WRESTLE IN WICHITA APRIL 29

By the Associated Press.

WICHITA, Kan., April 21.—Stanislaus Zbyszko, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, will meet Milo Steinborn, German "strong man," here on April 29, Tom Law, promoter, announced this morning following the receipt of official confirmation of the match from Zbyszko.

Borotra Sensational, but Not a Sound Tennis Star, Tilden Says

By William T. Tilden II.

Europe seems to me to be moving its tennis stars to the United States permanently. Manuel Alonso and B. I. C. Norton have settled here, and now Jean Borotra of France, Wimbledon champion and acrobat extraordinary, has taken up his work in Pittsburg.

No one can question the great interest Borotra has aroused in this country by his showing in recent tournaments.

Many able critics consider Borotra one of the greatest players ever seen. Personally, I cannot join this group with such sweeping enthusiasm. Borotra is a sensational and unusual player, but his game has too many flaws, is too basically unsound off his forehand to make him really first class at present.

The glaring defect in Borotra's game in his forehand ground stroke, which is neither a drive nor a place, but a peculiar wrist-push, cramped in swing and soft, slow and erratic in effect. Borotra has a fine back hand and magnificent volley, but after all the forehand must be the foundation on which to build his game, and it is weak.

Competition Here Is Keener.

Here in the United States Borotra will be called upon to meet continually faster services, harder and more accurate passing shots than in Europe. He will be compelled to swap drives from the base line with many players.

One of two things will result during the coming season, either Borotra will, through necessity, develop a more adequate forehand ground stroke which will be able to meet the demands placed upon it, or he will lose all confidence in his game, it will deteriorate and he will sink into tennis oblivion. I look to see him pass through the former stage.

Borotra is young but experienced and while not a keen student of tennis like his countryman, Rene Lacoste, is a keen and earnest player. Borotra is planning a long hard tennis season as preparation to represent France in the interzone final round of the Davis Cup if the French team emerges victorious in the European zone.

Borotra a Showman.

This long season should bring Borotra face to face with Richards, Williams, Alonzo, Washburn, Lott and the other Eastern stars many times and during the later weeks of the season find the Californians, Johnston, the Kinseys, Snodgrass, Griffin and Casey, among his opponents.

Borotra should prove very popular with the American public. He is colorful, brilliant, amusing. He has a shade of true showmanship in his court manner. The public enjoys a man who brings off the sensational shot, and certainly Borotra is nothing if not sensational.

It seems to me in watching him that he seldom uses his feet to stand upon when making shots, for they always seem to be off the ground.

Even Borotra's "tam" is a bit of picturesque staging. It serves the double purpose of holding in place his long hair and adding an interesting bit of Montmartre to the general atmosphere of the match.

I believe that the advent of Borotra to the United States will be of material benefit.

TOM SHARKEY, AT 51, TAKES OUT A BOXING LICENSE IN CALIFORNIA

By the Associated Press.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., April 21.—Tom Sharkey, veteran of many a historic boxing match, who has been away from the game for years, today took out a boxing license and will return to the ring again.

The veteran will appear only in boxing exhibitions, he announced.

Sharkey's application for a boxer's license gives his age as 51. A partial record of his ring achievements is also included. He made his start in 1898 and fought such leading pugilists of his time as James Corbett, Jim Jeffries, Peter Maher, Kid McCoy and Joe Choynski.

Stecher Throws Renato Gardini In 58 Minutes

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 21.—Joe Stecher clamped the shears hold on Renato Gardini and squeezed him into utter submission in just 58 minutes and five seconds, in their wrestling bout at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory last night.

The scissors grinder got his grip at a time when Gardini was balking over the traces and raising all sorts of ructions with Joe's noble dome. Three times the Italian had run at Joe, grasping his head in a sort of reverse head lock and flopped him to the floor over his shoulder. Each time Joe got up full of fight and scissors intentions.

The fourth time Gardini rushed in Joe was waiting for him. Stecher seemed to fairly leap at him and both tumbled in a heap. Stecher's legs wrapped themselves about Gardini's middle and he would have said "uncle" had he had breath left to peep. As it was, his shoulders went to the floor gradually and Lou Magnolia, flat on the floor with them, tapped Joe's shoulders in token of victory.

Gardini Pulls "the Old Stuff."

Gardini, still full of fight, was up immediately, protesting that to the best of his knowledge his shoulder blades had not touched the floor. Eventually he took Joe's hand, though he glared fearfully.

Gardini was always fearful of Stecher's leg grip. He made no bones about it. Every time Stecher moved for the hold Gardini wriggled or ran like a centipede. He was gameness itself when Joe got several of the grips on him. Indeed, he made fewer faces than "Strangler" Lewis or Zbyszko used to put on when Joe tried to grind them in twain.

Rickey Figures His Attack Will Be Eve[...] Hafey Returns to the Batting Orde[...] Sothoron Deliver "the C[...]

By Herman Weck[e]
Of the Post-Dispatch Spor[ts]

The best Cardinal baseball club in ye[ars ...] this morning following a successful trip. O[...] four resulted in victories, and the club toda[y ...] percentage of .571. The team is but one g[ame ...] Giants and the second position Reds.

The team opened poorly in Cincinnati, dropping the first three clashes in which the batters were not batting, while the pitchers failed to deliver. Thereafter the devastating punch of the club returned, while in the last two clashes of the trip the club had real pitching served by Leo Dickerman and Allan Sothoron.

The Cardinal club of 1925 has a punch, no doubting that. Any team that includes in its batting order such hitters as Hornsby, Bottomley and Bell, following each other, will score runs. But Manager Rickey figures that this attack will be even greater when Chick Hafey returns to the game regulars. All are long-distance hitters, who can be used against any kind of flinging.

Nine-Run Average in 4 Games.

Following the first three contests, during which but five runs were scored, the team tallied 36 times in the four tilts won, an average of 9 runs a game.

However, aside from the batting and the pitching, the players have confidence. They are certain that they will be contenders in the coming National League flag race. And this confidence, which was helped along greatly by four successive victories, will help greatly in the coming series against the Reds, Pirates and Cubs on the home lot.

Reds Most Feared.

Of the trio, the Reds are the most feared. Jack Hendricks has pitching. The Cubs today are a sorry looking lot. Bill Killefer has some good pitchers, but they were unable to stop the Rickeymen. The team has no attack. Everyone waits for Gabby Hartnett to come to the plate. Unless he chases over his mates, the Bruins seldom put over a run. Killefer is badly in need of infielders and outfielders. And this same Cub team, which lost three straight to the Cardinals, made merry with the Pirates. So Pittsburg today cannot be so much.

Yesterday, in the final game played with the Cubs at Chicago, which was won, 2 to 1, Allan Sothoron gave an exhibition of real pinch-pitching. Sothoron held the Bruins to four hits, which means that in the last two battles, Cardinal flingers gave just eight safeties and one run. But Sothoron was in a tight place in four of the last five rounds.

Hartnett Hits Homer.

The lone run off Sothoron was the result of a smash into the left field seats by Hartnett in the second. It was the Bruin catcher's sixth of the year.

However, Sothoron did his first real pitching in the fifth. In this round Miller opened with a double but failed to get around. In the seventh Hartnett walked, was sacrificed to second but Miller and Statz failed. Grimm opened the eighth with a walk and got around to third but Heathcote lined out for the final out of the inning.

In the ninth, Sothoron was at his best after Adams opened with a double. The next batter was Hartnett. He sent a fly to Mueller on which Adams reached third. That brought up Friberg and Miller. But Adams got no further. Friberg fanned a third strike, while Miller swung and missed the final one. It was real pitching and it gave Sothoron his second victory of the campaign.

While the Cardinals won, it cannot be said that the team's great punch was in evidence.

Hornsby Starts With Home Run.

Hornsby hit a homer in the first. In the third Blades walked, Hornsby singled and Bottomley hit a long fly for the other run off John Blake, but numerous other opportunities presented themselves.

1925 CARDINALS APPEAR TO BE REAL PENNANT FACTOR

Rickeymen, Home in Third Place, Show Real Punch In Winning Four Games

Rickey Figures His Attack Will Be Even Stronger When Chick Hafey Returns to the Batting Order—Dickerman and Sothoron Deliver "the Goods."

By Herman Wecke,
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

The best Cardinal baseball Club in years returned to St. Louis this morning following a successful trip. Of the seven games played, four resulted in victories, and the club today is in third place, with a percentage of .571. The team is but one game behind the first place Giants and the second position Reds.

The team opened poorly in Cincinnati, dropping the first three games in which the batters were not batting, while the pitchers failed to deliver. Thereafter the devastating punch of the club returned, while in the last two clashes of the trip the club had real pitching served by Leo Dickerman and Allan Sothoron.

The Cardinal club of 1925 has a punch, no doubting that. Any team that includes in its batting order such hitters as Hornsby, Bottomley and Bell, following each other, will score runs. But Manager Rickey figures that this attack will be even greater when Chick Hafey returns to the game regulars. All are long-distance hitters, who can be used against any kind of flinging.

Nine-Run Average in 4 Games.

Following the first three contests, during which but five runs were scored, the team tallied 36 times in the four tilts won, an average of 9 runs a game.

However, aside from the batting and the pitching, the players have confidence. They are certain that they will be contenders in the coming National League flag race. And this confidence, which was helped along greatly by four successive victories, will help greatly in the coming series against the Reds, Pirates and Cubs on the home lot.

Reds Most Feared.

Of the trio, the Reds are the most feared. Jack Hendricks has a pitching. The Cubs today are a sorry looking lot. Bill Killefer has some good pitchers, but they were unable to stop the Rickeymen. The team has no attack. Everyone waits for Gabby Hartnett to come to the plate. Unless he chases over his mates, the Bruins seldom put over a run. Killefer is badly in need of infielders and outfielders. And this same Cub team, which beat three straight to the Cardinals, made merry with the Pirates. So Pittsburg today cannot be so much.

Yesterday, in the final game played with the Cubs at Chicago, which was won, 2 to 1, Allan Sothoron gave an exhibition of real pitching. Sothoron held the Bruins to four hits, which means that in the last two battles, Cardinal fingers gave just eight safeties and one run. But Sothoron was in a tight place in four of the last six rounds.

Hartnett Hits Homer.

The lone run off Sothoron was the result of a smash into the left field seats by Hartnett in the second. It was the Bruin catcher's fifth of the year.

However, Sothoron did his first real pitching in the fifth. In this round Miller opened with a double and failed to get around. In the ninth Hartnett walked, was sacrificed to second but Miller and Statz failed. Grimm opened the eighth with a walk and got around to third when Heathcote lined out for the final out of the inning.

In the ninth, Sothoron was at his best after Adams opened with a double. The next batter was Hartnett. He sent a fly to Mueller on which Adams reached third. That brought up Friberg and Miller. But Adams got no further. Friberg reached a third strike, while Miller swung and missed the final one. It was a real pitching and it gave Sothoron his second victory of the campaign.

While the Cardinals won, it cannot be said that the team's great batting was in evidence.

Grushy Starts With Home Run.

Grushy hit a homer in the first, Hornsby in the third Blades walked, Grushy singled and Bottomley scored a long fly for the other run. John Blake, but numerous other opportunities presented themselves, as can be seen by the fact that 13 Cardinals were stranded. Three members of the Rickey clan were cut down at the plate during the progress of the contest.

During the nine innings 20 members of the Rickeymen reached first base. Twice the bases were filled with none out, while on another occasion the sacks were peopled with one out; but each time the hit to send in the runs was lacking, so effective was Blake in the pinches.

While the opening trip was successful in the matter of games won and lost, in fact it is the best start a Cardinal club has ever gotten away to, the tour also was successful from a financial standpoint. Despite the cold weather in Chicago yesterday, 4000 paid at the gate, bringing the total of paid admissions for the trip close to 83,000, an average of better than 10,000 a day.

Cardinals Idle Today; Cincinnati Club Will Open Here Tomorrow

THE CARDINALS, as well as the other N. L. clubs, are idle today, out of respect for the late Charles Ebbets, president of the Brooklyn club, who will be buried this afternoon.

For the opening with the Reds tomorrow, Rickey has several pitchers ready, among them Jess Haines, Flint Rhem and Bill Sherdel.

Although the club has four southpaws, Rickey has not started a left-hander on the hill this season. In fact, southpaws have worked in but six innings in the seven contests.

"RUN BY 'RED' GRANGE JUST AS ARTISTIC AS PAVLOWA'S DANCE"

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 21. — Bob Zuppke, famous football coach at the University of Illinois, in a talk on athletics here last night declared that "civilization follows the ball."

He went at once to the defense of football, insisting it was just as much responsible for the general betterment of America as any other single factor. He traced the game back to Sparta and said the present day forward pass is merely a development of a style of play used centuries ago.

Describing "Red" Grange, his celebrated halfback, as "just as much an artist as a man or woman who paints on canvas or writes," Zuppke held the fleet halfback up as one of the greatest symbols of clean living in the land.

"A long run by Grange," he said, "is just as artistic as a dance by Pavlowa. There is the same rhythm in Grange's soul. The only difference is that he expresses it on the gridiron instead of on the stage. There is even more art in Red's run —no one tries to knock Pavlowa down."

MARANVILLE WILL BE BACK WITHIN TWO WEEKS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, April 21. — Walter "Rabbit" Maranville, the Cub shortstop, will not be able to return to the Bruins' batting order for at least two more weeks, he announced here today. The star infielder is recuperating from a fractured ankle suffered during the training season.

Maranville sits on the Cubs' bench during all the games. He says that he is now able to bend his foot. He has the injured member massaged every day. According to Maranville, physicians assert that the ankle will be stronger than ever.

Maranville, when he gets back into the game, will play short, Jimmy McAuley, now playing the position for Killefer's band, going to the bench.

Adolfo Luque on Way to Big Season, Two Games Indicate

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 21.

Two years ago Luque, then 33, pitched himself to the top of the National League box men. He won 27 games and lost eight for Cincinnati, leading the circuit in percentage and effectiveness. At the end of that season the Cuban was one of baseball's most valuable players.

In 1924, however, Luque fell far behind, and his passing was a mystery to the followers of the game. He won 10 and lost 15, pitching only 13 complete battles.

Today, Luque has pitched two games in the National League race. Last Wednesday he defeated the Cardinals, allowing seven hits, and Sunday he was victorious over the Pirates, again allowing seven hits.

Time in Marathon Behind Record

"Chuck" Mellon First in Two Hours and 33 Minutes, 3 Minutes Slower Than Mark.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, April 21.—Charles L. "Chuck" Mellor, 31-year-old Chicago mechanic, fulfilled a long-cherished ambition yesterday when he won the American marathon, annual feature event of the Boston Athletic Association. Running against a bitter northwest wind that blew diagonally across the course, in a temperatuer that hovered only a few degrees above the freezing point, Mellor covered the long Olympic distance, 26 miles and 385 yards, from Hopkinton to Boston, in 2 hours, 33 minutes and 3-5 of a second.

His time was only 3 minutes and 20 2-5 seconds slower than the record set for the distance last year by Clarence H. DeMar. The victory carried with it the National Amateur Athletic Union Marathon championship.

DeMar, 37-year-old Melrose, Mass., typesetter and Marathon veteran, who four times has captured the Boston Marathon, finished second, just 36 2-5 seconds behind Mellor, who wore the colors of the Illinois A. C. Third was Frank Zuna, Newark plumber and former winner. Fourth was Albert Michelson, East Portchester, N. Y., veteran runner.

Three of the first dozen runners to finish were members of the Finnish-American A. C., New York, two came from Nova Scotia, and two more came from East Portchester, N. Y.

MIDLAND VALLEY TO HOLD TOURNEY MAY 2

The golf season at Midland Valley Country Club will be officially opened Saturday, May 2, when the first of the spring tournaments is scheduled. The course is in excellent shape and the new greens expert, W. H. Diddle, is bringing the greens through in fine shape. There will be a stag smoker in the evening.

President Talbert is working in connection with the tournament committee on a series of tournaments for the women golfers of the club who are manifesting more than their usual interest in the game this season.

Not the least of the new things President Talbert is putting through this year is welfare work for the caddies. Dr. Jean J. Mason has taken charge of this work and promises much for the player, but much more for the caddies' welfare.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Then and Now.

TWENTY years ago today the blithe St. Louisan, on holiday bent, with pay check in his pocket, could spend his time and his money at either of two local racetracks. He had his pick as between the nonconformist or "outlaw" track of P. J. Carmody, known as the Union Jockey Club course, or the Western Jockey Club track, which might be the Fair Grounds, Delmar or Kinloch Park, according to stage of the season.

Today the gentleman of leisure and means can't get closer to a horserace than about 300 miles, unless he leaves the city. Furthermore, if he is a betting man —and the species is legion in number—he has to bet blind, for the most part, as to jockey, odds and track condition.

In other words, the banning of racing from St. Louis really prohibited only the pleasurable and harmless features of the game, and has left what the reformers are pleased to call its "viciousness" in all its pristine wickedness—and then some.

• • •

The "Invisible" Game.

"INVISIBLE horseracing" is a tremendous betting enterprise today; and it takes toll of the bettors' money that the slate system of the old betting rings never exacted, even in the free-gate, cut-throat days of Union racetrack.

As with the liquor problem, prohibition in racetrack betting has entirely failed to prohibit. It has only made it harder and more costly.

Speaks for Itself.

JACK CURLEY, wrestling promoter, who has been fighting the so-called trust, is smiling from ear to ear these days.

It happened since Zbyszko threw Wayne Munn and gained the title. The present champion is a brother to Wladek Zbyszko, Curley's ace—which may afford some ground for hope that the stars of the Curley stable—Stecher and Zibby junior—will get a chance at the title—something that Lewis and Munn refused to grant.

A letter from Curley, which speaks for itself, follows:

> Dear Mr. Wray:
>
> I hope you will know by this time that I stuck to the truth in the Munn matter all the way through.
>
> There never was such a stunt pulled, and I hope that there never will be again. I can say that Munn will go down in history with Herr Placke, who was imported from Ellis Island as the great Dutch champion to meet McCoy, or the great Mike Morrissey, who came all the way from Hester street, as the champion of Ireland, to fight Peter Maher.
>
> The only difference is that the promoters of that day were ashamed out with one appearance.
>
> I hope it will never happen again. Always yours,
>
> JACK CURLEY.

Athletes as Scholars.

COLLEGE professors who entertain the belief that athletic sports interfere with scholarship in schools and colleges may learn from Prof. Martin Kemp of Wooster, and from Prof. Collins, the secretary of Princeton University, that the idea is all wrong.

Prof. Kemp declares that he has found that athletes participating in organized games rank higher in their studies than non-athletic students, as a body. Football players, he declares, are slightly below the other athletes, but they, too, surpass the mine run of students.

A Princeton report points out that the 67 athletes comprising the Varsity Club maintained a considerably higher average than the student body. Fifteen of this number won scholarships!

"When a man is competing for a team," commented Prof. Collins, "his nervous system is keyed up, his mind is alert and his habits are regular, enabling him to do his work better. I am a strong advocate of competitive athletics as an aid to maintaining high scholarship ratings."

After that we look for a soft pedal on the Athletic Blues so frequently sung by nonprogressive faculty members.

Treating Him Rough.

A Down-and-Outer drifted into a downtown cigar store and asked for a dime to "get across the bridge."

"You don't need a dime," commented the Wise Guy. "Just walk down Seventh street until you come to a bridge. It's perfectly free. Just toddle across."

"But look at my shoes," moaned the D.-and-O." They won't last half way across the bridge."

"When they drop off, try walking on your hands," was the marble-faced reply.

Whereupon the D.-and-O. knew he was in Scotch, and beat it.

Speaking of Records.

ALL sorts of unusual distances are being tried by athletes in order to make new records possible.

But none of the runners of today are tackling the joint record established in 1909 by Lawson Robertson, Olympic coach, and Harry Hillman Jr., himself a famous athlete, both students at Pennsylvania University, then.

It is scarcely more remarkable, however, than the record of A. Forrester, made in Toronto, Canada, 37 years ago, and still standing—that of running 100 yards BACKWARDS in 14 seconds.

Try either stunt and see if you even finish the distance, much less make records.

Joe Baker Wins On a Knockout

Joe Baker, former local amateur heavyweight boxing champion, won on a technical knockout over Bryant Porter in the second round of the feature bout at Scott Field last night. Referee Walter Heisner was forced to stop the bout when Barker's heavy right crosses dropped Porter on the ropes in a dazed condition.

In the semiwindup, Jackie Poole of Belleville won a point decision from Pvt. Figuerro of Jefferson Barracks in six rounds. They weighed 126 pounds.

Artie Knupp of Scott Field won on a knockout in the first round over Kid Clark of Belleville. They were 122-pounders.

King Kummerich of Belleville injured his right thumb in the first round and was unable to come out for the second round against Soldier Shoulter of Scott Field, who was awarded the bout on a technical knockout.

Kid Shane was so severely punished in the first round by Eddie Brady that Referee Heisner stopped the bout. They were both from Scott Field.

The judges were Maj. Duckworth, James Donohue and Earl Brady. The timekeeper was Chaplain McKenzie.

It was announced that Hughie Walker will oppose Jack Adams at Scott Field on May 8.

Yeatman Meets Soldan Today

Central and Roosevelt Nines Scheduled to Play Tomorrow.

The first of the week day games in the High School Baseball League will be played today when Yeatman meets Soldan at 4 o'clock. Tomorrow Central and Roosevelt, neither of whom have lost, will fight for first place. The games will be played at St. Louis University Field.

Central, after winning the opening fray from Cleveland, came back with a victory over St. Louis University High. Haferkamp and Heil will most likely be the opposing twirlers today with Hunt and Bickle the receivers.

If Soldan loses today, it will drop into a tie for the cellar with Cleveland, while Yeatman will climb. Jones will probably start on the mound for the West Enders, whereas Ens will pitch for Yeatman. Emo and Blumenkamp will do the catching.

EBBETS' FUNERAL TO BE HELD THIS AFTERNOON

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 21. — Silence will shroud the parks of the National League today while baseball pays its final tribute to Charles H. Ebbets, president of the Brooklyn club, who died Saturday.

Not only have the games been called off for the day, but all of the club presidents, National League President John A. Heydler, Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis and Brooklyn sporting editors will be among the honorary pallbearers at the funeral this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Holy Trinity Church of Brooklyn.

Flags of the National parks will be at half mast for the next 30 days while during the same period the members of the Brooklyn club will wear mourning bands on their uniforms. Members of the team and Manager Wilbert Robinson will attend the services.

Grand Circuit Feature.

PUBLIC SCHOOL TEAMS START PLAY FOR POST-DISPATCH TROPHY

One-Sided Scores Feature Contests In Three Groups

SHAW WINS, 16 TO 6

Two Good Pitching Performances by Youngsters at Fairgrounds

Public school teams in the race for the Post-Dispatch baseball trophy got off to a flying start under ideal weather conditions yesterday at three public parks. Two of the eight groups and part of another went through their first round games in seven well-played contests.

Fanning 21, Fremont 5.
Froebel 37, Hodgen 7.
Shaw 16, Monroe 6.

Group E, at Fairgrounds Park.
Ames 9, Ashland 2.
Bates 11, Columbia 3.
Elliot 21, Irving 9.

Group H, at Forest Park.
Benton 8, Adams 7.

The sluggers were in midseason form in all three games at Tower Grove Park and the games resulted in topheavy scores. The Shaw-Monroe contest proved to be the most interesting. The Shaw nine got an early lead, but Monroe threatened in several innings, the final outcome being a 16—6 victory for Shaw. The Shaw batters succeeded in gathering a total of 20 blows off two Monroe pitchers, one of which was a home run by Catcher Shauer.

Eliot Scores 21 Runs.

The games at Fairgrounds Park brought out a good brand of baseball and in two instances airtight pitching. The Irving nine was no match for the heavy-hitting Eliot School lads who ran up a total of 21 runs in seven innings. Shockley of Eliot looked good on the hill, yielding eight hits and getting three hits out of six trips to the plate.

The Ames-Ashland was more of a nip-and-tuck affair, the issue being in doubt by small margins until the last few frames. The final verdict was a 9-2 victory for Ames. Finn and Wade made a smooth working battery for Ames.

Bates ran up 10 runs in the first two innings of the games with Columbia, but did not score again until the sixth. Guy Wells for Bates, showed up effectively, giving only three hits to his adversaries. Kny was his receiver. The score was 11 to 3.

At Forest Park Benton took a close game from the Adams School by a score of 8 to 7.

Sweetser Sets Record.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 21.—Jess Sweetser, national amateur golf champion, returned to New York from a week-end trip to the Pine Valley links at Clement, N. J., where he obtained a course record of 69. The former record of 72, which is par for the course, was held by George Rotan, Texas professional.

Billiard Notes

Ed Gibbons, one of the top ranking amateur balk line billiard players in St. Louis, established a new high run for local amateurs when he reached 134 in a game with F. R. Christman. This is said to be the highest run ever made by a St. Louis amateur player.

MILWAUKEE.—Johnny Layton and Arthur Thurnblad broke even in two National Three-Cushion League games. The scores: Layton 50-7-49, Thurnblad 43-6-49. Thurnblad 50-6-53, Layton 38-4-52.

PHILADELPHIA.—Otto Reiselt won two Three-Cushion League games from Allen Hall. The scores were 50 to 39 and 50 to 46. Reiselt had a high run of 5 and Hall ran 7.

NEW YORK.—Robert Cannefax took both Three-Cushion League games from Earl Lookabaugh of Boston. The scores were 50 to 41 in 49 innings and 50 to 41 in 60 innings. Cannefax ran 8 and 7.

PITTSBURG—Charles Ellis gained an even break in two Three-Cushion League games with Gus Copulos of Detroit. The scores: Copulos 50-8-61, Ellis 47-5-61. Ellis 50-11-58, Copulos 45-4-57.

Australian Boxer Arrives.

TIPS ON INSIDE BASE-BALL

THERE is a runner on first base, the batsman singles to right field and the runner on first attempts to advance to third on the hit.

What are the possibilities of this play and how should they be executed?

The shortstop's judgment figures prominently in this play, which has its variations. He moves in and lines up with the throw so as to cut it off, if he believes the runner going from first to third is almost certain to beat the throw. It is best to handle the throw on the fly.

The second baseman covers his bag so as to be in a position for a play at that base. The third baseman covers his bag. If the shortstop permits the ball to go through, the third baseman makes the play on the runner. If the shortstop cuts it off at the last minute to make a play at second, that player handles the ball. The picher backs up third base.

In one of the world series between the Giants and Yankees, Dave Bancroft, shortstop of the Giants, broke up two American League rallies by cutting the ball off and getting the runner trying to reach second.

DAVIS WINNER OF QUALIFYING HEAT OF ROLLER SKATING RACE

Ray Davis of St. Louis finished first, Cliff Howard of Los Angeles second, and Rodney Peters of St. Louis third, in the first two-mile qualifying heat of a world championship roller skating race inaugurated last night at the Palladium. Davis' triumph entitles him to compete in the final on next Monday night. His time for the two-mile course was 6:09 2-5.

Fifteen skaters participated in the two-trial heats of last night's program. The first three to finish in each of the mile events qualified for the two-mile race. Richard Molenauer of St. Louis won the first trial heat in 2:59 flat. Ray Davis finished second while Leon Flake of Fort Worth landed third place honors. The second trial was won by Al Cookson of St. Louis in 2:57 3-10. Cliff Howard finished second and Rodney Peters third in this event.

Webster Wins From U. City, 10-5

Winners Guilty of Ragged Fielding — Pitchers Do Good Work.

Webster defeated University City 10-5, at the Pershing Field yesterday in a County High School league game. This makes a triple tie for first place since Ritenour and Clayton are credited with opening victories.

Webster was charged with eight errors but University City did not take full advantage of the miscues.

Pelot and C. Tidd struck out nine men each. Pelot enjoys the distinction of being the only catcher in the county loop who can pitch. Yesterday he had some sort of a slow ball, which kept the Websterites guessing.

Fisher, the first baseman on Webster had a great day at bat with two doubles, besides scoring three runs. Tidd knocked out three hits. Davis with two singles, had half of his team's safeties, to carry off the batting honors for the losers.

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield are of finer quality (and hence of better taste) than in any other cigarette at the price.

TWO SOCIETIES OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY OF BATTLES

The one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the battles of Lexington and Concord was observed last night by two revolutionary organizations. The Missouri Society, Sons of the American Revolution, held a banquet at Hotel Chase, and the St. Louis Chapter, Sons of the Revolution, met at the Wednesday Club Auditorium.

At the Chase, Casper S. Yost, editor of the Globe-Democrat, presided, and read a British historian's account of the battles of Concord and Lexington. The Rev. Dr. Henry Alfred Porter, pastor of the Third Baptist Church, spoke of the significance of the day, and gave a warning against intolerance, race prejudice and disregard of law.

At the Wednesday Club, Lawrence Boogher presided, and the Rev. W. C. Timmons, pastor of the First Congregational Church, was the chief speaker. A motion picture representing the battle of Lexington was shown.

Attempt to Rob Bank Fails.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HILSBORO, Ill., April 21.—An attempt to rob Fillmore State Bank, southeast of here, last night was frustrated when N. B. Allen, an undertaker, was called out at midnight and saw a light and found four men had chisled a hole in the wall of the vault and were ready to blow the safe. An alarm was given and all four men escaped, leaving their tools.

Weber's Used Cars Sell! Why?

Last Month we SOLD ONE HUNDRED FIFTEEN USED CARS. WHY?

BECAUSE our appraiser CAREFULLY GOES over EVERY CAR taken in. We know its EXACT CONDITION.
BECAUSE we send all USED CARS THROUGH our SHOP and put them in SPLENDID CONDITION.
BECAUSE we paint them in BEAUTIFUL COLORS in our SHOP so that you will be PROUD of the CAR you BUY from US.
BECAUSE we have been the DISTRIBUTOR for STUDEBAKERS over fourteen years. We POINT with PRIDE to our RECORD.
BECAUSE we have sold USED CARS taken in EXCHANGE over FOURTEEN YEARS. We have THOUSANDS OF CUSTOMERS.
BECAUSE we have over ONE HUNDRED FIFTY from which to choose. We will sell the car you want—we have it in stock.
BECAUSE we are BACK of EVERY CAR WE SELL. We will see that you are PLEASED.

Below we give a partial list of cars we know will please you. Over one hundred fifty from which to choose.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

MRS. T. C.—Inquire of the second-hand book shops. They may be able to use the old almanac.

M. H. R.—Oliver Dougherty (Eganite), 30 years old, is in the Leavenworth Penitentiary. As far as we know he is not married.

EX-SOLDIER.—The oil fields of Texas are scattered over different sections of the State and their production varies. For definite information write to the "American," at Austin, Tex.

D. B.—Dr. Albert Einstein, author of the theory of relativity, although a German by birth, is a naturalized citizen of Switzerland, where, in Zurich, he taught physics. During and since the war he has been associated with the University of Berlin.

P.-D. READER.—The American Legion, composed of men and women who served honorably in the armed forces of the United States in the world war was organized in Paris, France, in 1919. The 1924 convention was held at St. Paul in September.

S. B.—Pour a few drops of ammonia into every greasy roasting pan or greasy cooking dish after half filling with warm water. A bottle of ammonia should always be kept near the sink for such uses. Never allow the pans to stand and dry, for it doubles the labor of washing, but pour in water and use ammonia and the work is half done.

M. W. — Geraniums should be kept moist, but should not be given too much water at a time. They need a sunny window. The plants should be kept in a fairly even temperature, and it should be borne in mind that they must have plenty of air, for they won't thrive in a "stuffy" room. Light and sun are necessary for all plants, and there is always more danger of getting too little than too much.

J. M. J.—The following are the names of President Coolidge's cabinet: Secretary of State, Frank Kellogg; Secretary of the Treasury, Andrew Mellon; Secretary of War, John Wingate Weeks; Attorney-General, John G. Sargent; Postmaster-General, Harry S. New; Secretary of Navy, Curtis D. Wilbur; Secretary of the Interior, Hubert Work; Secretary of Agriculture, William M. Jardine; Secretary of Commerce, Herbert Clark Hoover; Secretary of Labor, James John Davis.

CLARA.—To make a club sandwich arrange on slices of toast a lettuce leaf and then thin slices of cooked bacon, cover this with slices of cold roast chicken, and sprinkle with mayonnaise dressing. Cover with another piece of toast. Following is a fruit filling for sandwiches: One cup of dates, one cup of raisins, one cup of nuts (pecans or black walnuts); grind this all together and add the juice of two oranges and one lemon.

A. B. C. — Lightning usually strikes the highest object in the neighborhood. In view of the fact that steel structures are usually tall a steel building is therefore apt to be struck by lightning, but no more so than would another building of the same height and of other materials. If the building is made wholly of steel a person inside the building would not be injured in case the building was struck by lightning, though a person standing near the building on the outside might be injured.

A. B. C.—Aesop is the name of a famous Greek writer, who is said to have been born a slave in Samos late in the seventh century B. C., and to have gained his freedom by his cleverness. We may, however, well doubt whether he ever existed, as we have the most varied accounts of him, many of which on their face, are pure invention, and the fables which passed under his name were certainly not written until long after the period in which he is supposed to have lived. Socrates, in prison, turned some of the current Aesopic fables into elegiac verse, and about 320 B. C. Demetrius of Phalerum made a prose collection of fables known to his day. Whatever are the facts as to Aesop's existence, it is certain his name soon became a generic one attached to those beast fables which are part of the common property of the Indo-European peoples. The collection which now bears his name is for the most part prose paraphrases made by Barius.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

R. B.—Consult the City Chemist, Room 9, Municipal Courts building, Fourteenth and Market streets.

U. S. S.—Repeat request for list of dependable oculists, enclosing stamped addressed envelope. Physicians names are not printed in this column.

GREEN.—The conditions mentioned are difficult to recognize form description excepting that there is evident interference with the circulation. The interference might be from any of several conditions, varicose veins, milk leg, etc. The description rather fits the later condition.

R. E. D.—Blackheads is a disorder of the sebaceous gland of the skin, characterized by yellowish points. Very often the black points appear upon the unchanged skin. The disease is observed on the face, neck, chest and back chiefly. The affection though comparatively trifling, is often extremely annoying to those affected. It is due in part to idiosyncrasy, in part to a general sluggish performance, not only of the functions of the skin but also those of the whole body. Those affected are apt to suffer from dyspepsia and with constipation and in young women anemia and irregularities often exist. It is pre-eminently a disease of puberty, patients being almost invariably young men and women. Local treatment in some cases suffices to relieve the condition. Frequent bathing with hot water will aid in the process of removal. Stimulating ointment, especially those containing sulphur are useful, as the following: Precipitated sulphur one drachm, rose water ointment one ounce. Make into an ointment and rub into the affected surface at night. Another excellent preparation is as follows: Vinegar, 2 drachms, glycerine, 3 drachms; kalolini, 4 drachms. This forms a soft paste, to be spread on the surface at night and, if possible in the morning. If applied on the face the eyes should be kept shut, on account of the pungency of the vinegar. It dislodges the plugs, satisfactorily and they should be gently expressed, care being taken not to use much force for fear of inflaming the skin. In very obstinate cases the X-ray, carefully applied, will cure. A tonic internal treatment is sometimes called for.

MANY LOWS FOR YEAR IN STOCK LIST

Heavy Profit-Taking in Fairly Active Session — Call Money Rate Advanced Late in Day.

NEW YORK, April 21.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted financial review today says:

"Under the impetus of heavy profit-taking, prices of speculative securities declined sharply in today's fairly active session on the stock market. Selling was heaviest in some of the issues which had recently advanced to record high levels. United States Steel fell below 115 to a low for the movement, while Baldwin got back below 112. Cast Iron Pipe fell through 135. Universal Pipe broke through 30. Maxwell B stock was heavily sold at concessions and dropped to 76. Mack trucks dropped back nearly to 142. The selling gained momentum lat ein the day when the rate for call money was advanced first to 4 and then to 4½ per cent after renewals had been arranged at 3½ per cent.

New Lows for Year.

"In the reaction which gained momentum in the early afternoon, a long list of stocks reached new low levels for the year, the copper group being prominent in this connection. Anaconda, Mother Lode, Nevada and others eased off under liquidation. Pressure was exerted against Commercial Solvents issues, Texas Gulf Sulphur, St. Joseph Lead, Air Reduction, Radio and Remington Typewriter. On the other hand some of the motor shares were bid up, such as Hudson and Mack Trucks. Studebaker was strong and purchases of several blocks were noted. The speculative community watched with interest the drive against Cast Iron Pipe and Universal pipe which carried these stocks to new lows.

* * *

Favorable Developments Ahead.

"Irregular movements in some parts of the list were due in a measure to a variety of reports regarding developments expected in the near future. The weakness of Cast Iron Pipe and Universal Pipe carried them to the lowest levels of the year.

"Strength in Norfolk & Western was attributed to reports that the road had made arrangements to lease the Virginian and that negotiations might be reopened for leasing the Norfolk to the Pennsylvania. Buying of Mack Trucks was based on suggestions that the directors would approve a plan to split the common stock on a four-for-one basis and initiate dividends of the new stock at the rate of $3 a year. U. S. Realty's rise to a record high for the year was linked with expectations that a stock dividend of 20 per cent would be ordered by directors next month and that thereafter the annual dividend rate would be increased from $8 to $10.

Strength in Sterling.

"An advance in exchange rates on London featured quiet trading in foreign exchanges today. The strength was attributed to expectations of an early settlement of the proposed resumption of the gold standard and to reports that an American loan would be raised at this time to take care of any adverse movement when gold payments are resumed. French francs continued firm, while Scandinavian exchange recovered and Dutch guilders displayed strength.

* * *

Trend Lower in Commodities.

"Although there was a recovery before the end of trading in the grain markets, the trend for the better part of the day was toward lower levels and prices closed fractionally lower on the active contracts for wheat, corn and rye. Favorable weather conditions brought about early selling and carried prices of May wheat contracts below $1.50 a bushel, but before the close there was a rally which regained the $1.50 mark. Traders recalled the fact that weather conditions like the present prevailed in 1905 and 1915, when bumper crops were produced and there was an inclination on the part of chart followers to look for a repetition of the 10-year cycle.

* * *

Rain Lowers Cotton.

"Cotton declined on reports of rain in the Southwest, which precipitated selling pressure in the local market and in the South.

HOG PRICES DECLINE IN A SLOW MARKET

NATIONAL STOCK YARDS, Ill., April 21.—Receipts today estimated: Cattle and calves, 8000; hogs, 13,500; sheep, 550; horses and mules, 50.

HOGS—Today's hog receipts were estimated at 13,000 head, locally. 11 markets receiving 96,300 head. Last Tuesday the 11-market total was 82,780. For the two days this week the total for 11 markets is 239,200 head against 197,780 for the same two days last week. Quality today was good. Trading opened slow to shippers and butchers at a decline of 15c to 20c from yesterday's best time, or about steady with the low close Monday. A top of $12.50 was paid early for some choice light averages with buyers taking the big end of the offerings from 160 to 230 pounds in a spread of $12.35 to $12.45, the latter price paid sparingly. Packers were indifferent early, and again appeared quite bearish in their views.

Pigs, too, were slow, although prices ruled about steady with the low time yesterday or 25c under a few of the initial deals Monday. The strong weight averages sold in a very narrow spread, with the shipping hogs, weights from 130 to 150 pounds, quotable at $12.25 to $12.40 largely, occasional deals higher. Medium weights from 110 to 130 pounds found outlet at prices ranging from $11.50 to $12.25, light pigs and pee-wees from 110 pounds and under at $9.50 to $11.50, with stocker kinds ranging downward to $6.

Opening sales of packer sows figured about steady with the extreme low time yesterday, or 15c to 25 lower than early prices. Offerings sold around $11.50 largely. Stags continued at steady prices, $10 to $10.50 catching the bulk in this class.

CATTLE—Another downward swing in the market today reduced quotations 25c in most departments. The loss applied to beef steers, light steers and heifers and beef cows. Bulls were unevenly lower and canner and cutter cows about steady. Veal calves at $9 for practical top and bulls were 50c lower, improved quality considered. Receipts of cattle and calves were of good volume, quality lacking extra. Movement was slow in most departments due to bearish tactics of buyers. Beef steers bulked at $8.25 to $9.60 per cwt. and 11 cars of South Texas beeves cashed at $7.75. The better grades of light yearlings cashed largely in the $8 and $9 columns, and beef cows were most numerous at $5 to $6.75.

Quotations: Beef steers, range $6.75 to $11.75; light steers and heifers, range $4.50 to $11.75; beef cows, range $4 to $8; cutter cows, range $3 to $4; canner cows, range $2 to $3; bologna bulls, range $4 to [illegible]; stocker and feeder steers, range $4 to [illegible].

GRAINS ARE IRREGULAR ON LOCAL EXCHANGE

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, April 21.—Grain prices were irregular on the exchange today. Rain in the Northwest and other wheat country exerted bearish influence. Firmness of corn was a feature for a time. After the noon hour all futures were net lower.

The reported reduction of more than 40,000,000 bushels in estimated yield of India was a late factor.

In the local cash grain market wheat was dull. The small offerings were mostly of undesirable quality. Demand was limited. Corn was steady to 1c lower and slow. Oats were steady to 1c lower. Demand was fair.

July wheat opened nearly a cent higher and after selling under previous close, reacted and showed net gain. Liverpool wheat closed 4d to 4⅝d higher. Winnipeg wheat prices were higher. May corn was fractionally higher and July corn sold net higher early, after a lower start.

July wheat opened at $1.37⅝. May corn $1.08½ and July corn $1.12⅝.

The three Northwestern markets combined had 536 cars of wheat, compared with 398 a week ago and 703 last year. Minneapolis receiving 81 cars, Duluth 41 and Winnipeg 411.

Local wheat receipts which were 49,400 bushels, compared with 66,300 a week ago and 61,100 last year, included 12 cars local and 26 through. Corn receipts, which were 43,400 bushels, compared with 18,200 a week ago and 144,200 last year, included 23 cars local and 8 through. Oats receipts, which were 174,000 bushels, compared with 116,000 a week ago and 110,000 last year, included 67 cars local and 20 through. Hay receipts were 36 cars local and 19 through.

Boston Wool Market.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, April 21.—The reopening sales of wool in Australia after the Easter holiday has steadied here to some extent and Australian wools are slightly stronger, with super-seventy stock selling around $1.40. Holders are offering 64x70s at $1.20 a pound clean. Pulled wools showed some activity today, but fleeces and fine territory wools continued to drag.

WHEAT MARKET ERRATIC ON CHICAGO MARKET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, April 21.—Corn showed whatever steady strength was evident in the grain markets today. Wheat was extremely nervous and erratic while oats trade continued dull.

Wheat continued its erratic course in the last hour. A sudden disappearance of offerings caused a 3c rise in less than 10 minutes. Last prices, however, were slightly under the high point, but ¼c to ¾c lower. Corn closed unchanged to ⅜c lower. Oats closed ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher. Provisions rallied on short covering and lard was 7½c to 10c higher. Local cash sales were 29,000 bu wheat, 82,000 bu corn and 128,000 bu oats. The seaboard reported 200,000 bu wheat and 200,00 bu oats taken for export.

The frequent price changes in the wheat pit reflected the smallness of the trade. Outstanding features were the lack of buying power, the lack of trade and some selling for Eastern account. The market was sensitive and a little buying or selling quickly changed the price trend. Liverpool did not respond fully to our advance of yesterday and this, together with beneficial rains over the Middle West, Northwest and parts of Oklahoma tended to make buyers bashful. But whenever buying appeared the market was quick to respond. All rallies were hard to hold, since Eastern houses sold on every bulge.

The advance in Liverpool was attributed to a better consumptive demand. Foreign buyers continue to hold back and little export business was reported at the seaboard. One local house carrying 500,000 bushels wheat at Montreal, is reported pressing this for sale at concessionary prices but has been unable to dispose of all the holdings. Mills are inquiring after cash wheat and bidding better premiums.

Although the corn price was choppy, support was better than in wheat. Interest, however, was not so broad as yesterday. Sentiment continues bullish and buyers stand ready to support the market on every weak spot. Recent wet weather will tend to delay planting but there is still plenty of time to get the crop into the ground. Most shippers reported Eastern demand for corn slow but a few houses made fair sales.

Oats showed little change. The market was influenced by corn. The newly seeded crop in most sections is being favored by beneficial rains. Shipping demand was fair.

Provisions again were lower. A continuation of May liquidation was in evidence.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, April 21.—New low records for the year were established in the raw sugar market today when Porto Rican sold at 4.37 delivered. Sales included 25,000 bags of Cuban at 4.40 and 5000 bags Porto Rican at 4.37, for prompt shipment, to local refineries.

Further declines occurred in the raw sugar futures market, owing to the weak spot market, and selling by houses with Cuban connections. Midday prices were 2 to 4 points lower for active positions.

No changes were noted in the refined market, where list prices continued at 5.70 to 5.85 for fine granulated. A better inquiry was reported.

Initial Dividend Declared.

NEW YORK, April 21.—An initial dividend of 50 cents a share was declared today on the capital stock of the Penn Fuel Co., which operates in the Bradford oil fields. The company is controlled by the South Penn Oil Co., a former Standard Oil subsidiary.

Class A Common Stock
(Without Par Value)

AUTHORIZED CAPITALIZATION	OUTSTANDING
25,000 Shares Class A	25,000 Shares
55,000 Shares Class B	50,000 Shares

The Class A Common Stock has priority in dividends, receiving $3.00 per share in any one year, if earned, before any dividend can be paid on class B; then after $3.00 per share has been paid on Class B, both stocks share and share alike. Holders of Class A Stock have the privilege of converting one share of Class A Stock for 1 1-5 shares of Class B Stock any time within five years, beginning July 1st, 1925.

HISTORY: The Skouras Brothers started exhibiting motion pictures in 1914, with an investment of $3,200.00, buying a one-fourth interest in The Olympia Theater. The only other money invested in the business was $62,500 paid in by outside interests in 1920. On the 25th day of February, 1921, they organized the present Company, which today owns and operates the New Grand Central and West End Lyric, and leases and operates the Lyric Airdome. The Skouras Brothers Enterprise, Inc., also owns 50% of the St. Louis Amusement Company, which operates and owns in fee the following theaters: Grand-Florissant Theater, Grand-Florissant Airdome, Lindell Theater, Maffitt Theater, Novelty Theater, Manchester Theater, Manchester Airdome, Shenandoah Theater, Gravois Theater, Pershing Theater, Arco Theater; and also operates and leases the following: Tivoli Theater, Shaw Theater, Arsenal Theater, Pageant Theater, Pageant Airdome, Shenandoah Airdome, Lafayette Theater, Russell Airdome, Compton Airdome, Zelphia Airdome and North Grand Airdome. They also own 50% of the Buland Amusement Company, which leases and operates the Downtown Lyric and Capitol.

In addition, the Skouras Brothers Enterprise, Inc., owns approximately 3¼% of the First National Corporation (one of the largest producers and distributors of motion pictures in the world), which gives Skouras Bros. Enterprises, Inc., the exclusive Franchise Rights for First National Pictures for the State of Missouri. The Company also owns the rights for the eastern part of Missouri and Southern Illinois to Warner Brothers' pictures, and the rights for Missouri and Southern Illinois for Educational Film pictures and the Preferred Picture Company. Skouras Bros. Enterprise, Inc., also own and operate the St. Louis Film Exchange, which deals in Independent Motion picture productions.

In addition to their other theaters, the Skouras Bros. Enterprise, Inc., intend to construct the Ambassador Theater and Office Building at the corner of Seventh and Locust Streets, St. Louis. This will be one of the finest theaters in the country and should materially increase the profits.

EARNINGS: The average earnings for the two years ended December 31, 1924, of Skouras Brothers Enterprise, Inc., and 100% owned subsidiaries were more than sufficient to pay an annual dividend of $3.00 per share on the Class "A" stock. Taking into consideration the Company's proportion of the earnings of companies in which it owns a 50% interest, the earnings are more than twice the amount required to pay a $3.00 dividend on the Class "A" stock.

The Company's officers are of the opinion that upon completion of the Ambassador Theater and office building the earnings will be greatly increased.

With a book value of $27.25 per share, this stock is offered for subscription on the basis of its present and prospective earning power.

C. & O. Annual Meeting Postponed.

RICHMOND, Va., April 21.—The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway was postponed until June 23, after counsel for the minority group of stockholders opposing the leasing of the road to the greater Nickel Plate system objectd to the meeting being held because the annual report of the company had not been placed in the hands of stockholders 15 days before the meeting.

A letter from the minority group's counsel protesting against the meeting was read by President Harahan. W. A. Colston, general counsel and vice president of the Nickel Plate and a director of the Chesapeake & Ohio, moved that the meeting be postponed.

The minority group pointed out that the rules of the New York Stock Exchange, subscribed to by the Chesapeake & Ohio, required the annual report to be placed in the hands of stockholders 15 days before the annual meeting.

Dry Goods Market Review.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 21.—The cotton cloths market showed little activity today, but the tone continued decidedly firm. Print cloths were quoted at 9½c for 64x60s and 11½c for 68x72. The raw silk market reflected the inactivity of Yokohama, and while quotations remained unchanged at Monday's level, the tone was not quite so firm.

Bond Market Review

NEW YORK, April 21.—Bond prices again wavered in today's trading, which was featured by another sharp reaction in French obligations, following the ministerial declaration foreshadowing the ultimate imposition of drastic financial measures for France. The Republic's bonds declined about a point each, while losses of the French municipal and railroad liens ranged from one to 2 points. Selling of these issues unsettled the rest of the foreign list, Serbian 8s dropping 1⅛ points. Conflicting price movements marked dealings in domestic corporation bonds. Norfolk and Western convertible 6s moved up 2 points and Chicago and Terre Haute income 5s a point. A number of other rail liens yielded fractionally on profit taking. Wickwire Spencer Steel 7s fell back 2 points.

SKOURAS STOCK BRINGS PREMIUM ON EXCHANGE

ST. LOUIS STOCK EXCHANGE, April 21.—Trading was begun today in the newly listed Skouras Bros. Enterprise, Inc., class "A" common stock, without par value. 25,000 shares of which were admitted to trading. The stock was offered for public subscription, through Lorenzo E. Anderson & Co. and A. G. Edwards & Sons at $36 a share.

The initial sale was a lot of 25 shares at $37. The price later went to the subscription basis.

RAIN CAUSES LOWER TREND TO COTTON

NEW YORK, April 21.—Although the cotton market opened steady today at 12 points higher to 1 lower in response to firm Liverpool cables, it quickly yielded to active selling pressure based on rain reports from Texas and broke to 24.55c for May and 24.60c for October. These prices represented a drop of 26 to 27 points from the highest opening levels.

Private advices said that good rains had fallen in Western Texas and Oklahoma at least partially relieving the drouth, and this, with weakness in the New Orleans market and a later severe drop in Liverpool brought out active Wall street, Liverpool and Southern selling. Most of the early demand came from the trade who are buying on the scale down and from local shorts replacing sales made yesterday.

The market steadied at midday on reports that Texas rainfalls had been inadequate. May contracts, after having touched 24.40c, rallied to 24.50c, and October moved up from 24.48c to 24.59c. Prices at noon, however, were still 16 to 23 points below last night's closing levels.

May later declined to 24.32c and October to 24.37c under local liquidation but an early afternoon covering movement was promoted by bullish spot advices from North Carolina. Holders were said to have over-exported and there was a good inquiry from American mills with cotton hard to buy. Prices rallied about 15 to 18 points from the bottom on this news and the undertone was steadier at 2 o'clock.

Broom Corn

WINIFRED BLACK
A PUSSY-FOOT LIFE

WINIFRED BLACK

IF you had your life to live over again, how different would you be?

I asked my cousin—who is always so nice—about it.

My cousin leaned her head back and laughed.

Then she said: "Well, I'll tell you—you'll be surprised when I do tell you. I'd be different from what I've always been. No, I don't believe I am quite as nice as you think I am. I'm really being agreeable, dear me, if you knew how mean I am underneath all the time.

"Only I'm a coward. That's what I am, a regular coward. I've been one all my life.

First, I Was Afraid.

"First I was afraid of my mother and then I was afraid of my aunt and after that I was afraid of my brother. No, I never was afraid of my father. I think he was the least bit in the world afraid of mother, too.

"I don't know why we should have been afraid of her, she was the sweetest thing in the world, but she always looked so astonished if you were naughty, you just couldn't bear to surprise her so.

"And after I was married, I was afraid of my husband; though goodness knows he was always as good as gold to me.

"But somehow I never quite dared to have my own way about anything. I never have, since I was born. I always agree with everybody and smile and smile and lots of times I'd like to pinch them, and I don't really agree with them at all.

"Now, the other day, when Cousin Catherine said all the mean things she did, about the poor little thing next door, I wanted to shake Cathy and say 'How dare you be so cruel and suspicious?' What do you know about that poor little thing? And how is it your business to sit in judgment and condemn her?" But what did I do? I just smiled—and changed the subject.

"I knew Cousin Cathy would be furious if I disagreed with her and I never can bear to have people furious.

"And when they were making such a fight on the new minister, and saying he wasn't orthodox enough, I kept thinking all the time to myself:

"'Well, maybe he isn't orthodox and maybe he isn't so awfully brilliant either, but he's so good and so kind and so sort of understanding, to me he seems like a saint. I do wish people would understand him so he could keep him here.

"But I didn't say a word, not one word, and now the poor new minister is going to be sent to another parish. I saw him and his worried looking little wife walking by the little stream in the meadow just this morning and they both looked so pale and so anxious. I wanted to go right up to them and tell them how much I liked the minister and how I believed in him and how mean I think it is for people to judge him so harshly.

Haven't Courage of a Mouse.

"Did I do it? I did not. I turned my head and looked the other way and went right along—all because I've got so used to keeping my thoughts to myself and only saying what everybody else says that I haven't the courage of a mouse.

I always wear gray, don't I? and brown? and dove color? Well, I'll tell you a secret. I love rose and scarlet and crimson and pumpkin yellow. I wish I'd worn them all my life. I think I'd have felt better.

"I hate the kind of house we live in. It's so stiff and conventional. Sometimes I'd like to catch the pillows up off the couch and throw them at the wall, just out of vexation. It would do me good I guess—but do I do it? Not I. Just pussy-foot around, like a little old gray cat looking for cream, and that's just what I am, too.

"Yes, indeed, I'd be different and I'd begin at the beginning. I'll tell you."

I was so surprised at what my cousin said that I just sat there and stared at her. I wonder if she really meant it or if she was just having fun with me. What do you think?

A Home Exercise Stunt for Making Your Figure Lovelier

By LUCREZIA BORI
The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

LUCREZIA BORI

THE woman who has allowed the lines of her figure to deteriorate must always envy the beauty lines of the musical comedy beauty or of the bathing girl who is the picture of slim grace in her revealing bathing costume.

When you sit in your comfortable seat at the theater and see the little girls on the stage going through their graceful dances and lively antics, don't you often feel quite envious?

If such spectacles do more than furnish a few hours' very good entertainment, I am sure the mission they perform is to send the women of the audience away with a firm resolve that they will do all they possibly can to keep their figures slim and trim and youthful.

For can you sit and admire a beautiful figure without thinking of your own and wishing that yours was equally beautiful? The woman who is human at all is sure to have this reaction. Also, if she is a reasoning person, she will know these lovely girls are not, at least most of them are not, especially gifted creatures who are endowed with lovely figures through no effort or thought of their own.

She knows that the active, athletic life they lead is partly responsible for the graceful, slim lines of their figures. She knows that the easy grace with which they dance is not altogether a gift. Hours of toiling practice must be behind such perfection and ease.

It is these hours of effort which have imparted to them the finished grace which you envy, and which have also given them the well-moulded, perfectly toned figures they possess.

Don't you want your waist to be encased within perfectly toned muscles, such as theirs? Don't you want to have that well-toned appearance which makes you feel really superior to the woman who allows the muscles of her stomach and abdomen to become really soft and flabby?

Lie flat across your bed, as illustrated. Your feet should protrude a little at one side, and at the other the upper part of your body should extend over the bed, so that your body below the armpits rests on the edge of the bed.

Now clasp your hands behind your head. Push your elbows back so they are parallel with the floor. Do not let them fall weakly to the front.

Now twist your body from one side to the other, moving from your waist. As you do this your elbows in turn will touch the floor, or almost touch the floor, according to the height of your bed.

Continue until tired. This is a very excellent exercise for your waist and abdomen and the upper part of your body.

If you keep the image of a lovely well-developed figure in mind, no exercise will seem too strenuous for you and you will find real pleasure in its performance.

When Varnishing The Floors

Before beginning to varnish remove all dust from the floor, which should be scrupulously clean and work under conditions that the air is as free from dust as possible.

Apply the varnish lengthwise of the grain in a smooth, thin coat. There should be no laps nor brush marks.

Allow it to dry at least two days before stepping on it or applying a second coat. Each coat should be applied and treated like the first. The more coats put on the floor the more durable will be the finish.

The temperature of the room should not be below 70 degrees; it is advisable to have it higher.

INDIAN PUDDING.

Free a half pound of suet from all fiber and chop it fine. Mix the suet through three pints of yellow cornmeal, then add a quart of milk that has been brought to scalding point, and stir rapidly until it is mixed and swelled. Add a half pint of molasses, a half grated nutmeg, a little cinnamon and two teaspoonfuls of vanilla. Set to cool. When cool, add six beaten eggs and turn into a prepared pudding bag and boil three hours. Remove from the bag and serve a good pudding sauce with the pudding.

The Holes in the Lawn

MRS. SKUNK was most polite during her call on Mrs. Brown in the latter's kitchen. When at last she walked out she left a hostess with most mixed feelings. Mrs. Brown was tremendously relieved. You would have known that could you have heard her sigh as Mrs. Skunk's big plumy tail disappeared outside. At the same time she was greatly pleased at what had happened. Mrs. Skunk had proved herself a real lady and Mrs. Brown recognized the fact.

"Well, I never!" she exclaimed. "That Skunk made herself at home here for all the world as if she thought I was glad to have her. I'll say this much, she certainly was well-mannered."

"Haven't I told you over and over again that if you treat a Skunk right the Skunk will treat you right?" asked Farmer Brown's Boy. "Jimmy Skunk and I are friends, and now I guess you and Mrs. Jimmy are friends. She is living under the hen house and I have an idea you'll see her often."

Farmer Brown's Boy was right. Mrs. Skunk formed the habit of making a morning call at the kitchen door every day, and though never again did she find the kitchen door left open she always found a good breakfast awaiting her in a dish beside the doorstep, and often Mrs. Brown stood and talked to her while she ate.

Now in front of Farmer Brown's house was a lawn in which he took much pride. He kept the grass closely cut through the summer so that it was smooth and velvety. One morning he noticed some little mounds of earth scattered over it. With a frown on his face he went to look at them. Each little mound of earth was from a small hole three or four inches deep. Some one had been digging on that lawn in the night and Farmer Brown knew who that some one was. At least he was quite sure he did.

That night the moon shone brightly and Farmer Brown and his boy watched. By and by they saw Jimmy Skunk come out on the lawn and with his nose to the ground slowly walk this way and that. Presently he stopped and began to dig. When he stopped digging he appeared to be busy about something for a moment or two and then went on to do the same thing over again. A few minutes later Mrs. Skunk appeared and began doing the same thing.

"Confound those Skunks!" exclaimed Farmer Brown ruefully. "They are digging the whole lawn up. I wish I knew what they are getting. I hate to have the appearance of that lawn ruined, but there is the chance that they may actually be doing more good than harm. Just see how calmly and methodically they go about it. It is evident enough that they are not digging for nothing, for every time they stop digging they seem to have found something."

The next morning part of that lawn was pitted all over with little holes, the work of Jimmy and Mrs. Skunk the night before. It looked worse than it really was, for Farmer Brown's Boy had only to take a rake and push the earth back into those little holes and the grass would soon spread over them. But for the time being that part of the lawn was a sorry looking place. Yes, sir, it certainly was a sorry looking place.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Cleaning the Refrigerator.

Washing soda is best when cleaning refrigerator. Never use soap. But plenty of clean tepid water in which a lump of soda has been dissolved will do the trick beautifully.

• • •

The Child's Diet.

It is a bad idea to ask the child what he wants to eat at each meal. Fit his plate daintily with the things he should eat upon it and set it before him. If he never hears about preferences he will probably make very few of his own—and he won't be undernourished.

• • •

Uses of Bran.

Bran water will wash but not fade colored goods.

There are no fewer than six cathedrals and one burgh in Scotland which can in 1928 lay claim to 700 years of authentic existence, and funds are being raised to celebrate their sept-centenary.

An Old-Fashioned Room Gives Chance To Show Artistry

By WANDA BARTON.

IF our home needs refurnishing and fixing up generally, the first consideration is, how much money can we afford to spend on it? The next thought is, how much do we want to alter it? Do we want to keep it in the same style by using the best of things, or do we want it made over entirely?

Suppose there are some charming old-fashioned pieces of furniture that we started housekeeping with many years ago, not exactly antiques but well-chosen pieces that perhaps were copies of some of the old masters. Why not collect the pieces and make an old-fashioned room? Suppose you finish the walls of the room selected in a soft tan paper. Then refinish the woodwork and floor in soft, sunny brown. Use tan net glass curtains under old blue corduroy straight curtains, covering the furniture with the same material. Use a large blue carpet rug of the same shade and small colorful rugs at the doors and in front of desk or fireplace.

Be very careful of the pictures selected for the room, a few well-placed and hung with the straight old-fashioned cords and tassels. Place a long glass over the mantel, with a clock in the center and a vase at either end. Among the cushions on the couch of blue, place one in tan and one in softest old rose. You will have a charming room and there will be nothing actually new but the accessories. Should there be a rug that has done duty and is only faded, have it dyed the desired blue. The figures will show in their original design and will take the dye in lighter or darker shade, as the case may be, and the effect is charming as a rule.

Perhaps among the old things there is a bed and bureau that are of good style, or that can be altered. We can frequently pick up odd pieces in second-hand shops, or even at auctions, that can be done over to make attractive furniture.

It is a very simple matter to choose a certain style, then have a local carpenter build a dressing table that can be painted or covered to match the other furniture covers or draperies. You cannot buy these tables, no matter what you are willing to pay for them.

Bed canopies which fasten to the wall or depend from the ceiling are much prettier than those fastened to the bed. They also have the advantage of leaving the bed free to move about on cleaning day. There are so many new kinds of washable silk as well as chintzes, cretonnes and muslins, that it is an embarrassment of riches in making the selection. Some houses are prone to have more dust than others, and where this is the case it is wise to choose a material with a glazed finish that sheds the dust rather than one that holds it.

In rooms where painted furniture is used domestic woven rugs are most suitable for floorcoverings. The creed of bare floors has been taken to heart so seriously by modern housewives that in almost all bedrooms one finds polished floors and rugs.

Canned Peaches Saute.

Drain canned peaches from the juice and put the juice on to cook down, adding two tablespoonsful of sugar and half a tablespoonful lemon juice. Melt two tablespoonsful butter to a can of peaches and saute (pan fry) the peaches in this. Serve on buttered toast with the peach juice poured over.

CHAPTER 31.
"WHO IS THE MAN?"

I F Doris had been at home bright June afternoon t ceive Mariana's call, the sequent story of the Sum Page-Cullam triangle would been vastly different.

But Doris, at the particular ment when Mariana held the phone receiver impatiently to pretty ear and listened with t tion to central's futile ring was lunching with Craig Cu in a cool roof garden of a overlooking the river, blis oblivious of the fact that her sister was endeavoring to tell of her infatuation for the across the table—the man looked at her with a messag his eyes which she could ne ignore nor force into words.

It so happened that Doris' had the afternoon off and M ana's call went unrecorded.

When evening came and the turn of Charles from his d round of golf was heralded b great splashing and lusty sing in the direction of his bath, M and made herself beautiful unusual care.

As a result, he was more than usually happy and mellow when they adjourned to the library for coffee. He was even feeling socially inclined.

"Sure you don't want to go somewhere this evening, honey?" he inquired. "Alan Harrington suggested we come over for a game, and I told him we might drop in if you felt like it."

Mariana nodded absently, as she filled his cup.

"I know. Linda called me—but I said no. As a matter of fact, I'd rather stay at home tonight. I have something to talk to you about—something important."

"I'll bet you've bought something that's put a dent in your bank account. Never mind, dearest. I'll make it good. And if you'd only go to Canada with me, I'd buy you that necklace you're so crazy for." He looked down at her from his easy posture on the hearthrug.

"Please don't treat me like a child! This is a very serious matter, one which I have given due thought, Charles"——

"Charles," she repeated breathlessly, "I—I want you to give me my freedom!"

Graham Pudding.

Put two cupfuls graham flour in a bowl and add one-half teaspoonful each of salt, nutmeg and cloves, one teaspoonful cinnamon, one cupful sweet milk, one cupful molasses in which one scant teaspoonful of soda has been dissolved. Add one beaten egg, one-half teaspoonful orange extract and one cupful well-floured raisins. Mix thoroughly and steam three hours.

Baked Ham With Spinach.

Clean and pick over spinach carefully and rinse well in four changes of cold water. Drain off all the water except that which clings to the leaves, place in a roasting pan. Cut it a little to make less bulky, and place on top of the spinach a slice of ham about two inches thick. Bake in medium oven for two hours. Baked potatoes and baked corn pudding may be placed in oven when ham and spinach are partly done.

ODD and INTERESTING FACTS

Some interesting particulars of concrete roads built in the United States during the year 1923 are given in a recent issue of "Concrete." The total area amounted to approximately 74,000,000 square yards. Of this amount 62,000,000 square yards—equivalent to 5900 miles of road 18 feet wide—were added to the nation's permanent highway system. The balance, 12,000,000 square yards, was placed on city streets and alleys. The previous yearly record was in 1921, with approximately 63,000,000 square yards, but it is noticeable that the 12,000,000 square yards of new concrete roads in American cities in 1923 is double the amount in 1921 and surpasses by 5,000,000 square yards the amount for 1922.

The first zinc made in the United States was from the red oxide of New Jersey at the arsenal in Washington, D. C., in 1838.

A large, iron-bound chest in Westminster Abbey, still to be seen suspended behind the stone work of St. Edward's shrine, was found, on being opened some years ago, to contain the body of that famous King, together with some early English jewelry.

In some parts of Serbia it is customary to kiss in church after mass, and many old enemies have been reconciled in this manner.

Great Discovery Prevents Moth-Damage! Larvex Makes Woolen Things Mothproof

Never again a moth-hole. For here is a great discovery that makes woolen things absolutely mothproof. It is Larvex. It mothproofs the cloth itself.

Every woolen thing in your home needs the protection of Larvex. It is pleasant to use—as odorless as water. It is easy to use. Insert the Larvex Atomizer in the bottle. Pump up and down with one finger.

Once Larvex is sprayed, you do not have to pack things away. They are safe anywhere. Moth-worms will not eat them. Don't worry about moths themselves—they eat nothing. They lay eggs which hatch into tiny moth-worms which do all the damage—and eat all year round. But they won't eat anything sprayed with Larvex. America's leading textile manufacturers are using Larvex to make their products mothproof for you.

Larvex is colorless, stainless and non-injurious. It won't burn or explode. Spray it on anything except furs. Larvex with new-type atomizer, $1.50. Once you have atomizer, buy Larvex only at $1.00. At drug, department and furniture stores. Get Larvex today. © 1925 L.C.

SOUTHERN BAKED ONIONS

Peel and parboil four Spanish onions until tender, drain and cool slightly. Then remove the centers and stuff with a mixture of chopped boiled liver, the onion centers, a teaspoonful each of chopped celery leaves and peppers, a tablespoonful each of dry crumbs and soft butter, a saltspoonful of curry powder, salt, pepper and a little sugar. Mix and bind with a little heavy cream. Butter over the onions, stuff them and sprinkle with grated cheese. Bake in a brisk oven until tender and delicately browned, but not soft enough to lose their shape.

HOMEMAKING HELPS

"Everything about the House Helps to Make the Home"

By WANDA BARTON

Some Old-Fashioned Customs Which Have Value.

FOREIGN customs transplanted in American homes are making us very neighborly with friendly nations, and incidentally teaching us many valuable things in the art of housekeeping. Fashions in housekeeping change as other fashions, only not as rapidly.

For instance, whoever thought of serving rice in a lovely round black lacquer box with a tight-fitting cover and a spatula paddle? Recently we dined at a Japanese restaurant and learned what a lovely way it is to serve rice and how easily the box is washed when emptied; also how nice it is to hot the rice keeps during the meal.

It is a Bohemian idea to make pillows into delicate-colored silk or satine and trim them with lace and embroidery on the ends of the cases. These decorate the middle of the bed while the plain ends show on the outer side. The effect is very pretty, especially when the center of the spread is trimmed to match and lies over the colored under slip. These clever people also use an attractive little cover or grillwork on the edge of the Dutch shelves to make sure no decorative pieces slide down and fall to their destruction.

The Bohemians are also responsible for the idea of using a long runner on the dining table and short cross runners underneath, so that many places as are required. The runners are wide enough to accommodate the service plate and silver, tumblers and napkin. If unexpected company comes an extra runner may be slipped under the long one and taken out for ordering without disturbing the rest of the table arrangements. These runners are made usually of heavy unbleached linen. They are frequently handwoven at home and embroidered in gay coloring or in one color. The ends of the runners are finished with tiny tassels or knobs below the embroidered design.

Serving foods in the dishes in which they are cooked is another labor-saving custom that has been borrowed, and the casserole dish, glass pudding baking dishes and ramekin service are all part of the labor-saving idea.

Many women who do their own cooking have adopted the so-called peasant shirt waists, colored skirts and the unbleached linen aprons, embroidered to match the waists.

Again, we have been introduced to the charming pottery of other nations, and find it most fascinating. Not only can it be used in the kitchen, but for breakfasts, luncheons and in the nursery as well. There is a fad for the so-called peasant shelves in homes, where the pottery is displayed on lace-edged shelf linens. Three or four boxed shelves 16 inches apart and a yard wide are built. They are homey and quaint looking. Tray breakfasts and luncheons are gaining favor for home use and pottery is used in the service.

MIXED CHEESE SALAD.

Mix a cupful of American cheese broken in small pieces with three little Neufchatel cheeses cut in small pieces, add a cupful of olives sliced from their stones, a cupful of lettuce cut to ribbons, sprinkle with the juice of an onion, moisten with a quarter cupful of heavy cream, heap in lettuce leaves and dress with a little French dressing to which a teaspoonful of horseradish has been added. Serve with toasted saltines.

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE.

SOMEBODY IS ALWAYS TAKING THE JOY OUT OF LIFE

—By BRIGGS

the Man on the Sandbox

by L. C. Davis

THE REVUE.

TODAY the Mayor takes his seat,
To park his No. 11 feet
Encased in patent leathers neat,
Beneath the Mayor's table.
But in his ointment there's a fly,
For, Mr. Igoe says he'll pry
Him from the former throne of Hy,
Providing he is able.

But Victor says he has no fears
And when the smoke of battle clears
He hopes to have four banner years
Of browsing in the clover.
His friends maintain it is a trick
To pull the chair from under Vic,
And to it he intends to stick,
Till sheol freezes over.

But friends of Mr. Igoe claim,
That many voters wrote his name
And they're inclined to lay the blame,
Upon the blanket ballot.
They'd like to meet the guy who planned
This so-called blanket ballot and,
Upon his upper story land,

The French are now compelled to hoe
A pretty tough financial row
And find it hard to raise the dough
To carry on the Nation.
Alas! the late lamented war
Has left a large financial sore
That makes the outlook gloomy for
The future generation.

QUITE TRUE.

Wilbert Robinson says he is in the best shape he has been in years. And when Robbie is in shape we'll tell the world it is some shape.

With eight "greatly improved" teams in each major league it is only a question of which has improved the most.

And did you ever hear of any manager who didn't start the season with a greatly improved team?

The man on the sandbox says golf will never be a popular spectators' game. There is no ump to pick on, ethics forbid rooting, and the practice of telling the players just what you think of them in round numbers is frowned upon.

Furthermore you have to sit down to stretch.

On the other hand there are many who claim that Wayne never was a wrestler.

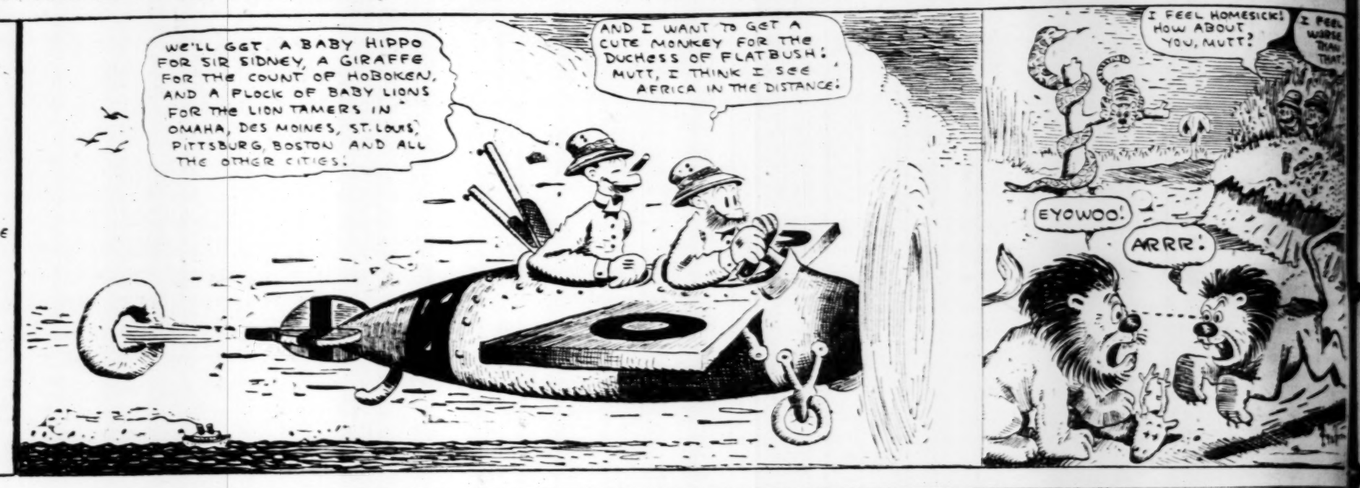

Be that as it may, he utterly ruined the season for Col. E. Strangler Lewis.

REFUGEES TELL OF 600 EXECUTIONS IN BULGARIA

KING READY TO LEAVE COUNTRY

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

ROME, April 22.—Refugees from Sofia who have arrived at Tsarbrod, a frontier town, say that Premier Tsankoff's tribunals within two days shot 600 members of the Bulgarian peasant party.

The refugees, however, deny the statements being given out officially in Sofia to the effect that the revolution is being suppressed. The interior of Bulgaria, they say, is seething with revolt, which is fostered by one of those popular legends of unknown source, to the effect that Stamboulisky, a peasant leader presumably killed nearly two years ago, is still alive.

According to the story, he is hiding on a solitary mountain, fed by a few faithful hillsmen.

Most of the Bulgarian troops are concentrated in Sofia, while the rest are stationed along the Jugo-Slav border to prevent refugees from crossing. The troops along the border also are charged with keeping out Bulgarians who have been refugees for the last few months and who, it is feared, will try to invade the country.

Summary Tribunals at Work.

Although summary tribunals in Bulgaria are working day and night, events have made it plain that the Bulgarian police are unable to cope with the counterplots still being made. The Sofia police know nothing of what is going on outside the capital. The manner in which they make arrests in Sofia is to invade houses, seize the inmates and throw them into prison until all the papers found in their homes have been examined.

This recourse to primitive police methods, and the lack of intelligent direction, keeps the city in a state of alarm lest further bomb outbreaks occur.

King Boris, although said to be personally courageous, is entirely under the influence of Tsankoff, whose heavy-handed methods crush as many innocent as guilty. This fact is exasperating many who have no political game to play.

Bulgarians once more are complaining that King Boris is not of their own stock, but the son of foreign parents and incapable of feeling as they do. But even if he should abdicate it is thought no better days would be in prospect, for Tsankoff's power already outweighs that of the King.

King Ready to Leave.

Boris, with his sister, Evdosia, is prepared for orders to quit the country at any moment. Both are horrified at the spectacle of the wholesale assassination which have been daily occurrences for months.

The foreign consulates are besieged by members of the foreign colonies who are appealing for protection. The Consuls are said to be considering seriously the advisability of sending away the foreign women and children, as the government cannot guarantee the safety of anyone.

Business in Sofia is at a standstill and traveling is impossible. All public resorts are closed and no citizens are allowed on the streets after dark. Even the newspaper correspondents who arrived in Sofia after the Cathedral outrage have been sent across the frontier by Tsankoff's orders.
